De Valera Calls for Irish Independence

Ragged Army of 25,000 Turns Tide in Savage Fighting.

Advances 2 Miles In Night Attack

The Spanish War.

An army of 25,000 Basque loyalists, staging a desperate counter-offensive, was reported to have turned the tide of the rebel assault on Bilbao.

The Basque claims of victory were disputed by the rebel high command, which claimed insurgent troops had advanced to within six miles of the besieged capital.

The rebel warship Espana was sunk in the Bay of Biscay by three loyalist bombing planes, first battleship in naval history to be sunk by an airplane. Most of the Espana's 840 officers and men were reported saved.

Britain and France went ahead with plans to use ships of the two nations in evacuation of refugees from Bilbao in the face of a warning from rebel Gen. Franco.

Rebel Drive Halted.

By the United Press.

Bilboa (Saturday), May 1.—A ragged army of 25,000 Basque loyalists, fighting savagely to recapture the "holy city" of Guernica, were reported early today to have turned the tide of the rebel assault on Bilbao.

An official loyalist communique said the embattled Basques, suddenly recovering from their panic-stricken flight, advanced about 2 miles in a surprise night attack and seized Bizcazgui Hill domintaing the "holy city." The offensive came after Gen. Emilio Mola's mechanized rebel columns had advanced to within 6 miles of Bilbao's gates.

Bomb Sinks Battleship.

The Basques' fighting spirit was revived by the sinking yesterday of the rebel battleship Espana in the Bay of Biscay—first battleship in all naval history to be sunk by an airplane.

A "lucky hit" from three loyalist bombing planes sank the Espana in 100 feet of water 50 miles west of this besieged Basque capital.

The 15,452-ton warship, pride of Gen. Francisco Franco's insurgent fleet and terror of the Biscay coast, was sent to the bottom while aiding in the shelling of a British steamer.

The Espana sank when a 210-pound bomb—dropped from a height of one and two-thirds miles—dropped down her funnel and exploded amidship.

The rebel destroyer Velasco, which a few minutes before had shelled the British merchant ship Knitsley inside Spanish territorial waters, rescued most of the 840 officers and men aboard the Espana as they struggled in the water, before she was forced to put about and flee.

Meanwhile, French and British plans to help evacuate thousands of half-starved refugees from beleaguered Bilbao were jolted early today when insurgent Generalissimo Franco informed the British government he would not promise to respect foreign ships in Spanish waters taking part in the gigantic mercy mission.

Will Maintain Blockade.

Franco insisted he was determined to maintain the naval blockade of the capital in conjunction with the rebel land offensive.

(In London, French and British officials nevertheless went forward with plans to use ships of the two nations in evacuation of Basque non-combatants).

The jubilant Basque claims of a victory outside Guernica were contradicted in an announcement from rebel field headquarters at San Sebastian, 40 miles east of Bilbao. The forces of Gen. Mola, the announcement said, have conquered six additional villages on the seacoast front—east and slightly north of Bilbao—bringing the total of Biscayan villages occupied in three days to 72.

Advance units of the insurgent armies, the announcement said, were within 6 miles of the capital itself.

The sinking of the rebel sea raider Espana was accomplished by 3 of the 32 fighting planes sent here by the loyalist government at Valencia to help defend the capital of the Basques.

The warship, which had been attempting to prevent the British merchant ship from entering Bilbao's blockaded port, sank within half an hour after the loyalist bomb found its mark.

Basque fishing boats bobbed about where the Espana went down.

District's Traffic Fatalities Set New Low Record in April

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Washington established a new low mark in its monthly traffic death rate yesterday.

But at the same time National Safety Council figures revealed a 26 per cent increase in the Nation's accident toll during the first quarter of 1937 as compared with the same period last year.

Since February, the District has shown a steady decline in highway fatalities. There has not been a fatal accident on Washington streets in 10 days—bidding fair to establish an all-time safety record.

During April four persons met death in traffic accidents here. This was against ten fatalities for the same month in 1936. Of those killed last month, two were pedestrians, one was thrown from a wagon and the fourth died in a street car-auto collision.

The current District fatality list stands at 40 for the year, as compared with 32 this time in 1936.

A month-by-month tabulation shows 14 in January, 14 in February, 8 in March and 4 in April.

Of 39 States reporting highway deaths to the National Safety Council, only 6 showed a decrease during the first three months. And of 93 cities of 100,000 population or more, only 15 reported a drop.

Encouraged by the apparent safety trend in Washington, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday renewed appeals for careful driving and urged motorists to aid the city in its efforts to gain Nation-wide safety recognition.

"This is the first time since last October," Van Duzer said, "that there has been a fatality reduction in any one month over the same

Two Anti-Army Parties Sweep Japanese Vote

Early Returns Indicate Election Unfavorable to Government.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, May 1.—Early election returns from four large voting centers today indicated sweeping victories for Minseit and Seiyukai parties opposed to the government.

Not a single government candidate for the House of Representatives was elected in the towns of Fukushima, Wakamatsu, Kainan and Matsue.

An unprecedented number abstaining from voting was recorded in six leading cities of Japan, averaging 40 per cent with Osaka heading the list with 52 per cent abstaining.

The Japanese home office announced a total of 565 election violations, involving 903 persons, of which 68 were charged with bribery.

Incomplete returns from Tokyo and Osaka showed the two major political parties continuing with sweeping victories, while proletarian groups maintained pronounced gains.

The cabinet, headed by Premier Senjuro Hayashi, announced it intended to hold on to power regardless of an expected adverse vote against its policies.

Hayashi was charged with favoring army domination of government in the political fight which preceded dissolution of the last Parliament.

The two principal parties, Seiyukai and Minseito, were embittered by dissolution of the last diet and united in the fight against Hayashi.

Votes for Women.

Manila, April 30 (AP).—Suffrage for women of the Philippines won a heavy favorable vote today in a plebiscite by which the island women could become the only enfranchised group in the far East.

Department of Interior officials said the trend of balloting indicated a sweeping victory for constitutional and political suffrage for women. Commonwealth President Manuel Quezon had urged a favorable vote.

The registration of women for the voting was 561,969. The measure needed 300,000 votes to carry. Unofficial returns showed a ratio of eight to one in favor of women voting.

15 Youths Plan 'Chute Jumps to Win Diploma

Smithfield, Ohio, April 30 (U.P.).—Fifteen popeyed youngsters tonight planned a mass parachute jump from an airliner Sunday to get their "diplomas" from the Smithfield Parachute Club.

The group, which has completed a six-month "course" under the tutelage of Paul Glinzak, a lad of 20, will leave tomorrow for Cincinnati, where the "commencement exercises" will be held. None ever has made a jump before.

Film Industry Threatened by Tie-up in Strike

2,500 Painters, Scenic Artists and Make-up Men Quit.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, April 30.—Approximately 2,500 film painters, scenic artists and make-up men walked out on strike tonight, threatening paralysis of production activities of all motion picture studios.

The strike order became effective after a last-minute conference between union leaders and producers' representatives ended in a deadlock. The union demands wage and hour adjustments and a closed shop.

In expectation of the walkout, studios had issued instructions for all day crews to leave the lot at 6 p. m.

The executive committee of the Screen Actors Guild prepared to meet tonight to formulate a policy for its members, comprising most of Hollywood's high-priced stars as well as lesser players. The guild is informally aligned with the Federated Motion Picture Crafts, to which the three strike groups belong.

Rather than submit to a shutdown, studios were believed planning to recruit outside workers to replace the strikers.

Union leaders declared that pickets would be stationed in front of each studio tomorrow.

The striking groups are without the support of the strong older unions, which are members of the so-called basic studio agreement. These unions include the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, the United Brotherhood

First Lady Visits Chinatown While In San Francisco

San Francisco, April 30 (AP).—A visit to Chinatown, a trip across the bay bridge and some "wandering around" occupied Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt here today before she departed by airplane to visit her daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, in Seattle.

The Nation's First Lady knitted on a white scarf at a press conference before starting on her sightseeing tour.

Mrs. Roosevelt said her husband related the true picture of conditions recently when he said in a radio broadcast that a third of the Nation is "ill-housed and ill-clothed."

"I am still very much interested in housing," she said. "The resettlement and decentralization projects are exceedingly interesting. The housing industry is almost medieval. The same methods are used that have always been used."

3d Program For Economy Given House

Rep. Woodrum Requests Fresh Study of All Appropriations.

Rifts Over Retrenchment, Court May End in Farm Revolt.

Battle on Economy.

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, proposed that all appropriation bills thus far passed be returned to appropriate sub-committees for further reductions, in opposition to the 10 per cent horizontal cut sought by leading Senate Democrats.

The plan of Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, for a 15 per cent cut in all bills and impounding of the funds thus saved for use at the President's discretion, was termed unnecessary because of similar provisions already existing.

The House passed the $416,413,382 War Department appropriation bill, $358,079 under budget estimates.

Third Plan Offered.

By Robert C. Albright.

A third economy program was dropped into the Congressional retrenchment maelstrom yesterday as Democratic rifts over retrenchment, credit and the judiciary widened into a threatened farm program revolt.

The new economy proposal was brought forward by Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, of Virginia, second ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee, as leaders struggled to iron out earlier differences between conflicting House and Senate plans.

Woodrum asked that all appropriation bills passed by Congress, leading off with the independent offices bill, be reconsidered in committee, and further reductions made. He opposed both Senate "mandatory" and House "discretionary" cuts as "economy hysteria" and declared for a relief appropriation of only $1,000,000,000.

Farm Revolt Flares.

Apart from the economy fracas, a farm revolt flared in the Senate Agriculture Committee, adding to leadership worries. Failing to report out the Administration's farm marketing bill, the committee voted instead to call in county agriculture commissioners from all States to frame a farm program of its own. Farm opposition to the Administration drive on prices figured in the vote. Some inflationist members voiced resentment at what they termed "deflationary" Agriculture Department tactics.

Significant developments on the retrenchment front were:

In an informed quarter it was learned the President has all authority needed in the law to accomplish the 15 per cent "discretionary" cuts proposed in the House. Without passage of the plan, it was said, the President can apportion the spread of appropriations in a department and set up "reserve accounts" of any amount he wishes to save.

Speaker Bankhead revised his statement that the President approved of the 15 per cent "discretionary" slash and said he never had discussed the matter with the President. He said he had assumed Roosevelt was for it because the Budget Bureau approved it. Bankhead said "nothing would be done" about the 15 per cent plan until conferences were held with Senate leaders and the President.

House Refuses 25% Cut.

Without a record vote, the House defeated a Republican motion to cut the $416,413,382 War Department appropriation bill by 10 per cent. Then it passed this largest peacetime Army bill and sent it to the Senate. It was cut $358,079 below

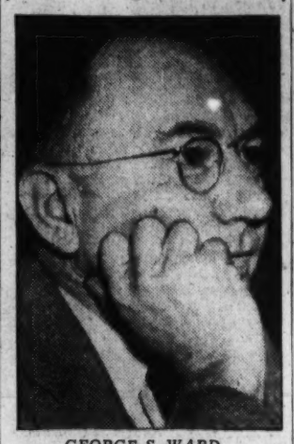
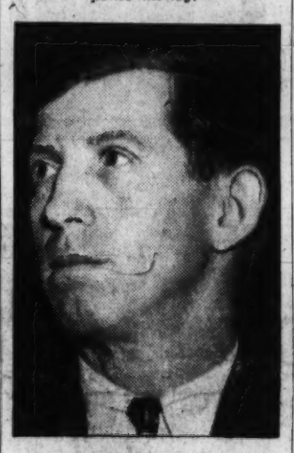
'Free' Harlan

Sheriff Asserts Crimes of His Deputies Meant Nothing to Him.



GEORGE S. WARD, secretary of the Harlan Coal Operators, appearing before Senate Civil Liberties Committee, said he had been "very careful" not to know what the missing Ben Unthank, chief of Harlan deputies, did with thousands of dollars of the association's expense money.



"THUG" JOHNSON, whose real name is William C. Johnson, twice acquitted of murder, told the committee that "I never killed nobody—not in Harlan, anyway," while telling how deputies "hunted down union men."

THEODORE MIDDLETON, sheriff of Harlan County, who stood on his constitutional immunity Friday when Senate committee asked how he made over $100,000 in three years on a monthly salary of $150. Ship Is Attacked By Sea Monster, Delayed 2 Days

Long Beach, Calif., April 30 (AP).—A story of a two-day battle with a giant stingray they said attacked their steel-laden freighter off the southern coast of Mexico was told here today by Capt. F. Fink and First Engineer J. E. Ahearn of the S. S. Lewis Luckenbach.

Capt. Fink said the freighter suddenly slowed to a third her normal speed and that sailors, hurrying forward, saw the huge stingray writhing around the prow.

They estimated it was 50 feet across and weighed several tons, with a pointed tail approximately 30 feet in length.

Jabbing and prodding with boat hooks, the crew attempted in vain to dislodge the sea monster, officers said, while the vessel fell behind schedule.

Next day, they continued, Ahearn and the engineers rigged up grappling hooks attached to steel cables which were connected with a steam winch. The grapping hooks were sunk into the stingray and it was torn loose.

Hull Fights Cut in Cuba Sugar Quota

Secretary Attacks Domestic Refiners Before House Committee.

Says All Restrictions on Product May Be Found Undesirable.

By William V. Nessly.

Expressing sharp criticism of domestic sugar refiners and foreseeing the time when "it may well prove undesirable to have any restrictions whatsoever on refined sugar entering this country," Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday urged the House Agriculture Committee to reject proposed reductions in amounts of raw and refined sugar Cuba may send into this country.

The Secretary, whose reciprocal trade agreements program has won wide praise for the Administration, appeared before the committee as it was about to vote on a measure that would reduce by some 102,000 tons the amount of raw Cuban sugar that could be brought into this country, and reduce by about one-third the 450,000 tons of direct-consumption sugar now permitted to enter.

Hull warned that if the Jones-Costigan quota act is modified contrary to recommendations of the President, "it will greatly increase the difficulty of the task of restoring mutually advantageous international commercial relations."

Assails Domestic Refiners.

He was severe in his criticism of domestic sugar refiners, saying:

"Only a little over one year ago the United States Supreme Court upheld a lower court ruling and found the Sugar Institute guilty on 40 separate counts of engaging in a combination and conspiracy to restrain trade and commerce in sugar.

"In view of this judgment of the court, it would not appear to be sound public policy in any way to abet the return of conditions which have been so bad that our courts have had to take drastic action in order to clean them up."

The Secretary told the committee that Cuban-American trade has almost doubled since signing of the reciprocal trade agreement between the two countries, and added:

"This, in my opinion, represents business that is worth safeguarding."

Proposals for reducing the Cuban raw-sugar quota are designed to meet demands of Florida and Louisiana cane growers for a greater share in the domestic market. Hull presented figures to show that those States had profited from the increased trade with Cuba. Of the planned cut in Cuba's quota, he said:

"It is my frank opinion that this is a step backward."

The reduction in the refined sugar imports, he declared would "practically force the Cuban refiners to suspend operations," and he said he believed "the interests of the great American consuming public will best be served by permitting reasonable competition conditions to obtain in the refining industry."

Court Cases Mentioned.

His opinion was strengthened, he said, "by the record of the sugar refining industry in this country, which does not make reassuring reading. Starting over 50 years ago, this industry has become well acquainted with our courts in connection with suits on restraint of trade and other related matters."

He declared further:

"It has been computed that consumers in the United States last year paid approximately $350,000,000 in excess of world prices for their sugar supply—a tax of nearly $3 on every man, woman and child, including that underprivileged one-third of our Nation—those 40,000,000 persons—who do not enjoy, as the President pointed out, sufficient food or shelter.

Hull expressed regret that the committee had removed entirely the provision for increasing the quotas for full-duty countries, which he held would have been of assistance in the recovery of export markets. In the case of Peru and the Dominican Republic, he pointed out, conclusion of advantageous trade agreements "will be facilitated greatly if a way can be found to

Moves for Freedom

PRESIDENT DE VALERA.

De Valera Move Advances Isle's 700-Year Fight

New Constitution Takes on Added Importance Due to Coronation.

By Edward T. Folliard.

Ireland's new constitution, made public in Dublin, was hailed here last night by persons well-posted on Irish affairs as another step forward in Erin's 700-year-old fight for freedom.

The constitution, it was said, has been hatching for two years or more, but took on particular significance at this time because of the imminence of the coronation of King George VI, and the forthcoming meeting of representatives of the British dominions.

However, those familiar with Irish affairs said that the constitution, while revolutionary on its face, actually was not. They described it as part of the "progression" toward freedom.

They thought, too, that it would almost insure De Valera's continuance in power, since no Irishman could afford to vote against a document that will be his issue in the election soon to be held.

The new constitution, these commentators said, is important in an internal but not in an external sense. That is to say, it contains nothing that is likely to alarm Englishmen.

London, it is now well known, was surprised and gratified that the Irish didn't do something more drastic in the crisis growing out of

Gaelic Is Made National Language; No Mention of Britain.

By the Associated Press.

Dublin (Saturday), May 1.—A new constitution declaring all Ireland a "sovereign, independent democratic state," was published early today by President Eamonn de Valera of the Irish Free State.

Revolutionary in scope and hailed as a personal triumph for De Valera, the document declares the "inalienable" right of the Irish people to choose their own form of government and provides for election of a president by direct vote.

The constitution, making no mention of Great Britain or the British King, designates Irish as the national language. Previously, Irish and English had enjoyed equal status, but English now is relegated to second place.

De Valera will offer the new constitution, designed to sweep away vestiges of British control, for ratification at the general elections and a plebiscite expected late in June.

London Press Skeptical.

In London, De Valera's proposed constitution was received with calm skepticism by morning newspapers. The Telegraph (Conservative) in an editorial headed "Dream Constitution For Ireland" declared "Eire," De Valera's new name for Ireland, "cannot be sovereign because its authority will not be recognized by Ulster." The paper adds the state "cannot be democratic because its constitution contains a promise of dictatorship." It describes the plan a "paper scheme" which "can never be carried out in practice."

The Post, official Conservative organ, said the constitution reflects De Valera's "implacable and pedantic mind * * * and love of make believe so dear to the Irish character."

"The Irish nation," the new constitution reads, "hereby affirms its inalienable sovereign right to choose its own form of government, to determine relations with other nations and to develop its life, political, economic and cultural, in accordance with its own genius and traditions."

The second article proclaims the national territory as consisting of "the whole of Ireland, its islands and territorial seas."

The constitution is designed to require no alteration in the event northern Ireland and the Irish Free State some day are joined.

Direct Vote for President.

The President would be elected by a direct vote of the people for a seven-year term, and would take precedence over all others. He would be able to leave Ireland only with the people's consent.

Article 13 provides that the President shall appoint, on nomination of the Dail Eireann, a prime minister, or taoiseach, to head the cabinet.

De Valera's present post is "president of the executive council." The highest executive office formerly was that of governor general, appointed by the British King. That official, however, disappeared from the scene last December 12, when Donal Buckley, an old Irish Republican appointed by King George V in 1932, signed the act passed by the Dail abolishing his $50,000 a year job.

(Buckley, a retired shopkeeper when appointed, did not even bother to go to London to receive his appointment, refused to live in the vice-regal lodge in Dublin and handed back all but $10,000 of his salary. Since he in effect abolished himself the King of England has disappeared from internal affairs of the Free State. The speaker of the Dail approves bills and summons and prorogues Parliament.)

Under the proposed constitution the President would occupy the gap left by the governor general's disappearance.

The national Parliament would be made up of the President and the two houses, Dail and Senate, in which would be vested exclusive powers for making laws. The Dail

Scientists Employ Rickets to Cure RadiumPoisoning

Buffalo, N. Y., April 30 (AP).—Scientists waited tonight for a medical announcement explaining how one human ill—rickets—can be used to fight another, dreaded radium poisoning.

Details of the radium poisoning treatment, which has effected cures, will be announced before a medical society next week, Dr. Karl Taylor Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said here.

He told a meeting of Massachusetts Institute of Technology alumni here some of the facts about the treatment.

The first step is to cause the patient to become afflicted with rickets. Calcium is eliminated from the diet. The parathyroid hormone is removed and chemicals are administered internally. The cure is usually effected in eight weeks.

Norris to Ask Division of U.S. Into 8 Units Resembling TVA for Power, Flood Control

By Russell Smith

Division of the United States into eight districts for development of power, irrigation, navigation and flood control is sought by Senator George W. Norris (Independent Republican), of Nebraska, in a bill he will introduce "within ten days."

The Nebraskan announced his plans yesterday, only three days after he had conferred at length at the White House. Besides Senator Norris and the President, Benjamin V. Cohen, general counsel of the national power policy committee, and J. D. Ross, official of the Securities and Exchange Commission, also sat in at the conference.

There is thus strong indication Norris' bill is the Administration measure to establish machinery for effectuating the Nation-wide, long-time plans of the National Resources Board and the power policy committee.

Each of the districts to be set up would be modeled after the Tennessee Valley Authority, Norris said:

The new authorities, if they are closely modeled upon TVA, would be administered by a board of three directors with the broadest powers. Their principal check will be in the requirement of an annual report to Congress and justification of proposed expenditures to the appropriations committees of the two houses.

As TVA illustrates and as Norris has urged often in the past, enumeration of major aims of the district authorities gives little idea of the multifarious activities such districts would embrace.

What the three directors in reality constitute is a regional planning board for the Tennessee Valley. The TVA has built homes and schools, finances through a subsidiary the purchase of electrical appliances, is interested in land utilization and conservation, is concerned with agriculture, and is interwoven with the general community life of its area.

This is Senator Norris' hope as he has made clear often in the past.

"What this country needs," he said when he talked with the President previously on such a proposal, "is enough TVA's to cover it.

"That would mean the maximum navigation development, the maximum flood control, the maximum reforestation, the maximum correc-

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

St. Wolfgang, Austria, April 30.—Former King Edward told the United Press tonight, through his spokesman, that he and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson will spend their honeymoon in a secluded villa in Austria.

"It is true that his royal highness has taken a villa at Wesserleonburg for the summer," the spokesman said.

The duke and Mrs. Simpson, after their marriage in France about 30 days hence, will return for their honeymoon to the spot where they spent an idyllic week together in September, 1935—without the world knowing of it until they had departed.

Edward's father, George V, visited Wesserleonburg in 1905 to confer with Emperor Franz Josef, who was living in the romantic spot with his mistress.

Edward's announcement of his honeymoon plans followed a revelation he has made a "bargain" with members of the British royal family whereby the Duke and Duchess of Kent will be permitted to attend his wedding in exchange for a promise that Edward and his bride will remain away from England for some time.

As soon as Mrs. Simpson's final decree of divorce is handed down in the London law courts Monday, the duke will board the first train to Paris and hurry on to Tours.

Edward, it was explained, has been in constant touch with the

Ignore His Bill Re-enacting AAA Provisions; Tire of Being 'Rubber Stamps.'

A revolt on Administration farm policies broke out yesterday in the Senate Agriculture Committee, accompanied by inflationary demands that farm commodities be relieved of so-called "deflationary" price pressure.

Unanimously, the committee agreed to invite all State agriculture commissioners to appear before the Senate group and tell "what their problems are and what they would like to see in the way of legislation."

The committee ignored Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace's "quota" bill, providing re-enactment of virtually all marketing provisions of the invalidated AAA act. The bill has passed the House.

Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, committee chairman, quoted some members as saying they were "tired of being rubber stamps for Administration proposals—they are tired of being dominated by the Department of Agriculture."

"We think we can consider our own legislation, without being told everything by the department," said Senator Smith.

Supplementing Smith's remarks, Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, Senate inflationist leader and a member of the Agriculture Committee, charged "a definite program of deflation has been embarked upon by the White House, the Federal Reserve Board and the Department of Agriculture."

Thomas said he had wired 15 State commissioners of agriculture in the Southern States, and asked them if they believed prices were too high. He said they all replied "no."

"The Agriculture Department is on record now for lower prices," said Senator Thomas. "Secretary Wallace says prices are too high and must come down. Mordecai Ezekial (Wallace's economic adviser) says prices are too high. Corrington Gill, (WPA assistant) says prices are too high. Our committee decided prices are not high.

"The Department of Agriculture has authority to raise prices, but won't operate. They want to keep farmers mendicants, serfs and beggars."

On the House side there were rumblings of dissent on the price drive. Representative John A. Martin (Democrat), Colorado, said "they are talking about knocking down prices when we haven't reached a danger point."

Senator Smith said State farm commissioners were invited to appear before the Senate committee "because they are in touch with their own local problems and sentiment."

"They are elected officials, and so are we," said Smith. "We will yet get back to sound principles and the rights of local government. A man may get a disease, but he can get over it. It was only natural that in the depths of the depression, we were demoralized."

Tinkham Seeks Grant of $50,000 For Hall of Fame

With the Capitol corridors already overrun with weighty monuments of State dignitaries, construction of a Hall of Fame was proposed yesterday by Representative Tinkham (Republican), of Massachusetts.

Tinkham's bill merely calls for the preparation of plans and estimates of the cost of a building and authorizes an appropriation of $50,000 for this purpose.

Cummings' Letter Urging Tighter Anti-Trust Laws May Be Prelude to New Administration Adventure in Encouraging Monopoly.

By Franklyn Waltman

IT seems almost too good to be true that the Roosevelt Administration seriously proposes to do something about monopolistic control in this country. When the President earlier this week made public Attorney General Homer S. Cummings' recommendation for the revision of the Federal anti-trust laws to prevent more effectively monopoly, the conductor of this column was ready to cheer very loud—in fact, did cheer that evening before some New Deal friends.

WALTMAN.

But second thought had a sobering effect. Even if Mr. Roosevelt is not indulging in a gesture to frighten big business against further price increases at this time, it is by no means clear he intends to undertake a realistic approach to rooting out monopolistic control in industry. It is possible—even probable—that the Cummings letters is a prelude to another adventure in encouraging monopoly under such an euphemistic term of stabilizing industry. Such a course, started under NRA and halted only by the Supreme Court, would mean that a government bureaucracy would fix prices instead of an economic oligarchy. One is as bad as the other.

There is good reason to believe that Mr. Roosevelt and many of his New Deal counselors do not know which course to pursue, that is, whether to undertake to stamp out monopoly or to attempt to bring it under Federal regulation. The New Deal obviously has no policy regarding this problem—and consequently the New Deal is without a consistent industrial policy. One day it blows toward spirited competition; the next day toward monopolistic practice.

It is for this reason that the Cummings recommendation for the appointment of a committee of qualified experts to undertake a study which would comprehend "the relation of anti-monopoly policies to such subjects as patents, taxation, commerce, manufacturing, farming and labor," as well as the adequacy of the Federal antitrust laws, is both valuable and presents to Mr. Roosevelt a unique opportunity.

Let it be hoped that the President will seize that opportunity and name a committee of outstanding authorities really qualified to deal in a comprehensive and realistic manner with a vital question of national policy. If he names a committee of little men, the country will know that Mr. Roosevelt is anxious to take the collectivist road without bothering to ascertain the facts.

On the other hand, if he names to such a committee men familiar with the problem and its many ramifications, such as Dr. Harold G. Moulton, of the Brookings Institution; Adolph A. Berle, Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, Dr. Harry W. Laidler, John Lord O'Brian, Donald R. Richberg, Leon Henderson and a dozen similar authorities who might be named and gives them a free hand, the result should be a report worthy of any British Royal Commission. It should serve as a guide post for national industrial policy for many years to come.

It is a mistake to think of monopolistic control solely in the terms of anti-trust legislation aimed against corporate combinations in restraint of trade. Nor does Attorney General Cummings think of the problem in the light of that sole remedy. His reference to patents and taxation indicates he does not take such a narrow view of the problem.

Monopolistic control in this country is not built alone on corporate combinations or agreements in restraint of trade. It is built in many instances on patents or exclusive ownership of raw materials and in many cases is protected by tariff walls. All these factors enter into the picture and must be studied by experts before any readjustments are made, lest the proposed reforms have disastrous results.

Again, the Federal Government's power of taxation may well be a weapon for breaking down monopolistic control far more effective than all the anti-trust prosecutions which might be imagined. And yet taxation of corporate income for purposes of forcing economic reforms should not be undertaken until a definite policy is established and the considerations on which conclusions are based have been weighed not only in light of economic policy, but also of social and political objectives.

Fighting huge corporations merely because they are big does not solve the problem and may well—until more light is thrown on the subject we do not know—do more harm than good to the general welfare. In this day of advanced industrial organization it may be more desirable to have a few efficient corporate giants fighting each other than a multiplicity of inefficient business units.

The Treasury is now engaged in a study of the results of the recently enacted taxes on undistributed corporation profits; of graduated corporation taxes, and of taxes on intercorporate dividends. The President has told Congress that the results of this study will be ready next winter and it is expected that the Administration may propose some revisions of these levies—possibly upward.

And yet such taxation policies should not be considered independently of national policy in relation to industry. Wise action on such a tax program virtually demands the type of study recommended by Attorney General Cummings. And such a study with the conclusions to be drawn from it also is essential before further experimentation with legislation dealing with fair trade practices is undertaken, unless we are to risk the evils of another NRA.

As Donald Richberg recently wrote in the University of Pennsylvania Law Review: "It might be assumed that the laws regulating competition would be based upon a consistent national economic policy," but, he added, "when analyzed, we find they are, in fact, based largely upon conflicts of emotions arising out of shifting conflicts of temporary economic interests."

Mormons' Liquor Drive.

Salt Lake City, April 30 (AP).—The Latter Day Saints (Mormon) Church, in its first anti-liquor campaign since repeal, announced today a drive for "total abstinence" to "set an example for the world." Abstinence from tobacco also will be urged.

Plane Speeds Neutrality Bill To Roosevelt

Races Against Time to Beat Expiration of Old Measure.

By the United Press.

New Orleans, April 30.—A speedy naval seaplane was poised at Galveston, Tex., tonight to fly out over the Gulf of Mexico tomorrow and deliver Congress' newly passed neutrality bill to President Roosevelt for his signature aboard the U. S. S. Potomac.

A plane from Washington bringing the bill is to arrive at Galveston at 8:30 o'clock (Central standard time) tomorrow morning. The bill will be transferred to the seaplane around noon.

The extraordinary arrangements were made necessary because the country's present neutrality statute expires at midnight Saturday night.

Indications were Roosevelt would sign the bill somewhere off Arkansas Bay near Texas' famed tarpon fishing grounds, where he will cruise next week trolling for the big, silver-scaled fish.

The President still was aboard the U. S. S. Moffett tonight, heading along the Texas coast on the 1,500-ton destroyer he boarded at New Orleans Thursday. He should contact the Potomac early tomorrow.

A clogged lubricating oil line on the Moffett forced the ship to drop anchor for several hours last night off Pilottown, where the Mississippi River empties into the Gulf below here.

Lieut. Comdr. A. H. Addoms reported by radio this afternoon to temporary White House headquarters, however, that the damage had been repaired and the ship was making satisfactory progress.

Assistant Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre moved his offices from New Orleans to Galveston tonight. Leaving on a night train, McIntyre and the White House party will have breakfast in Houston tomorrow morning, arriving at Galveston at 11 a. m. (E. S. T.).

Imports Far Ahead Of U. S. Exports

By the Associated Press.

United States purchases of foreign products increased faster than her export sales during the first three months of this year.

Reporting yesterday that this country's aggregate foreign trade rose sharply during the period, the Commerce Department said imports exceeded exports by $113,959,000. This compared with an import balance of $3,257,000 in the same months last year.

Rep. Rankin Acts To Make Shrine Of Court Building

Moving of the Supreme Court back into the Capitol and conversion of its present monumental home into the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Library is provided for in a resolution introduced yesterday by Representative John E. Rankin, of Mississippi.

"This is not an attack on the Supreme Court but quite the contrary," he explained. "From what I hear, I believe a majority of the justices desire to move back into the Capitol."

"It will be far less expensive," he asserted, "to maintain the court in the Capitol building, where we have ample space for that purpose. It seems to me that it is very essential that the court and the Congress remain under one roof."

Hamilton Outlines Non-Partisan Fight

By the Associated Press.

John Hamilton, Republican national chairman, indicated yesterday his forthcoming campaign against Roosevelt policies would be on a non-partisan basis, designed to carry into the 1938 Congressional elections.

He will make the first of four speeches on current issues tonight.

"From talks with party leaders and Republican members of Congress," Hamilton said, "and from what I've learned about the attitude of other members, I think I know pretty well the sentiment among those who disagree with Mr. Roosevelt's present state of mind."

GOVERNMENT HOUSE RUM HERE

HIGH QUALITY PROMISES PROSPERITY FOR VIRGIN ISLANDS, YOUNGEST U. S. COLONY

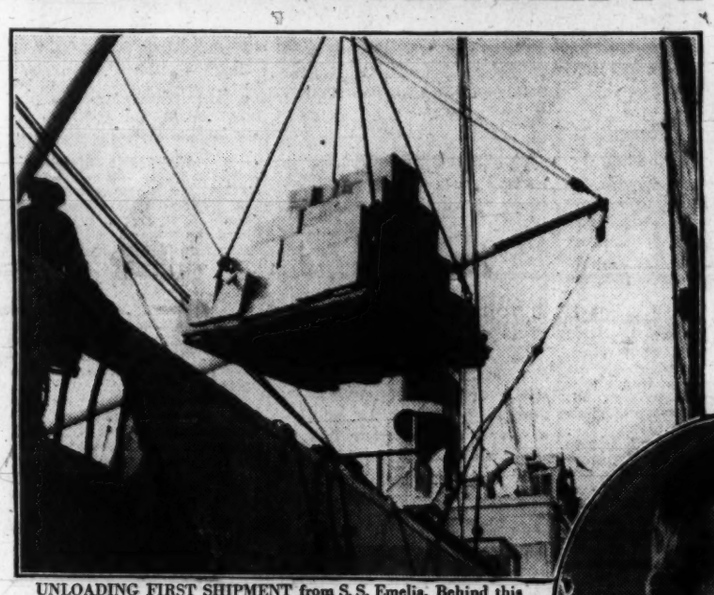
ON SALE IN WASHINGTON



UNLOADING FIRST SHIPMENT from S. S. Emelia. Behind this cargo is a 5-year fight to make an American colony self-supporting. "I AM PROUD that my company was the one selected to market Government House Rum. It is an excellent rum, with a clean, mellow taste—and I say this out of our long experience in importing wines and liquors," says W. L. Taylor (to right), Vice President of W. A. Taylor & Co. (founded 1888).

LATEST DISTILLING TECHNIQUE is used in all operations in the distillery (above). That's why the rum is so good.

Virgin Islanders declared a public holiday when the first shipment of Government House Rum sailed. That's how much it means to them. It's the climax of the 5-year effort to make the Islands self-supporting.

Soon after the United States bought the Virgin Islands from Denmark in 1917, prohibition cut off the Islands' income from their 200-year-old art of making their sugar cane into fine rum. Low point was 1932. Destitution was widespread.

Here's the Story Behind This Rum

Something had to be done. It was. The Federal emergency relief organization stepped in to put the Islands on a self-supporting basis, formed the Virgin Islands Company. Idea was to stop the need for growing Federal subsidies and give work instead of charity. First thing was to help natives produce sugar more efficiently. Next was to produce rum. Private capital was invited to set up a large scale distillery —was invited for 3 years. Private capital wasn't interested. Out of necessity, a distillery was bought, started operations in 1934. The idle of the Islands were called off relief rolls onto payrolls at honest work. The rum they've been making is called Government House, as fine a rum as distilling science knows how to produce.

DISTILLED DIRECTLY AND SOLELY FROM CANE JUICE
4/5 Quart ▮ 90 Proof

$1.85

What's Government House Rum Like?

It's not quite like Jamaica Rum—it's not quite like Cuban Rum, though resembling the Cuban gold type. Experts call it a "balanced" rum. It has a special and delicious taste of its own—it's made directly and solely from cane juice. It makes a wonderful Daiquiri or Rum Collins or Planters Punch—gives them a velvety extra flavor. In the Islands they say, "It's so smooth you can sip it as a liqueur."

Why It's Fine Rum

The sugar cane is rushed to the grinding mill at top speed —it's fresh juice that's piped to the distillery a few yards away. All pipes, vats, stills—all it touches—are sterilized with utmost care. So is the yeast. Because it's a unique product, the men who made it realized it would have to stand up under rigid scrutiny. They made it accordingly. They are confident it will.

Defense Expert Says Gun Fired at Close Range; Tests Assailed.

By the Associated Press.

New Castle, Ky., April 30.—Defense witnesses in the murder trial of Brig. Gen. Harry H. Denhardt testified today the death gun was "pressed closely" against the body of Verna Garr Taylor when fired.

Challenging at every turn previous testimony by Commonwealth witnesses, the defense fought to tear down the State's contention the widow was killed by the veteran of three wars.

Scientific testimony introduced by the defense was built around the defendant's contention that Denhardt's fiancee shot herself to death.

A defense witness, Mary Cole, told of seeing a cut on the general's finger the day after Mrs. Taylor died. The general yesterday said the blood on his overcoat came from this cut. The Commonwealth contended the blood got there at the time Mrs. Taylor was shot.

Defense experts attacked four points made by the Commonwealth.

Maj. Seth Wiard, of Washington, a ballistic expert, said the death gun was pressed against Mrs. Taylor's body when fired. State witness Dr. A. J. Miller, of the University of Louisville Hospital, said the revolver was held "more than 9 inches and probably more than 18" away from the woman's body when fired.

R. O. Sherberg, Chicago, Cook County chemist, said paraffin tests made by police were of "no value" because the general's hands had been washed between the time Mrs. Taylor's body was found and when the tests were made.

Three Witnesses Absolve Suspect In Mattson Case

By the Associated Press.

J. Edgar Hoover ended a four-month silence on the Mattson case yesterday to tell how Federal agents have taken several persons to Tacoma, Wash., and paraded them before three children—only witnesses to the crime.

He said the latest person to be cleared of any connection with the kidnap slaying of Charles Mattson was Jesse Ickes, of Deadwood, S. Dak.

Agents released Ickes at Tacoma yesterday, Hoover said, after William and Muriel Mattson, brother and sister of the victim, and Virginia Chatfield, a friend, said he was not the man.

The youngster, whose disappearance last December 27 shocked the Nation and started a coast-to-coast hunt, never was seen alive after a bearded stranger took him from the Mattson home. His beaten body was found in a snowbank near Everett, Wash., January 11.

Hundreds of persons from Maine to California have been questioned about the case but not until yesterday has it been made known that some of these were removed to the West Coast to be viewed by the children.

Jackson Is Sued For $51,650 Debt

Alleging Robert Jackson, said to have been former secretary to the Democratic National Committee, had failed to pay a long overdue note, William P. Husband, jr., commissioner of banks of Massachusetts, yesterday in District Court brought suit against him for a total of $51,650.09.

Jackson, who maintains an office in the Shoreham Building, is said to have borrowed $41,700 October 31, 1930, and agreed to pay back the money on May 1, 1931.

Some payments were made, Wilbert McInerney, attorney for the bank said, but declared there is now due the bank, with principal and interest, $51,650.09. The suit disclosed that stocks were sold, and that $5,055 was set off against the principal.

LAURA STRITTMATTER. MRS. HALLIE CULLINAN.

Alienation suit for $100,000 follows marital mixup at Detroit. Laura Strittmatter, on the stand during trial of suit filed by Mrs. Hallie Cullinan, of Washington and Detroit, testified Charles Cullinan told her he was divorced from plaintiff when they married in 1935.

Mate Hid Bride-to-Be in Bath, Balm Action of Wife Reveals

Detroit Suit Unfolds Meeting of Three in Washington Hotel, When Man's Second Spouse Attempted to Warn Girl.

By the United Press.

Detroit, April 30.—Details of how a twice-wedded bridegroom "yanked" his third bride-to-be into a hotel bathroom to hide from his undivorced wife was revealed today in the $100,000 alienation-of-affections suit against Laura Strittmatter.

The suit was brought by Mrs. Hallie M. Cullinan, Washington, who charges the comely stenographer stole the love and affections of her husband, Charles.

The hotel incident was revealed by Mrs. Carolyn Collins, Laura's 47-year-old sister and the first witness for the defense.

The bridal party, including Laura, Charles, Mrs. Collins and a second sister, Mrs. Ann Young, were discussing the forthcoming wedding in a Washington hotel suite when interrupted by Mrs. Cullinan, who came to protest against a "bigamous" marriage.

"She had a tussle with Ann before she got into the room," Mrs. Collins testified. "She was quite excited and winded. We asked her to have a chair."

"Who told you to keep her out?" asked Harry J. Lippman, Mrs. Cullinan's attorney.

"Cullinan did. He said, 'Don't let that woman in,' after she had called. He said she was just a trouble maker and that she was here to do just what I said she would do—cause trouble."

Mrs. Collins said that when Cullinan, whom she described as "a great big 6-foot man," saw that Mrs. Cullinan was going to get in "he yanked my poor weak sister into the bathroom and locked the door."

"We were all talking at once," she testified, "and Ann said 'how do we know you are Mrs. Cullinan?' The woman showed us a newspaper clipping, and Ann said, 'well, who is Hallie?' Mrs. Cullinan's name was Margaret. Then the woman said that Hallie was just a nickname."

Cullinan, prior testimony has revealed, was divorced from Margaret H. Cullinan nine months before he married his second wife.

Mrs. Collins and Mrs. Young argued with the protesting wife, and she finally left. Cullinan and Laura came out of the bathroom.

"Then Cullinan said, 'she's done just as I expected her to do,' Mrs. Collins testified. "I said, 'by the way, what is her name?'" And he said, 'Margaret; Hallie is just a nickname.'"

Then, according to Mrs. Collins' testimony, Cullinan took Laura in his arms and said:

"I am not married and I am going to marry this lovely girl."

"Did that impress you," Lippman asked.

"Not particularly."

The trial recessed over the week-end. Miss Strittmatter probably will testify in her own defense Monday.

Group Will Protest Greenbelt 'Lay-offs'

A special committee last night was appointed by the Twenty-first District Democratic Club, of Prince Georges County, to confer with the Labor Relations Division of the Resettlement Administration on alleged discrimination and favoritism in layoffs of workers at the Greenbelt Housing project.

Appointment of the committee followed a stormy session, during which the charges were pressed by men employed at the low-cost housing development.

Among charges made last night were that all nonunion men must go, that Maryland men were discharged and the State never has had its full quota of workers there; that reports employes, in some cases, were forced to "kick back" part of their pay to foremen and superintendents and that baseball players are often given preference over others.

Tax Adjustment Asked.

The Rock Creek Ginger Ale Co., of this city, asked the Board of Tax Appeals yesterday to redetermine a $12,129 deficiency assessed on 1925 income and excess profits taxes. The company contended the Bureau of Internal Revenue erroneously disallowed a $70,000 deduction in salaries and in failing to find an overpayment of $843.

Final Effort Made to Save Holdup Killer

Jordon Taken to Court and Required to Name Attorneys.

In a desperate last-ditch fight to save the slightly built, pun- Thomas Jordan from the electric chair at the District Jail May 14 for the slaying of Mrs. Elizabeth S. Jaynes, in the Garden-T-Shoppe holdup in April, 1931, Attorneys Harry T. Whelan and John H. Holzworth yesterday took their first step when they produced Jordan in District Court and formally required him to name his attorneys.

Previous to that, Jordan, who weighs about 140 pounds and is less than 5 feet 6 inches tall, had been found guilty of participating in the robbery in which Mrs. Jaynes lost her life and in which the Garden-T-Shoppe was robbed. His conviction was affirmed by the Appellate Court and only recently President Roosevelt publicly announced he would not intervene.

The attorneys said yesterday they were basing their appeal now on the discovery of new evidence that would have, in their opinion, worked in favor of Jordan in his trial. They say they have uncovered the original police descriptions of the robbers. On that, they said, Jordan's stature would have freed him, since the descriptions stated the highwaymen were tall and light in complexion, while he (Jordan) is slight and dark.

The appeal took the form of a request by the attorneys to have the United States Court of Appeals direct Justice F. Dickinson Letts to order a new trial. The argument on the motion, according to Holzworth, will be presented to the Appellate Court either Monday or Tuesday. Meantime, Jordan, who has been reprieved three times, remains in the death row at the jail.

Jordan was arrested shortly after the slaying and was freed after being questioned by police. Several years later he wrote to United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett inquiring if it would be safe for him to return here, inasmuch as he intended to get married.

When they come to Austria for their honeymoon they will revisit the Dalmatian coast, where they sailed aboard the yacht Nahlin last summer before the storm of the abdication crisis broke.

Astronomers to Work Inside Largest Telescope in World

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, April 30.—Albert Einstein and 100 other scientists today watched the last bolt placed in the tube which will carry the 200-inch telescope mirror, and they learned the great tube is going to be the world's first "sky cage."

It will not only house the big glass eye that will see a billion light years out into space, but its crew of astronomers will do everything but sleep in the moving tube.

As the tube swings across the sky, astronomers, tiny as mannikins in comparative size, will work in a cage at its upper end, in a basket hanging beneath its bottom and in a big cylindrical room alongside its middle.

The telescope and its problems are so vast that for the first time the astronomical observers cannot readily stand outside and look through.

The telescope itself, as outlined in today's ceremonies, will be in some respects a more wonderful thing than any of the sights yet caught of stars and distant nebulae. The tube completed today weighs 75 tons, is a steel framework the bulk of a six-room house, and when its "top" is bolted on will weigh 87 tons and be as tall as a six-story building.

Yet the pressure of a child's hand will be able to swing this giant structure to and fro on its axis when it is finally mounted.

Completed and set up on Mount Palomar, Calif., the telescope alone will be a steel structure four and a half stories high, its tube when turned upright capable of thrusting the astronomer riding its top seven to eight stories above the ground.

The astronomer riding the top will look directly at rays focussed from the 200-inch mirror 55 feet below him in the bottom of the tube. In the middle of the great mirror is a hole 40 inches wide, and beneath this will be swung a basket in which other astronomers can ride. They will see the objects in the mirror after reflection back from near the top of the tube, down through the hole in the mirror.

The third crew of astronomical riders will be half way down the tube, to one side, where they can see reflections of stars brought from the big mirror by right-angled mirror arrangements.

Woman Ordered Held On Charge of Theft

Mary Lucille Sheckles, 28, was ordered held for the grand jury yesterday on charges of housebreaking, by Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court.

She was arrested by Detective Van Hughes, charged with trying to sell a fur coat reported missing from the home of Elizabeth Rickard, 2905 Mills avenue southeast, to a second-hand store for $10.

She pleaded not guilty. Bond was set at $500.

Court Exonerates Accused 'Masher'

After he testified he merely had asked where a downtown hotel was located, Edgar Bolstrad, of Alexandria, was exonerated in police court yesterday of disorderly conduct charges which specified he had tried to "flirt."

Bolstrad told Judge Edward M. Curran he tried to keep pace with a young woman at Seventeenth and M streets to ask her where the hotel was. He added he had parked his car there. That, he testified, was the extent of his conversation.

Present laws adequately protect women from molestation by men, Curran held, without the added clause of "disorderly conduct," which penalizes those who "follow and attempt to engage in conversation" girls they do not know. He dismissed the charges on the grounds the clause was invalid.

Plight of D. C. Air Fields Laid To Commission

Representative Dingell Hits Inactivity, Says Ports Are 'Lakes.'

By James D. Secrest.

Deploring the lack of an adequate airport for the National Capital, Representative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan, yesterday criticized the Washington Airport Commission for inactivity, in a speech on the House floor.

He exhibited newspaper photographs of Washington Airport, Bolling Field and the Naval Air Station to the House members and referred to them as lakes.

An ardent aviation enthusiast himself, Dingell warned the House that unless a suitable airport is built serious accidents may occur at any time and that the responsibility will be upon Congress for neglecting to remedy the situation.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the airport commission, declined to comment on the criticism other than to say that the commission had not met for the last two months due to the illness of Frederic A. Delano, a member of the commission.

Demands Action.

Stating that he wished to call attention of the House "to a matter of very great importance," Dingell said:

"I am not one disposed to criticize the actions of a committee, but I do believe that when a committee has been charged by the House to co-operate with similar committee from the Senate, it should undertake to produce some action in eliminating a hazard that stares every member in the face every time they undertake to travel by air."

Waving pictures taken of the airport during the flood this week, Dingell said that the Washington Airport "was under water from six inches to four feet for the last 48 hours." Bolling Field and the Naval Air Station, he added, "are nothing more or less than lakes."

Cites First Lady's Trip.

"It is not news to any one of us to know that the First Lady was obliged to go to Baltimore to board her ship in order to go to the Northwest," he said.

"There was not an available field in the entire Washington area, and here it is the Capital of the United States, one of the greatest cities in the world, where officials of the Government are dependent upon hurried departure, and yet we have not an airport worthy of the name in this locality.

"We have a committee having at its disposal unlimited funds, and this committee has not yet brought in any report. Every day, every hour that we permit this situation to remain, we are risking the lives of the membership of the House and making the day of reckoning so much nearer.

"It is my purpose to call the attention of the House to the fact that this delay must not be countenanced much longer. We will waken some morning to find a tragedy occurring across the river, but in the meantime, tragedy or no tragedy, the City of Washington and this Nation is entitled to have an airport in the City of Washington second to none, and it is with that objective I rise at this time to address the House."

Norris to Offer Bill Creating 8 'TVA' Areas

tion of soil erosion and the maximum amount of power."

President Roosevelt has expressed views sufficiently similar to these in the past to lead to the belief he will accept the Norris bill as the Administration measure.

Although power is only a phase of such a program, it is distinctly a major phase. Its importance in Norris' mind was emphasized yesterday when he stressed again his opposition to pooling of private and public power.

"I am not against pooling of private company with private company," he added. "Or public power and public power. But private power is produced for profit and public power for the general good. Like oil and water, the two won't mix."

He said he knew of no prospective legislation on that subject at this session of Congress, or of impending power legislation of any kind other than the bill he is working on.

Areas Not Outlined.

Although Norris was unable yesterday to give definitely the boundaries of the areas in which the new district authorities would be set up, some clew to them is provided in the water planning districts into which the Nation was divided by the National Resources Board's water committee last year for purposes of its report.

These were, other than the Tennessee Valley, the New England, North and Middle Atlantic—which extended from up-State New York through South Carolina and from the Atlantic to the Appalachians—the Ohio, the Southeast, the Lower Mississippi, Western Gulf, Southwest Mississippi Basin, Upper Mississippi Basin, the Great Lakes, Missouri Basin, Rio Grande, Colorado Basin, Great Basin—including Idaho, much of Utah and part of Oregon—the California, and the Pacific Northwest districts.

Several of these are readily susceptible to combination, at least for administrative purposes, notably the Far-Western basins, the Upper Mississippi, the Great Lakes, and the Missouri basins, and the Western Gulf and the Southwest Mississippi Basin, and the two Atlantic Coast districts. Some of these, in fact, were combined in other Resources Board studies.

$477,924 Is Added To D. C. Estimates

While hearings on the District supply bill still were unscheduled by the Senate sub-committee on appropriations, the Budget Bureau yesterday sent to the Senate $477,924 in supplemental and deficiency estimates.

Only $11,820, however, is intended to be included in the regular supply bill. That amount is to pay personnel at the new adult Tuberculosis Hospital, at Glenn Dale, Md.

The remaining $431,551.80 is expected to be added to the second deficiency bill when it reaches the Senate. The largest supplemental estimate, $150,000, was necessitated by the rise in building costs.

A third item was a deficiency fund of $34,552.59.

The Budget Bureau said bids received recently by the District Commissioners indicated the additional money will be needed to carry out the following building projects: Lafayette, Truesdell, Grimke, Paul Junior High and the Eastern High School addition.

Group Chosen To Make Study On Auditorium

Commission Names Ickes Chairman; General Problem Discussed.

The Capital Auditorium Commission, holding its first meeting yesterday, decided to set up a subsidiary advisory committee to make the authorized studies of sites, building costs and financing.

Secretary Ickes, of the Interior Department, was elected chairman of the five-man commission and C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of the National Capital Parks, was named secretary of the commission and chairman of the advisory committee.

Other members of the committee will be named within a few day by Secretary Ickes. One member will be chosen from each of the following agencies: The National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Procurement Division of the Treasury Department, the Fine Arts Commission and the District government.

This advisory committee, it was explained, will have no authority to make decisions, but will report its findings to the commission at an early date.

Headquarters of the committee will be maintained in Finnan's office.

The decision to set up the subsidiary group was reached, it was said, because of the necessity for speed and the lack of money.

Congress directed the commission to make its report at the present session, but provided no appropriation to conduct the inquiry.

Secretary Ickes told the commission that even though money will be needed to prepare reports, the National Parks Service will be able to do the work without calling upon Congress for funds.

ThirdEconomy Plan Presented As Rifts Widen

budget estimates, but was $25,037,000 higher than last year's strictly military appropriation.

The House refused to accept a 25 per cent cut by the Senate in the second deficiency bill. On request of Representative Woodrum the bill was sent to conference with the Senate, which had trimmed it from $1,655,000 to $1,250,000. The bill carried funds for the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Railroad Retirement Board, the Mint, and other agencies.

A movement gained headway in the House to bring out the Administration's crop insurance bill, recently thrust aside with other farm legislation under impetus of retrenchment. The plan is to cut the insurance fund, experimentally applicable to wheat, to $30,000,000. This would provide funds for one crop year, "even a bad one," instead of the original $100,000,000 for three years.

Representative Woodrum announced his new economy proposal, after he had warned the House not to "get hysterical and dramatic" about retrenchment. He had just protested the Senate's 25 per cent cut in the $1,655,000 second deficiency bill and had it sent to conference.

Woodrum pointed to the "need of rigid economy," but he told the House "it is necessary that we make adequate appropriations for necessary expenditures."

To Review All Grants.

Then the Virginia Appropriations committeeman advised reporters that as soon as all regular supply bills have been reported he will ask the Appropriations Committee for authority to reconvene his independent offices sub-committee and review all appropriations ordered.

"I will ask them to do the same thing on every appropriation bill," Woodrum said. "We will call in the Director of the Budget and go over every appropriation made—save 5 cents here and a dollar there. That is the intelligent way to cut. Then we can bring out a special resolution, and either impound or repeal the amount of the cut."

The Woodrum plan is the third major Congressional proposal for economy. Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, started the movement with a plan for 10 per cent "mandatory" cuts in appropriations. Representative Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee, followed with a 15 per cent impounding proposal, which would give the President "discretion" to restore up to the full amount.

Woodrum Opposes Matching.

Woodrum later vehemently opposed both the Byrnes' "mandatory" plan and the 15 per cent proposal of his colleague, Cannon.

"I am against both of them," said Woodrum. "I am not going to vote authority for some department head to make the cuts, and I am opposed to any arbitrary reduction down the line. I am ready to go the full route on economy, but the intelligent way is for us to make the cuts, and that is what my plan provides. I will bring it up as soon as the third deficiency bill is completed."

Woodrum has called WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins to appear before his deficiency subcommittee next Wednesday on the Budget Bureau's $1,500,000,000 estimate for relief. He said the estimate will be cut to $1,000,000,000 "if the committee follows my advice."

Hull Opposes Cut in Quota Of Sugar Imports From Cuba

Secretary Attacks Domestic Refiners and Says All Restrictions on Processed Product May Be Found Undesirable.

He recalled that the eliminated provision would have permitted reallocation of any part of the full duty share of its quota not utilized by the Philippine Islands, and pointed out that under the expiring Jones-Costigan act the Philippines had not used any part of the full duty portion of its quota.

Roosevelt Trip Cited.

He called attention to the President's trip to South America "to give emphasis to our desire * * * to improve our friendships with the other American Republics." He said Congressional action such as he suggested "would give a practical demonstartion of the 'Good Neighbor' policy," since the Latin-American countries, aside from Cuba, receive 95.5 per cent of the full duty quota and would profit from the possible reallocations.

Cuba has "scrupulously" lived up to her undertakings in regard to quantitative restrictions on United States goods under the trade agreement, the Secretary said, adding that "the United States agreed to a similar commitment with respect to products from Cuba described in the agreement. Sugar is one of these products."

Meanwhile, with regard to the sugar import situation, Samuel Wilder King, delegate from Hawaii, addressed a letter to Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee and Chairman Jones of the House Agriculture Committee, asking that Hawaii "be accorded its just position as an integral and inseparable part of the United States."

It protested against inclusion in the permanent legislation of the old discriminations against Hawaii as an "offshore" territory as distinguished from a section of "continental United States," and laid to Eastern refiners the opposition to granting Hawaii the recognition sought.

The letter termed "amazing" the "principle that if a territory of the United States is separated from the continent by salt water, then discrimination against it is justified," and added:

"Decent standards of public morality * * * dictate that these people, who surrendered their sovereignty to this country because they believed in its principles and ideals and wished to become a part of it, a people who have paid $150,000,000 more in taxes to the Federal Government than they have received in appropriations from it, should receive equal treatment with all other people under our Constitution and flag."

Hopkins Claims Fish Really Was That Big

By the Associated Press.

PWA Administrator Harold L. Ickes and WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins are at it again.

Yesterday morning Ickes told reporters Hopkins caught a tarpon on their recent trip to Florida "that weighed 100 or 110 pounds—according to how you looked at it."

"That fish weighed 110 pounds, no matter how you looked at it."

Gray Starts Drive On 'Repossession Racketeers' Here

A new campaign to rid Washington of alleged "repossession racketeers," was begun yesterday by Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray.

Declaring the city's citizens are being gouged of thousands of dollars annually by ficitous charges," Gray said he would soon bring a test case in an attempt to have the courts rule that "any man who repossesses a car must be a licensed detective."

Should the courts hand down such a ruling, said Gray, Elwood Seal, corporation counsel, will be asked to draft a set of regulations designed "to safeguard the individual by requiring that all finance companies be financially responsible, and also, registration of all property repossessed."

Traffic Halted an Hour As Bridge Power Fails

Traffic piled up for several blocks on both sides of the Anacostia Bridge on Eleventh street southeast yesterday afternoon, when the bridge mechanism failed, leaving the draw open for nearly an hour and a half.

A power failure was responsible for the failure, which occurred at 3:12 and delayed much of the rush-hour traffic. According to G. L. Brooks, bridge operator, constant vibration had worn away sections of the electrical cables. In replacing the worn wires, a power failure developed.

Sculler Is Run Down By Hit-Run Launch

Boston, April 30 (AP).—A hit-run motor boat late today ran down a Harvard student who was sculling in the Charles River near the Watertown Arsenal.

The student, Robert J. Cumming, 20, of Bangor, Me., swam ashore and was taken to a hospital where he was treated for back lacerations. Cumming told police he was struck from behind and never saw the boat that hit him. His scull was smashed.

Mrs. Sarah Smith's Funeral Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Ware Smith, 92, who died yesterday after a long illness, will be held at her home, 1652 Argonne place at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Wilmington, Del., Monday.

Mrs. Smith, for the last nine years a Washington resident, came here from Wilmington. Her father, the late Charles Alexander Ware, is said to have been mayor of Alexandria, Va., during the Civil War.

Her husband, the late Maj. S. Rodmond Smith, served in the Union Army during the Civil War, and later practiced law in Wilmington and Miami, Fla.

C. I. Sparks Dies; In House 2 Terms

Former Representative Charles I. Sparks, 65 (Republican), of the Sixth Kansas District, died yesterday at his home in Goodland, Kans., according to an Associated Press dispatch.

He served two terms in the House, coming in on the Hoover landslide of 1928 and going out on the Roosevelt landslide of 1932.

Born in Jackson Township, Boone County, Iowa, he attended Simpson College and the State University of Iowa. He practiced law in Boone County from 1896 to 1906, and for three of those years was prosecuting attorney. He moved to Goodland, Kans., in 1907 to practice law, served as judge of the Thirty-fourth District from 1915 to 1927.

He was married in 1895 to Ida D. Roberts, and they had three children—Mrs. Catherine Cingler and Charles A. and Clarence R. Sparks.

3 British Army Planes Collide in Air; Pilot Dies

Soberton, Hampshire, England, April 30 (AP).—A Royal Air Force pilot was killed and two others escaped in parachute jumps today when three military planes crashed in midair. One plane flying above the formation nose-dived into the other two.

The crash was the twenty-fifth fatal Royal Air Force accident this year, and caused the forty-seventh fatality. There were 54 accidents and 96 deaths for the whole year of 1936.

'Loyalty' Topic Of Dr. Pruden At First Baptist

Program Will Be Given at Central Mission's Children's Home.

Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. services in First Baptist Church tomorrow on "Loyalty Rewarded" and in the evening on "A Word of Assurance."

Ethel Williams and a group from the Euzelian Class will give a program at the children's emergency home, Central Union Mission, today.

New church officers, who assumed duties May 1, are Elgin Smith, moderator; John H. Shouse, clerk; Jordan R. Bentley, treasurer; Henry A. Hefley, financial secretary, and Charles W. Morgan, B. Y. P. U. director. Mr. Bentley also will serve as Sunday school superintendent.

Metropolitan. Dr. John Compton Ball, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. services on "God's Grace." In the evening he will give a message on "Who Owns You?" Baptismal service will follow the evening sermon.

Chevy Chase Baptist. "The Other Side of the Cross" will be the communion meditation of the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor, tomorrow morning. In the evening he will give a sermon on "Playing in the Mrket Place."

Hyattsville. The Rev. B. P. Robertson, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Making and Training of the Disciples of Jesus." At 8 p. m. the sermon will be on "The Stewardship of Life."

Fifth. Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor, will preach at both services tomorrow. The 11 a. m. theme will be "The Gift of the Holy Spirit." At 7:45 p. m. the subject will be "The Glory of the Second Place."

Takoma Park. The Rev. William E. LaRue, pastor, speaks at the morning service on "The Holy Spirit." At the evening hour the monthly songfest will be held, the entire service being devoted to the singing of favorite hymns.

Silver Jubilee For Rev. Daniels

The Rev. Thomas Daniels, pastor of the Greek Orthodox Church of Saints Constantine and Helen, Sixth and C streets southwest, tomorrow will celebrate his silver jubilee as a priest and his seventeenth year as pastor of that church.

In honor of the occasion, Father Daniels has composed a special prayer for the American people in general and flood sufferers and President Roosevelt in particular, which he will offer, at the 1 a. m. Easter mass next Sunday.

According to the new calendar, the Greek Orthodox Easter comes late this year, on next Sunday, May 2. Under the Julian calendar hitherto used, Easter was never celebrated after St. George's Day, April 23. As, however, the Greek Orthodox Church has adopted the Gregorian calendar, Easter came after April 23 this year. The change necessitated proclamations by King George II of Greece, the Ecumenical Patriarch of Constantinople and Archbishop Athenagoras, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in America, postponing the celebration of St. George's Day from April 23 to May 3, the day after the Orthodox Easter. This was done because St. Georges' Day is a feast day and could not be celebrated during Lent.

Adult Class to Hear Rabbi Silverstone

Rabbi George Silverstone, of Tifereth Israel Congregation, will speak before the adult class in comparative religions at All Souls' Unitarian Church at 10 a. m. tomorrow. His subject will be "The Book of Ezekiel."

At the 11 a. m. service the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, D. D., pastor, will preach on "Friend of God or Enemy?"

The Joseph Priestley Conference will have its annual meeting in the church next Friday. Speakers will include Dr. Frederick R. Griffin, of Philadelphia; the Rev. Edwin M. Slocombe, Lynchburg, Va., and Robert Lincoln O'Brien, of Washington.

Universalist National Memorial. "Light Bearers" is the subject on which the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, D. D., pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Dr. C. I. Hendrickson, of the land economics division, Department of Agriculture, will speak to the Optimist Club Tuesday night on "How Should We Manage Our Land."

Anniversary Tomorrow.

Young people of Memorial United Brethren Church will observe the forty-seventh anniversary of the founding of the United Brethren youth movement tomorrow. In connection with the observance the Rev. S. B. Daugherty, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. on "Torch Bearers in the Procession." Young people will present a service on the theme, "The Church Victorious," at 7:30 p. m.

Mission to Be Opened.

The Rev. Joseph Lawler, C. M., of St. Vincent's Seminary, Germantown, Pa., will open a one-week mission in Fort Meade, Md., Post Chapel at 7 p. m. tomorrow. The Rev. S. J. Ryczek, U. S. Army chaplain, will take part in daily services throughout the week.

Retreat Master Named.

The Rev. Joseph J. Leary, pastor of St. Francis DeSales Church at Benedict, Md., will be retreat master at an evening of recollections for women of that church and of St. James' Parish in Mount Rainier, Md., Thursday night in the Washington Retreat House, 4000 Harewood road northeast.

Dr. Hunt to Talk.

Dr. H. A. Hunt, of the Farm Credit Administration, will speak at the meeting of the Presbyterian Ministers Association of Washington and vicinity at 11 a. m. Monday in New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. His subject will be "Rural Work in the South."

Private Novena Slated.

Today's Sermon

Underwood & Underwood.

By the Rev. Albert P. Shirkey,
Pastor, Francis Asbury M. E. Church, South.

The gate through which most of our lasting impressions come is the eye gate. What glory! What shame! What sacrifice! What love! our eyes have looked upon. Each scene has left its mark upon the soul. How may one make the eye an instrument of good? The answer is plain. Look in the right direction. Immortal soul, arise and look unto Jesus! Here is life to the full and joy in abundance.

Looking within I see how far I have missed the mark. My sins are like the sands upon the shore for number. My heart is cold. Surely goodness and truth are far from me. Lord, have mercy upon me, a sinner.

Looking without my spirit pants for that which satisfies, but I find it not. My soul is hungry, but things do not feed me. I have put my trust in friends. They have failed me. Surely, Lord, there is no earthly refuge for my soul.

Looking above—lo, here is my rest and portion. I see Thee, Lord high, and holy, and lifted up and my soul rejoices. O conqueror of life and death, Rose of Sharon, Lily of the Valley, Thou art altogether lovely among ten thousand! Thou art beautiful beyond all beauties! Be Thou forever before my eyes. In life, in death, may I be found looking unto Thee.

Baptists of City Seek Changes In Constitution

Broader Basis to Be Object of Columbia Group Meeting.

Discussion of a new constitution aimed to broaden and place on a more permanent basis the work of the Baptist churches in Washington, will feature the sixtieth annual meeting of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches to be held in the Metropolitan Baptist Church, Sixth and A streets northeast, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The proposed constitution would change the name of the organization to "The District of Columbia Baptist Convention." It calls for Christian effort "through evangelistic, missionary, educational and benevolent work;" also for co-operation 'in the Christian enterprises" of both the Northern and the Southern Baptist conventions, and for "closer fellowship and a more effective co-operation" among the churches here, as well as "harmony of feeling and concert of action on the part of all the Baptists throughout the Nation." The report will be presented Tuesday afternoon by E. Hilton Jackson, chairman of the constitution committee. E. B. Shaver, moderator, will preside at the sessions.

Senator Logan, of Kentucky, will be among the prominent denominational leaders to address the association. He will speak Tuesday evening, "young people's and Sunday School night," on the importance of Bible school for men. Dr. Jos. A. Cooper, New York, of the Northern Baptist Convention, and Dr. Walter P. Binns, Roanoke, Va., of the Southern Baptist Convention, will speak at the closing session Wednesday evening, when Dr. John E. Briggs, of the Fifth Baptist Church, will present the report from the committee on missions. Reports on all Baptist activities in the District will be presented at the various sessions.

Starting Monday evening, when the annual sermon will be preached by the Rev. Clarence R. Ferguson, Wisconsin Avenue, on the theme "By the Upper Room," the sessions will continue Tuesday morning with election of officers, reports from the committee on exercises by Dr. John Compton Ball, Metropolitan; advisory board, by Dr. F. W. Johnson, Grace; and Baptist Bible School, by Dr. E. E. Richardson, Congress Heights.

'The Future' Is Topic.

"The Future" will be the subject of the address by the minister, the Rev. H. Gordon Burroughs, at the Church of Two Worlds at the Hotel Continental at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Miss Edith Martin, soprano, will be the soloist. New members who joined the church during April will be received into church fellowship at this service.

Traffic Death Mark in April Sets New Low

period of the previous year. The Post is to be congratulated for its efforts to keep traffic safety matters before the public and if conditions continue to improve, we will have an outstanding year."

He pointed out that pedestrian deaths remain the city's major problem. Two persons killed were struck while attempting to cross streets not at crosswalks, he said.

And in an effort to facilitate rush-hour movement along the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway, Van Duzer announced yesterday that a one-way-traffic system will be inaugurated Wednesday.

Between New Hampshire avenue and P streets, traffic along the parkway will be southbound only from 8 to 9:30 a. m., and northbound between 4 and 6 p. m. Northbound movement only will be permitted on Saturdays from 12:30 to 1:30 p. m.

Patrolman Suspended.

New policies of rigid traffic enforcement and heavy penalties for offenders contributed much toward Washington's improved safety record, officials agreed last night.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, said strict control methods would continue as the keynote of traffic law enforcement. Throughout all police precincts members of Maj. Brown's command have been ordered to concentrate on traffic problems.

Inspector William H. Holmes has taken personal command of the department's entire traffic units.

Meanwhile, Policeman Welford E. Winfield, formerly attached to the Traffic Division, yesterday was served with 22 charges alleging irregularities in handling traffic ticket adjustments.

Maj. Brown, after signing the charges—based on so-called "fixing" complaints from outside the Police Department—set a hearing date for May 11.

Winfield, until his transfer several weeks ago, was assigned to adjust complaints received by motorists who were "ticketed" for traffic violations.

Accusations against Winfield followed a lengthy investigation of "fixing" reports throughout the department. The inquiry was headed by Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, police executive officer.

Permit suspensions and revocations were ordered yesterday against the following motorists:

Richard J. Brizzi, 510 Fifth street northwest, revoked; Julius G. Cohen, 4605 Ninth street northwest, suspended; Wilford R. Dauplaise, 1421 Columbia road northwest, suspended; Coley Davis, 942 Twenty-sixth street northwest, suspended; Vernon Paul Derr, 623 Fifteenth street northeast, revoked.

Other Permit Orders.

William H. Dowell, 4622 Wisconsin avenue northwest, revoked; Carl E. Fontanini, 3719 Twelfth street northeast, revoked; George Giancoli, 232 East Capitol street, suspended; Irving G. Gill, 636 Ninth street northeast, revoked; John C. Harris, 933 N street northwest, revoked.

Robert E. Hurley, 1208 S street northeast, revoked; McClellen Jeffries, 1832 Eleventh street northwest, revoked; John W. Johnson, 2718 Olive avenue northwest, suspended; Joseph E. Jones, 4550 Connecticut avenue northwest, revoked.

Charles E. Lane, 420 Fifteenth street southeast, suspended; William D. Mahoney, 103 Fifteenth street southeast, revoked; Edward P. Conn, Arlington, Va., revoked; Henry Robinson, 1704 Vermont avenue northwest, suspended; Edward P. Rowzee, 1617 Isherwood place northwest, suspended; John G. Schlosser, Jr., Bethesda, Md., revoked; Lloyd E. Simmons, 2013 New Hampshire avenue northwest, suspended; Ethel Terrell, 132 U street northeast, suspended; Joseph T. Tomlinson, 1221½ D street northeast, suspended.

5 D.C. Applicants Given Rosenwald Fund Fellowships

Five of thirty fellowship awards by the Julius Rosenwald Fund, made to colored students, were won by Washingtonians, according to announcement made yesterday by Edwin B. Embree, president. Applicants in the colored group numbered 540. Announcement of awards among 300 white applicants, from the South, will be made later. The awards average $1,500, and are made for advanced study and experience to persons of unusual achievement and promise in any field.

Successful candidates from the Nation's Capital were:

Mrs. Otis Holley Berry, for study of music and development of voice at the Fontainebleau School of Music, France.

Mary Adelaide Morton, of Howard University, for study of psychological factors in the learning process, at the University of Chicago.

Hilda Lawson, for study of Oriental literature, at the University of Illinois.

Charles Edward Weir, of Howard University, for research in nuclear chemistry and quantum mechanics, at the California Institute of Technology.

Will Mercer Cook, of Atlanta University, for study of the Negro in French literature, in Paris and in the French colonies.

Federal Employe, Retiring, Praised By Secretary Hull

William McNeir, chief of the Bureau of Accounts, Department of State, retired yesterday after 60 years of Government service, 55 in the State Department.

In presenting McNeir with a silver punch bowl, Secretary of State Cordell Hull said:

"After 55 years of service in the Department of State you are about to retire into private life. Your friends in the department and in the Foreign Service of the United States, deeply regretting the severance of their agreeable official relations with you, desire on the occasion to give visible evidence of their high personal regard for you."

100 Reds Held in Korea.

Seoul, Korea, April 30 (AP).—More than 100 persons have been arrested throughout the peninsula for attempting to organize Communist labor unions, it was revealed today.

Boy Seriously Injured.

Hagerstown, April 30.—David N. Mowen, 7, was seriously injured last night when a car driven by C. Titus Mentzer reportedly ran upon the sidewalk and struck the youth.

Many of the Espana's officers reportedly were Germans and Italians.

The destruction of the 25-year-old battleship, bristling with guns ranging from 3-inch to 12-inch, was a major blow to the rebel reign of terror in the Bay of Biscay where Franco's naval blockade threatened 400,000 Basque men, women and children with starvation.

Fleet to Aid Refugees.

London, April 30.—Great Britain and France announced tonight that their warships will protect the evacuation of thousands of women, children and other non-combatants from the terror-stricken Basque capital of Bilbao. The decision to rescue the Basque civilians from the shambles where thousands have been killed in the path of Gen. Emilio Mola's assault on Bilbao carried three conditions:

1. Only women, children, invalids and men over military age will be evacuated.

2. No discrimination for "political reasons" must be shown in the selection of refugees.

3. British and French warships will not enter Spanish territorial waters or carry any refugees but will protect refugee boats on the high seas.

Basque authorities, pleading for immediate action on the removal of the non-combatants, said that the lives of between 150,000 and 200,000 persons were endangered.

The British and French openly condemned the slaughter of defenseless civilians. They ordered investigations of charges that 4,000 women, children and old men were killed in and around the Basque "holy city" of Guernica, and of reports that Mola intends to wipe out Bilbao with his planes and seige guns.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in the House of Commons, and French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, in the Chamber of Deputies, announced the impending inquiries.

Spanish Loyalist Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez Del Vayo arrived in Paris by airplane today—supposedly to help arrange the Bilbao evacuations.

Madrid Still Shelled.

Madrid, April 30 (AP).—Sinking of the insurgent warship Espana by government airmen in the Bay of Biscay today brought rejoicing but no relief from bombardment to tired Madrid. Insurgents again poured shells into the center of the city, killing 2 persons and wounding 14.

U. S. to Build Warships.

American naval officers went ahead last night with plans to build two $60,000,000 battleships, contending that the sinking of a Spanish warship by airplane bombs yesterday was no real test of modern sea fighters.

They said the Espana, which Spanish government planes sent to the bottom, was a battleship in name only. It was 24 years old and had a tonnage of 15,452—far less than modern dreadnaughts.

The Espana's deck, Navy men pointed out, was protected only by 1½-inch armor plate, since the vessel was built in 1913 before airplanes assumed a major role in warfare. Every American battleship, they said, is protected by at least 3 inches of armor plate on their decks, and much heavier armor below the water line and in other vulnerable spots.

Dead Heroines 2 of 12 to Get Carnegie Honor

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, April 30.—Two women who lost their lives attempting to save others were among 12 persons honored today by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission in awarding 12 bronze medals and cash awards in recognition of acts of heroism.

The women whose heroism resulted in their deaths were Miss Gwendolyn I. Garvin, 25, of Augusta, Ga., and Miss Edna Margaret Joyce, 43, of Pittsburgh.

Miss Garvin drowned while making a futile attempt to rescue a girl from a similar fate at Granitesville, S. C., in 1936.

Miss Joyce, a patient in an institution at Rochester, Pa., was burned to death with another patient she attempted to rescue from a burning cottage in 1936. Miss Joyce had led five other patients from the flaming cottage.

Others Honored.

Others honored were:

Samuel Alpert, 30-year-old hairdresser, of Bronx, N. Y., who saved two women and a man from drowning.

Ernest G. Starck, 40-year-old school teacher, of Aurora, Ill., who rescued two boys and a man who broke through ice in deep water in the Fox River at Aurora.

Benedict A. Beilman, 20-year-old student of Aurora, Ill., who attempted to help Strack rescue the boys, but he also broke through the ice and was saved by Starck.

Eldridge Douglas Tanner, 24, a truck driver of Richmond, Va., who took his two companions from a flaming motor truck that had crashed at Laurel, Md. All three were critically burned and only Tanner recovered.

Taxi Driver Is Hero.

Luke H. Lancaster, 33-year-old taxicab driver of Parma, Ohio, who helped save two boys from drowning.

Robert F. Trappe, 22, a railroad inspector, of Parma, Ohio, who attempted to save the two boys who were rescued by Lancaster.

Thomas N. Brooks, 40-year-old farmer, of Blue Ridge, Tex., who rescued a man from a well.

Party Luncheon Today.

Senator Joseph Guffey, of Pennsylvania, and Wayne D. WWilliams, of the Department of Justice, will be quest speakers at the Democratic League luncheon today at 1 p. m. in the Grafton Hotel in honor of the Democratic National Committeeman Malcolm McConihe, and the chairman of the central committee, John B. Colpoys.

Constitution Declares Erin Is Independent

members would be chosen through adult suffrage.

De Valera abolished the former Senate a year ago on grounds that it frustrated the wishes of the people.

The new Senate would consist of 60 members, with 11 nominated by the taoiseach (prime minister) and 49 elected by the entire state.

Of the 49, 3 each would be elected by the National University and Dublin University. Others would be chosen to represent the following aspects of national life: Language, culture, education, agriculture, fisheries, organized and unorganized labor, industry, commerce, public administration and social service.

Except in case of invasion, war could be declared only with assent of the Dail.

The constitution affirms devotion to peace and friendly co-operation with other nations upon a foundation of international justice and morality.

Nobility Titles Prohibited.

A further breaking with British royalty, nobility and traditions is shown in a constitutional prohibition of titles of nobility.

Support of home life is pledged, and the constitution declares "no law shall be enacted providing for the grant of a dissolution of marriage."

Divorce in other states under civil laws would not be recognized in Ireland.

Another article of the constitution recognizes the special position of the Holy Catholic Apostolic and Roman Church as guardian of the faith as professed by a great majority of the citizens.

The state also recognizes the Church of Ireland, the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches in Ireland, the religious Society of Friends as well as Jewish congregations and other denominations in Ireland at the time the constitution becomes operative.

The present constitution of Ireland came into operation December 5, 1922, by royal proclamation of King George V.

It declared the Irish Free State (Saorstat Eireann) to be a co-equal member of the community of nations forming the British commonwealth of nations and that "all powers of government, and all authority, legislative, executive and judicial in Ireland are derived from the people of Ireland."

The executive authority was vested in the King and was exercisable in accordance with the law, practice and constitutional usage in the Dominion of Canada, by the representative of the crown who is styled the governor-general of the Irish Free State.

The president is appointed on nomination of the Dail Eireann and he nominates a vice president and other members of an executive council, who must be approved by the Dail.

Film Industry Threatened by Tie-up in Strike of Carpenters and Joiners, the musicians, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Truck Drivers, Chauffeurs and Teamsters Union, all American Federation of Labor affiliates.

With the exception of the musicians, all other members of the basic agreement were granted 10 per cent wage increases at the recent labor-producer conferences in New York. The new scale went into effect last Monday.

British to Back Strike.

London, April 30 (U.P.).—The British Actors' Equity will instruct its members to "boycott" Hollywood film studios in tacit support of the Screen Artists' Guild if the union goes on strike, it was announced tonight.

Noel Madison, treasurer of the guild, who is in London, said he received a cablegram from Robert Montgomery, actor and president of the Hollywood Guild, saying a strike had been called.

Radio Workers Strike.

Philadelphia, April 30 (AP).—Members of two locals of the United Electrical and Radio Workers Union employed at the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. and its affiliate, the Philco Radio & Television Corporation, went on strike today because negotiations for a new contract "had failed completely."

Reese Llewellyn, president of one of the locals, said 8,500 employes, including 5,000 women, answered the strike call.

A. F. L. Workers End Strike.

Parker Dam, Calif., April 30 (AP).—Unmolested by rival C. I. O. pickets, American Federation of Labor workers returned to jobs at the $10,000,000 Parker Dam today, ending a seven-day halt in construction.

After the A. F. L. signed a closed shop agreement with the dam builders, J. F. Shea Construction Co., yesterday, a C. I. O. leader warned that anyone returning to work would be treated "like any other scab." Today, however, C. I. O. leader J. P. Currie exhorted pickets over a loud speaker to avoid violence.

Spanish War Hatred to Mark May Day Observances Today

German, Italy, Japan Plan Workers' Holiday as Reds of Other Nations Prepare Anti-Fascist Protests; N. Y. to See Huge Parade.

By the United Press.

London (Saturday), May 1.—Bitter demonstrations against fascism will mark the celebration of May Day throughout Europe and parts of Asia today.

Hatred engendered by the Spanish civil war will dominate labor displays except in Germany, Italy and Japan, where they day will be observed as a national workers' holiday.

The Soviet Union will celebrate its greatest and happiest May Day since the war. Economic conditions are improving. "Trotskyism" seems to have been wiped out; the second five-year plan has been successfully completed and a third one is being planned.

In Moscow, Russia's tremendous mechanized army will dominate the display in historic Red Square. Dictator Josef Stalin and the Soviet's highest officials will review the parade. More than 1,000,000 proletarians will follow.

U. S. Mentioned In Red Manifesto.

The committee of the Communist International urged "revolutionary overthrow of world capitalism," with socialism to replace it, in a May Day manifesto printed in the newspaper Pravda. It mentioned the United States and France as nations in which it said capitalism had been "checked" by workers through organization.

Germany will celebrate its fifth May Day under Chancellor Adolf Hitler. Two million persons in Berlin alone will take part.

In Paris police and mobile guards prepared for gigantic Leftist and Rightist demonstrations under France's first Popular Front government. The occasion will be used by labor to manifest solidarity with the Spanish loyalists.

Britain Faces Unrest In Labor's Ranks.

Britain, preparing for King George's coronation May 12, faced May Day with increasing labor unrest sweeping the country.

Austria closed all cemeteries to prevent demonstrations at the graves of dead Socialists, Communists and Nazis. Strong guards were on emergency duty, to prevent Nazi displays.

Japan barred labor demonstrations because of the Diet elections Friday. The Chinese government declared martial law for the entire month in Shanghai to prevent disturbances.

Anti-Fascists Plan Biggest N. Y. May Day.

New York, April 30 (AP).—New York City tomorrow will see the greatest May Day parade in its history, the United May Day Committee estimated today. The police department has assigned 1,500 policemen to patrol the route. Union Square, as usual, will be the focal point of activities, three giant parades converging there with an estimated 50,000 German, Italian and Spanish anti-Fascists participating.

Chicago Is Prepared For May Day Violence.

Chicago, April 30 (AP).—Forty-two extra policemen were stationed tonight in strategic parts of Chicago's Loop to guard against May Day violence.

Boston Communists Plan Observance.

Boston, April 30 (AP).—The Communist and Socialist parties, for the first time in many years, will conduct a joint observance of May Day in Boston tomorrow.

Launch Operator Killed.

Boston, April 30 (AP).—Edwin Pratt, 18, of Boston, lost his life late today when his speeding powerboat swerved, pitched him out, threw him against an abutment of the Harvard Bridge and plunged him into the Charles River.

Cabinet Members Fight Alien Bills

By the United Press.

Congressional proposals to clamp down on immigration and arbitrarily deport some classes of aliens, encountered stiff opposition from Administration officials last night as contrary to President Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, in letters to a Senate Immigration sub-committee, turned thumbs down on four drastic anti-alien bills sponsored by Senator Robert R. Reynolds (Democrat), North Carolina, and Representative Joe Starnes (Democrat), Alabama.

Capital's Grocery Stores May Close Half Day a Week

The closing of grocery stores on Wednesday afternoons each week throughout the year was discussed by the representatives of several of the larger chain and independent grocery stores of Washington at a meeting at the Merchant and Manufacturers Association yesterday.

Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the association, stated that the majority of the store managers present were in favor of such a plan to give their employes a half holiday each week, as it had proven most satisfactory in several other cities where it had been tried.

The adoption of the Wednesday afternoon holiday depends upon its acceptance by the majority of the grocery stores of the city and suburban area. Another meeting of managers will be held next Friday.

Girl Is Attacked On Her Way Home

A 16-year-old Roosevelt High School girl told police she had been assaulted yesterday, as she was on her way home from school.

The attack, police were informed, occurred between Thirteenth street and Iowa avenue northwest. She described her assailant as being a tall, slender white man, apparently drunk.

The Democratic Way.

The commendable spirit in which collective bargaining machinery has been set up in the Packard company plant is the more notable because of the costly strikes that have afflicted other segments of the automobile industry. Instead of espionage and coercion on the one side, and illegal sit-down tactics on the other, there was in this case a quiet vote in which representatives of the United Automobile Workers of America were chosen to bargain for the employes. The union was approved by a 4-to-1 majority.

Union leaders are naturally inclined to emphasize the significance of the vote as an indication of their strength in other motor car plants. Spokesmen for the Committee for Industrial Organization, with which the U. A. W. A. is affiliated, contend that their overwhelming majority in the Packard plant reflects "the sentiment of automobile workers throughout the Nation." It will be remembered, however, that craft union activity in the Packard plant never attained the proportions it reached in the General Motors and Chrysler factories.

The important factors are that both sides welcomed the aid of the National Labor Relations Board in establishing the true technique of collective bargaining and that the board further enhanced its prestige as a fair and impartial mediator. Alvan Macauley, president of both the Packard Company and the Automobile Manufacturers Association, complimented the NLRB for "the efficient and completely impartial manner in which the election was held." That statement, together with the findings of the Supreme Court in upholding the Wagner act, should go a long way toward establishing in the public mind the board's reputation for fair and scientific service.

The growing prestige of the board is the more important because it will encourage other employers to welcome its services. When both employers and employes are ready to leave the question of worker representation to impartial balloting under the NLRB, the present strike wave will recede. Of course, this procedure implies as heavy an obligation upon the unions as upon the managements. The C. I. O. must also loyally accept the results of elections in plants where it does not have a majority.

If such a test proves the good faith of the C. I. O., as well as that of recalcitrant employers, the country will be well on the way toward actual establishment of the democratic principle in its industrial relationships.

Strong, But Unscientific.

In his address before the United States Chamber of Commerce, Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, delivered a panegyric in praise of individual enterprise and a philippic against state socialism. It is true, as Mr. Jordan points out, that few Americans realize the rapid strides which this country has made along the road that leads to state control and ownership of enterprises once strictly private in character. Mr. Jordan gave many in his audience some very valuable suggestions that will help to emancipate their thinking.

Unfortunately, in his deep resentment against New Deal policies, entailing increased State control over private industry, Mr. Jordan falls into the error of greatly exaggerating the benefits of unregulated competition as demonstrated in the past. Indeed, he talks as if all Americans formerly lived in an idyllic state of liberty, and are now fast becoming the slaves of an all-powerful government. He does not appear to recognize any middle ground between these two extremes.

On the contrary, he sees in the extension of governmental authority a plot engineered by the "jesting Pilates of politics who today exploit the ignorance and superstitions of the masses." He also regards the subversive ideas which in his opinion have undermined our system of free enterprise as European and Asiatic conceptions.

This picture of the contemporary American scene is sadly distorted by a lack of historical perspective. Economic and political philosophies are not the inventions of individuals. They grow out of changing economic and political conditions. New ideas take root only when the ground has been prepared for sowing. To discuss fairly and objectively the issues of the present day it is necessary, therefore, to have a little of the scientific spirit of the economic historian, though not enough to lead to passive acquiescence in whatever may come to pass.

Mr. Jordan himself, speaking of conditions in this country, says: "This is a revolution. You cannot compromise with a revolution; you can only co-operate with it or be liquidated by it." If that is his belief, he is doing the Chamber of Commerce a doubtful service by trying to stir up hostility toward authority through sweeping denunciation of acts and policies which, by his own admission, are in many cases irreversible.

A Blow To Fascist Hopes.

The sinking of the rebel battleship Espana by airplane bombing off Bilbao is an event of great importance, both technical and political.

Those who maintain that the airplane has superseded the battleship, and that command of the seas is now less vital to national security than command of the air, will have their opinions fortified by the ease with which a 16,000-ton ship was destroyed by the Spanish government's bombers. On the other hand, the age, the poor anti-aircraft equipment and the inadequate deck armor of the Espana will be cited to show that this spectacular engagement proves nothing conclusive.

The political consequences of this blow to the rebel cause are less debatable. At one stroke the attempted blockade of Bilbao, already shown to be ineffective by the entrance of British food ships, has been smashed. Control of the Spanish coastline, heretofore predominantly in rebel hands, would seem to be shifted to the Madrid government by loss of the most powerful insurgent warship. If the loyalist fleet can now isolate the rebel resources in Morocco, the loss of the Espana will prove an event of great military significance.

More immediate and more certain will be the psychological effects of this triumph for the government. Its effect here is emphasized by the effort of the Fascist authorities to conceal the loss of the Espana. Following the savage bombing of unfortified Basque cities the defenders of Bilbao will be elated by this proof of their own prowess in the air. What seemed a lost cause, in the northwest of Spain, may now be converted into a resistance as heroic and determined as that which has held the rebels outside Madrid for nearly six months.

The loss of the Espana is a severe setback to the military prospects of the rebels. And this is the more important because it follows on their complete loss of moral prestige. The ruthless destruction of Guernica, following on the heels of numerous other Fascist atrocities, have outraged the conscience of the civilized world. Whatever crimes the loyalists have committed pale by contrast with the concentrated terrorism whereby Franco and his Italo-German backers seek to reduce the Spanish people to a state of permanent slavery.

Even should Franco win, there is now small chance that his tyranny would be recognized as a government by the United States, or by any other civilized nation. His capacity for brute destruction may still be almost unlimited. But as a ruler of Spain acceptable to democratic nations he and his agents are impossible. Realization of that fact will help to maintain the already high morale of the Madrid-Valencia regime, the only Spanish government recognized by the United States, and likely to remain so.

For Greater Air Safety.

Reorganization of the Bureau of Air Commerce does not appear to be a direct result of the tragic airplane crashes of recent months. But it may have a bearing upon the prevention of similar accidents in the future.

The new set-up of the bureau is the product of an extended investigation. Every part of the organization was scrutinized to determine whether it was efficiently organized to perform its specific function. Duties of the bureau were then separated into seven different categories. The commendable objective is to centralize responsibility upon one individual for each of these different functions.

Suggestions as to the new organization were drawn freely from the report of the Senate Commerce Committee, which launched a probe of flying accidents following the death of Senator Cutting in a plane crash two years ago. Prof. Fred Fagg, recently appointed Director of Air Commerce, served as counsel for the committee. His method of carefully surveying the needs of the air transport industry and of scientifically adapting the bureau's organization to such needs should go a long way toward strengthening confidence in this agency.

One other important reason for these shifts in functions and personnel is the prospect that Congress will substantially expand the work of the bureau. The Senate has approved an outlay of approximately $10,000,000 for additional aids to flying. More adequate radio service, faster teletype weather reports and additional beacons are among the improvements contemplated. The importance of these facilities is graphically illustrated by a report of the bureau's accident board that the recent crash near Milford, Pa., was caused by poor radio reception and improper dispatching as well as error on the part of the pilot.

Additional funds would also be granted for the inspection service. Some men engaged in this work have been on the job nine years without leave. Others are working 14 hours per day. These facts are prima facie evidence that the bureau's inspection service is not organized as it should be. Since rigid examination of planes and pilots is so closely related to safety in the air the importance of eliminating these unsatisfactory conditions can be readily appreciated.

In the last half of 1935 there was one fatality in regularly scheduled flying for every 17,973,680 passenger miles traveled. During the last half of 1936 there was one death for every 15,118,023 miles flown. If aviation is to succeed as a normal means of transportation, this trend must be reversed. That is not solely the responsibility of the Bureau of Air Commerce. But more efficient operation of that agency will be reflected in greater air saftey.

Moderate And Constructive.

The resolutions adopted by the United States Chamber of Commerce at its twenty-fifth annual meeting are characterized by a dignified restraint in marked contrast with the denunciatory temper of former years.

The difference in manner and method of presentation may be due in part to the fact that much of the controversial legislation affecting businessmen is no longer in the stage of debate. It has been placed upon the statute books and is likely to remain there for the indefinite future. Hence it is wise for the Chamber of Commerce to bow before the inevitable and eschew slashing attacks upon the Administration and all its works.

However, that is not the whole explanation of the moderate and discriminating character of the criticisms embodied in the resolutions. Many of the legislative experiments which aroused violent objections when they were first broached have proved in practice to be much better than expected. Opportunity has also been given to discover how weak or defective laws can be strengthened.

The Chamber of Commerce has accordingly proceeded to make various constructive recommendations for modification of existing laws affecting business. For instance, it properly calls for more even-handed justice for employers under the Wagner labor relations act. It also makes some sound suggestions for reforms in the taxation of undistributed corporate profits and capital gains.

It would be invidious to single out for honorable mention only two or three of a long list of resolutions. Whether one agrees or dissents from the views and recommendations set forth, every fair-minded person will concede that the proposals are pertinent and reasonable. The resolutions are thoughtful pronouncements of businessmen, reflecting, as they should, the business viewpoint, but containing no suggestion of hostility to the Administration.

Pledges to co-operate in carrying out the policies of those in power are not given. Co-operation is implied, however, in the many suggestions for strengthening and improving the laws which affect business, directly and indirectly.

The Real Task Remains.

When the conference report on the neutrality bill came up for final passage in the Senate Thursday, almost as many Senators refrained from voting as were counted in the affirmative. The tally was: Yeas, 41; nays, 15; not voting, 39.

No doubt, as was explained on the floor, some of the Senators reported as not voting were absent for good and sufficient reasons. But it is safe to say that a majority among the abstentionists simply refrained from voting because they were of two minds as to the virtues and defects of the bill whose fate was being decided. So they let the measure go through by default. And the final debate on the vital question of neutrality and war abstention was largely perfunctory.

This illustrates the fact that the new neutrality law is a pretty poor stop-gap. Its virtues are negative, rather than positive. Its principal advantage is that it does not put American policy into a straight-jacket by denying all freedom of action to the Administration. It is a gain that so dangerously foolish an action has been averted. And considering the current nonsense about insulating America from the effects of war the legislation might well have been far worse.

The present confused state of public opinion on the question of how America can best stay out of war, a confusion mirrored with remarkable clarity on the floors of Congress, is a product of two contradictory desires. A large section of public opinion demands a law that will somehow restrain the evil influences, alleged to have operated in 1917, from again dragging us into war. At the same time the American people, by and large, resolutely oppose paying the necessary price for economic isolation. We want to eat our cake and have it, too.

The emphasis in most of the discussion on the neutrality problem has been on this or that alleged cause of war. The search has been for personal devils—munitions makers, international bankers or what have you. The present law mirrors this witch-burning approach to the problem of how wars originate. But what has been forgotten is that the essential task for the United States is not an endless quest for the causes of war. It is co-operative action to achieve the essential conditions of peace.

"If you find yourself suddenly and dangerously close to a poisonous snake, you can charm it by singing to it," says a herpetologist. Not we. Singing and holding our breath at the same time is something we've never practiced.

How times do change! Now many a husband rocks the baby to sleep in the trailer by jiggling the steering wheel.

Daylight Saving Time.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The favorable tenor of The Post editorial of April 24, "Extra Coolness," will without doubt be appreciated by those who have lived in localities adhering to this practice, and should receive fair consideration from most employes of this city in consequence of which I hope the latter will lend their active support to the bill introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Sacks.

As you have indicated, "Principal opposition to the bill will presumably come from the farmers and dairymen serving the city." Wherever the question of daylight saving time has been under consideration, the inhabitants of rural areas have expressed opposition. Yet daylight saving time is in effect in parts of this country and Canada, as well as in Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Austria, Holland, Spain, Portugal and Turkey. The numerous farmers in these countries have adjusted their circumstances to the changed situation. I think that New York City and the District of Columbia are comparable for the present purpose in that both cities are served by farmers and dairymen from surrounding rural areas. The former city is adequately served, and without protest or objection, because all concerned have found it possible and desirable to make the necessary adjustment.

In the summer, the climate in this city is sickening, exhausting and discouraging. The sun is unmerciful and pounds us all, though with unequal effect. Of course, an extra hour of daylight after work is desirable and convenient. Of far greater importance and benefit is the extra morning coolness. Whether one travels or walks to work, reporting an hour earlier for duty will mean more vitality and efficiency and less irritation and exhaustion.

Do we not have a slogan, "Be kind to animals?" I say, "Be kind to human beings, too," in this instance to those of this city. Passage of the Sacks bill will be an act of mercy. It is to be hoped that The Post will continue to support this measure.

From Puerto Rico.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Belatedly, perhaps because clippings are a little slow in arriving in Puerto Rico, your comment upon the Ponce riot reached my desk. Puerto Rico seems always to be understandingly treated by The Post and your sympathy and comprehension is much appreciated, especially when our front page news gives rise to controversy.

March 28 under the caption, "Puerto Rico—Guns Blaze Afresh," you offered an accurate resume of the unfortunate event.

We believe that such outbreaks will not take place again—at least all of the better Puerto Ricans are opposed to any theory that violence is to be condoned. This incident seems to be an aftermath of the depression, during which many otherwise sane and stable young people listened to rather desperate leaders. Today, through the splendid co-operation of Washington, with the aid of an eminently qualified governor, and directed by a local administration overwhelmingly supported by the people, we are in pretty good control of the situation.

As rapidly as possible jobs are being found for more and more people. Diligent search is being made for larger opportunities for everyone, and we are studying our population problem in terms of human beings. We are getting along very promisingly after a period of storm and strife and will appreciate the continued interest of The Post in what we do and how we do it.

R. MENENDEZ RAMOS,

Employe's Protest.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The proposed bill to reduce salaries of all Federal employes 15 per cent, introduced by Representative Cannon, of Missouri, sure is a step to reduce to poverty the employes in the low salary bracket.

If Mr. Cannon wishes to help balance the budget why does not he propose to reduce the salaries of Congressmen from $10,000 to $2,000 and Senators to $5,000; also reduce the salary of the President to $15,000 and of the Vice President to $10,000. Then let Mr. Cannon try to live on his salary and see how far he would get. We employes receiving $1,200 a year and with families have a hard time to exist, not live, and with a 15 per cent reduction where or how would we ever get by?

Lack Of Armory.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The other evening I happened along Louisiana avenue and saw about 300 Marine Corps Reserves drilling in the street. A driving rain soon drove them indoors into a ramshackle building.

If this is Washington's idea of national defense we ought to bury the "patriotism" that wants to build a memorial to Jefferson. Probably that great patriot would prefer an adequate and decent armory dedicated to his memory.

The Nation's Capital is not setting much of an example in national defense with its civilian soldiers drilling in the rain.

I agree with Senator Walsh that the armory situation here is disgraceful. CARY R. NOLAN.

On The Jefferson Memorial Plans

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It would be interesting to know just what is back of all this agitation about a memorial to Thomas Jefferson. Jefferson was a great American and he was not a man who would have felt honored to have his countrymen spend money they did not possess for something they did not need and could not afford. He has not yet been forgotten, nor is he likely to be. He has built his own memorial.

If we have these few millions to spare, why is there talk of new taxes? And if we haven't them, how can we afford to pay for a memorial?

In no other year since I have lived in Washington have I received so many calls from charity organizations. If we can spare three millions, cannot Jefferson be remembered by donations to charities? Not long ago there was a call for money from the hospitals. Three millions would mean something to several hospitals. Could not a hospital endowment be a memorial to Jefferson? LISA GARDINER.
Washington, April 28.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Whether the Jefferson Memorial should be put in the Tidal Basin is for the various committees and commissions to decide.

One suggestion put forth, however, should certainly be fought—that is the one to locate the memorial in Lincoln Square. If this is done the entire park area of a section of the city is lost to the people of that section. Certainly, with the extremely hot summers in Washington, this should be avoided. Wherever the memorial is located, no entire park area should be used for it.

If the Basin site, the end of East Capitol street site, or the Soldiers' Home site is used, an entire park area is not used up for the memorial.

Having been brought up in Washington, I am amazed upon my return to see what magnificent new areas have been added to the park system as a whole. The additions to Rock Creek and Potomac Parks are really wonderful to behold. I am struck, however, by one thing which isn't being done—and that is, squares such as Farragut, McPherson, etc., are not being bought and added in the new sections that are building up. Squares such as these are God-sends for people with small children and for adults on summer days and evenings. It isn't always possible to go long distances to reach parks and in consequence, small park squares close at hand are necessary and doubly appreciated. JOHN SHOWERS.
Washington, April 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With reference to the proposed Jefferson Memorial with all due respect for the suggestion of Hon. Thomas L. Blanton for a large memorial hospital here, which is an admirable suggestion, still it occurs to me that in lieu of the present plans and other suggestions that the Government might well invest some of its spending money in the purchase and re-conditioning of the Jefferson estate in Monticello, Va., and perhaps purchase some adjoining territory. V. E. HODGES.
Washington, April 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In regard to the proposal that the Basin site for the Jefferson Memorial is doomed, we don't care if it is. If this Government thinks more of the cherry trees of a foreign country than they do of their own country, we don't give a d——.

I have property enough at Riverside Park, Mount Vernon, and would gladly dedicate it for the memorial JOHN IRWIN ALEXANDER.
Fourth cousin of Thomas Jefferson.
Washington, April 27.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The dispute regarding the Jefferson Memorial design leaves me cold and the design itself, not because of its style but rather its plan and underlying thought.

The idea of placing a colossal standing figure beneath a dome is all wet. A seated figure would be better as its composition could be arranged to echo the sweep of the dome. The designer has evidently felt the need of this echo and has introduced a trabeated architecture at the openings with free standing columns, but the dome is dominant and the figure asks to reflect this dominance it wants to repose.

As Lincoln is seated, perhaps Jefferson should be allowed to stand in the old Roman tradition. This upright figure should be in the open air because of its colossal size, and perhaps inclosed on three sides with an open peristyle, the columns of which would reflect the lines of the figure. And to give a modern touch so as to reflect the taste of our day, make these columns not round in plan, but rectangular and of white granite, stark and somber. MANNING FOSTER.
Jackson Heights, Long Island, N. Y., April 26.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is written to protest against putting the Jefferson Memorial on the site proposed and to call attention to a location which could and should be used for it instead of tearing apart an attractive beauty spot, which evidently cost a great lot of money and a third of a century to create. Why not take a location which is loaded down with dilapidated houses, shacks, hovels, auto grave yards, and swamps? A good portion of this land is already owned by the Federal Government.

One of its boundaries is the Jefferson-Davis highway connecting the District of Columbia with the State of Virginia, the home of the noted gentleman whose memory is to be and deserves to be honored.

The entire area within the bounds of the Jefferson-Davis highway, Columbia pike, and Arlington Ridge road up to the walls of Arlington Cemetery and north to the Memorial boulevard leading to Mount Vernon, could well be used as the appropriate site for the New Jefferson Memorial, beautifying an ugly spot which is typical of several connecting highways between Washington and Virginia.

Houses That Speak.

HOUSES are of infinite charm as one ponders their annals.

Once the imaginative child of an architect, a constructor, or an engineer; completed, many of them sit today vacant, dreaming, like beggars in the sunlight of yesterday's glory.

Let's take sight of several blocks on northwest Massachusetts avenue, and as each house meets the vision range, pause, and give fancy unfettered reign. We are at 1700. It is a pretentious building. Granite blocks, placed one upon another, wrought this place of dreams—the home of John F. Wilkins, at one time business manager of The Washington Post. Nearby is a house in which yellow bricks predominate and brown sandstone trimmings are in contrast. This is where Thomas Nelson Page, author-diplomat, lived in 1896 and gave to the world such literary treats as "Uncle Abe's White Folks" and other dialect stories.

Seventeen hundred and nine catches the eye because of its iron-roof door shelter and narrow dimensions among other houses. A sight-seeing auto rolls by. The lecturer recites: "This is the house where Senator McAdoo resided at the time of his marriage in 1914 to Eleanor Wilson."

A large double structure of red sandstone (No. 1714) is the residence of Hugh S. Legare, banker-diplomat. At No. 1709 we see the Finnish Legation and at No. 1746 the Canadian Legation. Seventeen sixty-five now stands to the fore. The front yard presents an array of shrubbery, all in bloom, and an ivy vine spreads its tendrils haphazardly over the red-brick wall. This, inquiry discloses, is where Henry Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts' long-time Senator, read history and law and prepared himself for legislative debate. Incidentally, you see in passing the Force public school where the Roosevelt and Taft children were educated.

To the lovers of literature No. 1770 should be of special appeal. Here, in the early eighties, resided Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The narrative itself was created at 1219 I street northwest. The house is marked today by a bronze plaque bearing the inscription: "1886—On this site 50 years ago the deathless classic 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' was written by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett."

Strolling leisurely westward, we find ourselves at Eighteenth and Massachusetts avenue. On the southeast corner, No. 1777, stands the present Belgian Embassy (the before-the-war diplomatic headquarters were at No. 2011). The brownstone fronted edifice now has a somber aspect as if in mourning over the war-torn days of memory. Across the street, northeast corner, lived Andrew W. Mellon (No. 1785), citizen and philanthropist, when Secretary of the Treasury. Eighteen hundred is where Hugh C. Wallace, former Ambassador to France, made his home; also, Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller resided in the confines.

Crossing through Dupont Circle we pause momentarily to admire the memorial fountain to Admiral Dupont and to watch the water as, falling in sprays, it seems to weave ribbon strands. Taking a side glance northward we marvel at the stately house which butts a triangle. This, we are told, was subsequent to 1883 the home of Levi Leiter, a Chicago merchant of consequence, who spent winters in Washington. At No. 3 Dupont Circle (then the temporary White House) is where Col. Lindbergh was the guest of President and Mrs. Coolidge, after his famous flight to Paris. Senator William A. Clark, pioneer, miner, merchant and banker made his home at No. 1915. To him the Corcoran Art Gallery is indebted for a collection of rare oil paintings.

Presently, we face a red-brick building (No. 2000). It is labeled "Rural Electrification Administration." Its commanding appearance excites curiosity. It towers above several of the neighboring houses and bears marks of age. This is the Blaine Mansion, where, for a period, James G. Blaine, statesman, resided. Popularly, it is stated that he holds the niche as the most disappointed man in history, except William Jennings Bryan, since he failed to reach the Presidency. George Westinghouse, inventor of the air brake, was the pioneer occupant.

A house of pleasing outlines and architectural beauty is that at No. 2201—once the residence of Capt. Frederick A. Miller, a retired naval commander. It is of the French renaissance design. Twenty-thirteen was the home of Charles W. Foulke, a wool merchant, who once possessed one of the largest, most varied, and important collections of antique tapestries in private hands.

There are about other palatial residences—that of former Speaker Longworth (No. 2009); Thomas F. Walsh, a Colorado mining magnate (No. 2020—today occupied by the Federal Government); Lars Anderson (No. 2118), diplomat, soldier and traveler; and Richard Scott Townsend (No. 2121), a literal palace of social life and entertainment in the past.

Whatever becomes of these houses which men—architects, constructors and engineers—erect? Do they, after existing for a while, like a turtle, recoil within a shell—lose their identity?

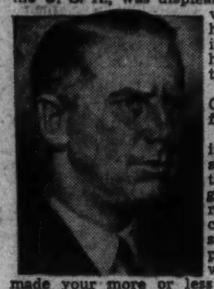
Pershing And The Press.

GOING UP the plank of the President Harding to sail for London and the coronation of the British King, John J. Pershing, General of All the Armies of the U. S. A., was displeased with the photographers who were sniping shots at him. He remarked to a man in mufti who was forming his interference, "Knock them down, sergeant!"



Now, John, is that nice? Characteristic, yes, but is it fair?

True, you have been teething these last few years, but surely no man owes more than you to the press photographers, because, if you will remember, John, they were compelled by martial law to show you in your most impressive poses when you were doing the job that made your more or less immortal reputation. The photographers and the writers, too, John. You dictated your own publicity and censored your own pictures, and never gave yourself any the worse of it.

For a fact, you old go-getter, no American ever had a better break from the press of this country, and there was never a man could say a word ag'in you until Peyton March took you out behind the picket line after the war, with the epaulets off, and sounded off in his book. Not the best of the war books, maybe, but a substantial contribution to the truth.

• • • •

JEALOUS he may have been, but he was working the same side of the street with you and was no less patriotic and may have been as great a soldier, in addition to which the difference between you and him was just the difference between heads and tails.

But, aside from that, don't you remember that, so far as publicity was concerned, you always were able to roll your own? Every line of copy written about you had to go through your own delousing machine, and every censor on the line was afraid to pass anything for publication which dared even to suggest that you were less than a god?

Can you remember the time you rode in your car all of a sudden to inspect a company of the Sixteenth Infantry who were resting at lunch, and bawled out that poor, patriotic volunteer, just three weeks out from under a derby hat, for chewing gum in the ranks and wearing a sprig of evergreen in the band of his campaign hat and turning his head down the line to catch a glimpse of the Great God Pershing that you were and are?

They had been lunching in a field and didn't expect the General of All the Armies of the U. S. A., and when the sergeant yelled, "Fall in!" they jumped up and formed any ranks they could, but, not being soldiers for the most part, just did their best to look the part. This one was the big, tall gawky fan who couldn't resist the temptation to turn his head and thrust out his abdomen to peer down the line at the successor to Gen. U. S. Grant, in the flesh and alive.

A hero worshiper he was, and you were his hero, but when your eye caught sight of him you bawled out the old white-haired captain of infantry before his men and told him to jerk that man out of there, teach him the true soldierly position of attention and make him stand there 15 minutes before the company as an example to all of them.

"JERK THAT MAN out of there!" you yelled, pronouncing the words "that man" as you might have said "that dog" or "that pig," and then you said, "Show him the true soldierly position of attention and make him stand there 15 minutes before the company as an example to all of them."

Then you said to the sergeant, "Take that gum out of his mouth and that evergreen out of his hat," and the sergeant caught the gum in his hand and grabbed the sprig of evergreen and showed him the true soldierly position as the boy's hero drove off in his car in a cloud of dust.

The patriots at home never saw any pictures of that incident, did they? How much do you think that picture would have added to the popularity of the General of All the Armies? And they never read Heywood Broun's story, either, did they?

That was the story which Freddie Palmer killed that night to protect you with the home folks, and which caused the recall of Heywood Broun.

You remember the story, John? It was all told in the opening sentence, which read, "They will never call him Papa Pershing." He meant to say that you were not the equivalent of old Papa Joffre.

Well, have a good time in your fore-and-aft hat with the ostrich feathers, and here is hoping that under peacetime conditions in London they don't catch any informal shots of you bellering at some poor, stumbling hero-worshiping buck for chewing gum after lunch and gawking at the General of All the Armies of the U. S. A.

What do you suppose ever happened to that buck? Dead these many years, maybe, for God and democracy and your ostrich plumes. He might have been a photographer.

Knock them down, sergeant!

Elmer Twitchell on Dog Racing.

"Dog racing is being legalized in many parts of the country and what puzzles me is the howl being raised against it in some quarters," said Elmer Twitchell, the old-time pooch oval enthusiast, today. "Give me the pooches over the horses any old time. There are no jockeys to pull 'em and I never yet saw a dog going to the post so crippled and bandaged that he had no business out of an animal hospital!

• • • •

"Nothing strikes me as screwier than the squawks about dog racing being far below horse racing as a decent and honest sport. The practices that go on under everybody's nose at horse tracks wouldn't be tolerated at an up-to-date hound oval.

• • • •

"Saliva tests? Ringers? Suspensions? Fixed races? Where do you find 'em, at the horse tracks or the dog ovals? Entries going to the post under the eyes of the officials day after day and month after month in no condition to race and merely out for the exercise? Where? Horse or dog tracks?

• • • •

"Where do they allow the daily appearance of animals so crippled, so old and so unfit that even the track veterinarians turn their heads? Horse or dog tracks? Where is it an old Spanish custom and tradition to allow in nearly every race on the card from two to five animals that are just out for the exercise and sucker money? I ask you.

• • • •

"When a pooch shows a couple of bum performances, the track officials move him down into cheap company, and the owner has nothing to say about it. He can't keep a slow pup running as long as he wants to in high-class company for the sole purpose of cheating the public by putting him in a cheaper race when ready for a killing.

• • • •

"I have to laugh every time I hear somebody raise his voice in horror at the very idea of dog racing. First of all, there is no hypocrisy about dog racing. Nobody pretends it is done only to improve the breed. And the managements show real showmanship and give the customers a spectacle, an entertainment and plenty of laughs. They even make an attempt to hire competent musicians! Fancy that at a horse track!"

War-Time Barcelona

Correspondent Finds Catalonia Removed From Main Centers Of Fighting, Doing Its Part For The Republic.

By E. O. Deeble.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Barcelona.

SIX YEARS ago last month Spain was living through the first bloodless revolution in all history. I remember it well. There had been much talk about the result of the municipal elections which had taken place two days before. The results of these were overwhelmingly against the monarchy and the dictatorship, and there was an atmosphere of hopefulness very different to the previous sulky resignation of an oppressed people.

On the morning of the fourteenth I had an appointment at my hairdresser's at 11, and while skilled fingers set the finger wave, a chattering tongue speculated on whether the result would be a real republic or a really constitutional monarchy like that of England.

I left the place about 12, and waited at the corner where my friend the traffic cop was semaphoring with his white-gloved hands as usual. To my greeting "Good morning," he replied "Long live the Spanish Republic, senorita," and I stopped in the middle of the traffic stream to ask about that.

Not for a minute did his eyes or his hands leave the job, but he said calmly that the republic had been proclaimed, and suggested that I go down to the Generalitat (corresponding to a State capitol in America) and have a look.

I found a huge and happy crowd, waving flags from which the lower stripe of red had been more or less hastily removed and the violet band of the republic substituted. Some of those flags would have been pathetic had they not been so proud. Anything even faintly usable had been used to provide that strip of violet. I remember an obvious silk petticoat, (still worn in those days), and another which had the precious stripe made of crepe paper, and paste or safety pins had often replaced the sewing for which there was no time.

Spain Then In Joyous Mood.

SPAIN WAS happy, laughing with joy, making jokes about the nightmare of dictatorship which was ended, feeble puns on the names of monarchist politicians which were received and repeated with shouts of appreciation worthy of keener wit. There was no animus against the royal family. They had served their turn, badly enough, now let them go wherever they liked, and Spaniards were going to rule Spain, instead of the hybrid race that royalty everywhere has now come to be.

The king left that night, as we heard over the radio, and the next day the rest of the royal family followed him, in a special train which carried enormous quantities of luggage. There were many rumors about that luggage, to the effect that it was filled with the crown jewels and art objects of great value which had been part of the palace furnishings in Madrid.

But the Republicans shrugged their shoulders and said amiably that after all, they were mostly women who had done the packing, and one knew that a woman wanted the things she had liked in her house, and anyway, what was important was the welfare of the country, and not personal graduges.

On April 14 Republican Spain and particularly Catalonia, celebrated that anniversary in a new way. Gone is el Avi (the Grandfather) Macia from Barcelona, the distinguished old man with the fine features and the flashing black eyes who gave up a career and a fortune to spend years of his life in prison and exile, but who lived to announce the coming of the republic and to be the first president of Catalonia for three years before he died.

His worthy successor, Luis Companys, second president, although he is in the throes of a change of government in the midst of a civil war, has issued an appeal to all Spaniards, and more especially to the Catalans whom he leads. It had been proposed to make today a great holiday, with a banquet to Companys. His plan was different. He said "Let us work harder than usual today, and then let everyone give all his earnings on this anniversary to the cause of the republic."

Animals Of Zoo To Be Removed.

THE IDEA was taken up with enthusiasm. Shops and offices and factories worked overtime, and in a few days the money rolled in that was devoted to the purchas of food for Bilbao and Gijon, munitions and clothes for the new army, gasoline to bring the shell-shocked children out of besieged Madrid. Catalonia, ever practical, is doing its bit in an efficient way.

The latest sufferers from Fascist methods are not human. The Barcelona Zoo, famous as one of the best in Europe, where not so long ago a baby giraffe was born, to become during its short life the pet of the entire city, has felt the pinch of the shortage of food supply.

Barcelona is far from starvation, but the days are gone when the children might fill their pockets with buns and sugar for the elephant which is also called affectionately "Grandfather," or with dried peas for the pigeons who came to take them from their hands. There are short commons in the Citadel Park where the animals live. Dried peas make good soup, and buns mean standing in long lines with ration cards.

So while the city works overtime to give extra money to war needs, it has been decided by the powers that be that the animals are to go to France where there is more food, and where casual Fascist shells or bombs will no longer be able to break open their cages and let superb Bengal tigers loose to roam the streets.

This is no product of imagination. On the fatal day, July 19, when the military mutiny broke out that has grown now into a war of independence, a shell fired by mutinous artillery broke open the main inclosure where the tigers were kept. At the risk of their own lives the attendants managed to drive back the 17 great beasts, not without having to wound one or two slightly.

Life Goes On In Barcelona.

THEY WERE well fed then, but even so would have been a serious danger in the streets of a modern city, and the park is centrally located. How much greater the danger would be now, when they, like everyone else, live on strict rations to provide for the future, only the park authorities can estimate with any degree of accuracy.

Dangerous beasts might do harm, and rare beasts, of which Barcelona possesses many, would be almost sure to suffer. So the government has found time among its many problems to arrange for the removal of the Barcelona Zoo to peace and safety in France. They will be sent away as soon as suitable cages for their transport can be constructed.

Barcelona will not be left petless. The pigeons in the Plaza Catalonia will still cluster about the base of the huge statue of a militiaman which stands there for the duration of the war, and the sellers of grain and breadcrumbs will still find small patrons for their wares who have saved a penny or so, but the tame old elephant, the parrot who has not talked since his tailfeathers were shot away last July, the fat geese who lived so long in the cathedral cloister, the giraffes and tigers, polar bears and hippopotami, must go on a pilgrimage until the piping times of peace.

France, probably Paris, is their destination, and they will not come back to us until we have once more food enough to give them and a peaceful security in which to enjoy them. The children of Barcelona must learn about wild life from books for a few months yet.

300 Are Laid Off At D.C. Navy Yard

The Washington Navy Yard yesterday laid off 300 employes, largely machinists, due to lack of work. The lay-offs effective at 4:30 p. m.

Decreased building of new ships was held as the cause of the dismissals, the largest single group lay-off since the 32 warship building program was set up under the Public Works Administration in 1933. Additional lay-offs, though not in the immediate future, have been predicted because of an expected further decrease in work.

The dismissals were part of a 5,000 reduction in Navy yards throughout the country. The men were told of the lay-off two months ago. The announcement was followed by immediate but unsuccessful protests by union groups.

Quick Report Sought On Daylight Time Bill

Promising prompt consideration, Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, yesterday wrote to the District Commissioners and asked an immediate report on the bill to place Washington on daylight-saving time.

While Representative Sacks (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, author of the bill, suggested it would not be put int oeffect until next year, Mrs. Norton said it will be acted upon at an early meeting of the District Committee.

War Boom

By Barnet Nover

America In The Maelstrom.

ON THE SAME DAY the Senate passed the neutrality bill a Chilean military mission, seeking to purchase war material in Europe, notified its government of the failure of its efforts. European armament factories, it appears, are booked up to productive capacity; for the time being they are forced to turn away additional business.

Of these two news items the latter may prove to be, from the viewpoint of our immediate welfare, much more important than the former. To be sure, it makes no practical difference to us whether Chile is supplied with arms or not. But it does make a difference to us that the war boom in Europe has now reached a point where the demand for arms and munitions, which also means for the raw materials out of which arms and munitions are made, is beginning to exceed the supply.

• • • •

THE NEUTRALITY law seeks to envisage future possibilities of danger for the peace of the United States and to protect this Nation against them. But the measure is, as many Senators and Representatives who voted for it will readily admit, a leap in the dark.

Its provisions may prove wise or unwise, useful or dangerous, depending on events which no one can forsee. But in so far as it is based on the philosophy that the United States is or in any real sense can be completely master of its own destinies the neutrality law is unreal and absurd.

No one in his right mind will deny, of course, that the United States exerts an enormous pull on the rest of the world. This is patently true although our neutrality policy, by and large, ignores this fact and its implication, namely, that if we so desire we can make an enormously effective contribution to world peace. But it is equally clear that if the rest of the world is tied, willy-nilly, to us we are, as inextricably, tied to the rest of the world.

• • • •

NOT LONG AGO President Roosevelt saw fit to call attention to the dangers of an unrestrained boom of the kind which, in 1929, led to a terrible collapse. He has also suggested that the price of certain raw materials needed by the Government for Federal projects has gone up unreasonably. The emphasis in Federal spending, in the future, he hinted, might be on consumption goods rather than on production goods.

Authorities are agreed that one cause for the recent sky-rocketing of commodity prices, particularly metals, has been the activity of speculators. But no one who has studied the situation at all will agree that the sharp rise in such prices has been solely the result of specultaion. This is not true. What is true is that the recovery from the depression is now well under way and because of it there has been a growing demand for a great variety of commodities. In addition, a great fillip has been given industry by the world-wide race in armaments.

• • • •

WERE THIS COUNTRY truly isolated, we would be as little affected by the consequences of this arms race as we have been responsible for its inception and its course. We could sit back and watch it as one watches a raging fire on some one else's property. Other people's sorrows, as De la Rochefoucauld said long ago, are easy to bear.

But we are not isolated in any sense of the word. Europe's present boom concerns us vitally. It is by no means clear whether, on balance, the effects of that boom on our own economy will be good or bad. But there is no mistaking that we are affected by it and will continue to be so.

It is within the last six months or so that the rise in commodity prices has tended to get completely out of hand. And these six months coincide with the acceleration of the rearmament movement in Great Britain and other countries of the world.

In Great Britain, in fact, this development has caused a great deal of concern. The iron and steel industry in that country, for instance, is now operating at full capacity. The same is increasingly true elsewhere. And since the production of essential raw materials has, to some extent lagged behind, the suddenly accelerated demand for these commodities, prices have tended to rise. The activities of speculators has only had the effect of speeding up the movement.

• • • •

THE POSSIBLE EFFECTS of Europe's rearmament boom on our own welfare have given no small concern to thoughtful Americans. There is talk in some quarters of protective legislation. It is suggested, for instance, that the export of scrap iron be restricted. This and similar measures may be worthwhile. But they do not and cannot touch the root of the problem of the present dangerous boom which is not national, but international and political as well as economic.

The agitation for neutrality legislation is based on the idea that our principal national interest is to stay out of war. That this aim is wholly desirable cannot be denied, although it may be questioned if any laws can achieve that objective. Yet it is equally clear that another such collapse as occurred in 1929 might prove as disastrous as a war. And the two dangers of war and economic collapse are closely linked together.

In other words if the United States is to avoid an economic collapse similar to that which occurred in 1929 it must avoid a boom such as that which preceded 1929. To avoid such a boom our own efforts are inadequate since the boom is of world-wide proportions. But any joint efforts we may make in co-operation with other nations requires that we consider not merely economic, but political factors as well.

The rearmament boom is the product, not the cause of disturbed political conditions. We cannot ignore these conditions. We cannot ignore, except at our own peril, the circumstance that without a more effective organization of peace the race in armaments will continue with war or bankruptcy or both at the end of the specious rainbow.

Joyous Month

By William Lyon Phelps

May.

The most joyous month in the whole year is May. When I was a little boy in the West Middle School, in Hartford, we used to sing a song, "O the glorious month of May," and that is exactly the way I have felt about it ever since.

I have never danced around a Maypole, but I would if I knew where there was one. In the days of Queen Elizabeth, whenever the Puritans saw a Maypole, it made them sick; and when they got control of the country in 1644, all Maypoles were forbidden by act of Parliament. Somebody is always taking the joy out of life. Just as soon as King Charles got on the throne in 1660, up went the Maypoles again.

• • • •

The First of May has been a grand holiday in England for a thousand years; and I have always hoped that I might be there on that day. If I were I should go to Oxford and hear the choir of Magdalen College, Oxford, sing on the top of the tower in the early morning. They have been doing this for 600 years or so.

One of the oldest French proverbs says, "He has a very hard heart who does not love in May."

• • • •

"Going Maying" is a festival rite very ancient indeed. In 1648 appeared one of the greatest poems ever written on that subject, by the Rev. Robert Herrick.

And to hear Alma Gluck and Louise Homer sing Charles Kingsley's song with Ethelbert Nevin's music, "Oh, that we two were Maying," brings a lump in my throat as big as a baseball.

Lowell was the poet of June. Bryant was the poet of November. Whittier was the poet of December. But Chaucer, the most joyous poet who ever lived, was first, last, and all the time the poet of May.

Harlan Sheriff Kept Deputies, Shut His Eyes to Their Crimes

By the Associated Press.

The Senate Civil Liberties Committee heard Sheriff Theodore Middleton, of Harlan County, Ky., testify yesterday that he had refused to arrest, or dismiss, two of his deputies, although he knew they had shot a fellow officer and left him for dead on a mountain roadside.

The plump, bristly haired sheriff blandly informed the committee that "quite a lot of violence has been committed by my deputies," but added:

"As a rule we don't dismiss them until they are convicted."

He said that Deputies Wash Irvin and Frank White "gave me the guns" with which they shot another deputy, Hugh Taylor, on the night of February 28.

Taylor "Played Possum."

Taylor previously told Senate investigators that White and Irvin tried to kill him because he had protested against the slaying of a 19-year-old boy—son of a United Mine Workers organizer.

The wounded man said he escaped with his life only because he had smeared blood from his bullet-torn hands across his chest and "played dead, like a possum."

Middleton readily acknowledged he had "investigated that difficulty" and "knew White and Irvin shot Taylor," but asserted he would not testify against them before a grand jury "unless I'm subpenaed."

Although warrants were issued against them some time after the shooting, he added, neither man was arrested.

The sheriff denied offering Taylor $2,000 and a $150 monthly salary to "hide out" in the Clay County, Ky., hills "until the Senate investigation blows over."

Offered to Pay Bills.

"I may have told him I would pay his hospital bills," Middleton conceded, adding he did not remember promising a salary.

"Are you prepared to swear you didn't make that offer?" asked Chairman La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, of the investigating committee.

"Well, if I said it," the sheriff answered, "I don't remember it."

Middleton agreed he had refused to accept a registered letter from William Turnblazer, United Mine Workers organizer, protesting that company-paid deputies were suppressing all labor organizations by terrorism, dynamiting and gun-play.

"And yet you had the effrontery to tell the Harlan County grand jury that mine union organizers would not co-operate with you and that you had not been able to contact them," La Follette remarked.

"Well, they never came to my office," the sheriff retorted. The audience broke into cat-calls and laughter.

A few minutes before Middleton took the witness stand, Secretary George Ward, of the Harlan County Coal Operators Association, testified he was "very careful to be in a position not to know" whether association funds had been used to purchase guns and ammunition.

Ward explained the association's chief deputy, Ben Unthank—whom the Senate investigators have been unable to find—received all the expense money he requested and was never required to make an accounting.

He added that Unthank, identified by many witnesses as the leader in scores of assaults on union members, had "disappeared without my permission" about the time the investigation began.

If Unthank ever turns up, Ward said, he will be paid the wages which have accumulated during his absence.

House Passes $416,413,382 Army Measure

Attempts of G. O. P. to Slash Bill 10 Per Cent Fail.

By the United Press.

A $416,413,382 War Department appropriation bill, the second half of the Administration's billion-dollar national defense program, was passed by the House late yesterday after Republican attempts to slash the total 10 per cent. The $516,215,808 Navy supply bill was signed by the President Wednesday.

There was no record vote.

The War Department bill provides increases in officers, men, planes and sea coast defenses of the Army, paralleling many features of the Navy measure. The two combined will place the Nation on the most powerful defense footing since the World War.

Representative John Taber, of New York, ranking Republican member of the Appropriations Committee, led the economy attack, proposing to lower the appropriation by $3,000,000. When the House rejected this and similar moves he sought to have the measure recommitted to committee with instructions for a horizontal cut.

The appropriation represents an increase of $25,027,598 over military costs for the current fiscal year, but is $358,079 below President Roosevelt's budget estimates.

It makes possible addition of 50 commissioned officers to the Army to bring the strength up to 12,175; it provides money for 513 new planes; it increases appropriations for seacoast defenses by $800,000, earmarked for the purchase of mobile anti-aircraft guns and mounts, to be divided between the United States, Hawaii and Panama, and will increase enlisted strength to 165,000 by July 1, 1938.

The National Guard gets money to add to its strength by 5,000 men, raising enlistment to 205,000.

In connection with the Administration's objective of an Army and National Guard air force of 2,320 planes by 1940, the Appropriations Committee reported the following progress:

A total of 902 planes now are in service or will be by June 30. During the 1938 fiscal year the Army expects to receive, from 1938 and previous fiscal year's purchases, 715 additional planes, making a total of 1,617. Losses for all causes are estimated at 138, leaving an Army air force June 30, 1938, of 1,479 planes.

Representative Fred Biermann (Democrat), Iowa, gave the debate its only fillip of interest in two days when he sought to illustrate the futility of vast expenditures for military preparedness.

Brisbane's Estate Will Go to Family

New York, April 30 (AP).—The will and codicil of Arthur Brisbane, which his lawyers said was probated today before Surrogate Joseph Donahay, of Monmouth County, N. J., bequeaths all of his estate beyond debts, expenses and real property to a group of trustees, to be managed for the benefit of his family.

The petition recited merely that the world's highest paid newspaper writer, who died last Christmas morning, possessed real estate worth "more than $10,000" and personal property of "more than $10,000."

Schools Close in Honor Of Juliana's Birthday

The Hague, the Netherlands, April 30 (AP).—Dutch school children stayed home today as the newly wed Princess Juliana, who will one day be their Queen, observed her twenty-eighth birthday.

Flags flew and chimes played in honor of the once over-plump princess, who returned from her three-months honeymoon 14 pounds lighter and with a new gaiety. Juliana and her husband, Prince Bernhard zu Lippe-Biesterfeld, planned to entertain the princess' mother, Queen Wilhelmina.

Civil Service Indirectly Bans Stock Trading

An actual but indirect ban on speculation by the 1,000,000 employes of the Government was ordered by the Civil Service Commission yesterday.

The order was neither an order nor a ban, according to its language. The commission in a letter to all heads of departments and independent establishments merely quoted President Roosevelt's suggestion of Monday that workers should not speculate.

But the paragraph from the President's letter to the commission contained the barb—that speculative activities should be considered by the commission in passing on questions of qualifications for "retention or advancement."

The commission's statement was: "In a letter dated April 22, 1937, the President requested the commission to take steps to inform all officials and employes of the Government that speculation in corporate stocks or bonds or in commodities is contrary to Government policy."

Then the statement quoted the President as follows:

"I believeit to be a sound policy of the Government that no officer or employe shall participate directly or indirectly in any transaction concerning the purchase or sale of corporate stocks or bonds or of commodities for speculative purposes, as distinguished from bona fide investment purposes. Engagement in such speculative activities by any officer or employe, whether in the competitive civil service or not, should be among the matters considered by the heads of the departments and establishments and by the commission in passing on questions concerning his qualifications for retention or advancement."

The Commission concluded the statement with this paragraph.

"Accordingly, an official notice to this effect should be distributed to each office under your jurisdiction, whether under the competitive civil service or not, for the information and guidance of the officials and employes therein."

Richmond Opens 6-Month Festival

Richmond, Va., April 30 (AP).—Richmond's bicentennial period to continue for six months was ushered in tonight with a big outdoor ceremoney, followed by a costume ball.

Participating in the inaugural were Alexander W. Weddell, Ambassador to the Argentine, in the role of Col. William Byrd, founder of Richmond, and Anne Harrison Byrd, a direct descendant of the founder, who will be crowned queen by Mayor J. Fulmer Bright.

Gov. Peery read the bicentennial proclamation, and the famous bell which summoned the Virginia convention at which Patrick Henry made his famous address was rung.

Sixteen military units in full dress uniform and three bands staged a series of maneuvers and were reviewed by the queen and her entourage preceding a fireworks display.

Fight to Keep Children Lost by 'Red' Mother

Trenton, N. J., April 30 (AP).—Mrs. Mabel Eaton, deprived of her two children when Chancery Court held her to be an atheist, Communist and unfit mother, lost her fight to regain them today.

New Jersey's highest tribunal, the Court of Errors and Appeals, upheld the action of chancery in granting Warren P. Eaton, of Bloomfield, a divorce from his 38-year-old wife because of her "unmitigated cruelty," and in awarding him custody of the children because she was "not a proper person to be entrusted with their upbringing."

Polls Indicate Senate Defeat For Court Plan

Bill May Be Reported Unfavorably Before Roosevelt Returns.

By Sidney Olson.

All polls of the Senate on the President's court bill indicated last night imminence of defeat for the proposal to add six justices to the Supreme Court bench.

This was qualified, however, by the possibility a Supreme Court decision outlawing the social security act would swing a number of Senators from the opposition ranks.

The lineup appeared to be as follows: For the six-justice court bill, 37; against, 48; leaning—for it, 5; against, 5.

Thus the polls agreed generally that if the Administration were able to win all of the 10 "leaning" votes, their forces still would be one short of the deadlock mark of 48 votes.

The missing vote is that of the late Senator Nathan Bachman (Democrat), of Tennessee, whose death was a loss to the opposition. He was preparing a speech attacking the court bill when he died. His vote would have given the opposition a one-vote majority for the first time since the President announced the plan February 5.

30 Against Compromise.

Meanwhile, observers who have been agreed there were 75 sure votes in the Senate for a two-justice compromise, coupled with a constitutional amendment of the O'Mahoney type, which requires a two-thirds court majority to declare a law unconstitutional, found that even there the Administration's compromise lines apparently have weakened.

There are now roughly 30 opposition Senators who are prepared at this time to fight the bill to the last ditch.

In contrast to this, there are but a few of the 37 Administration proponents of the bill who would not welcome nearly any compromise as more "palatable" than the present measure, in the word used by one Administration Senator.

But while the Administration men repeatedly have indicated willingness to compromise, the opposition forces appear to be stiffening steadily, according to a still noncommittal Senator.

Republican Pessimism.

A Republican Senator said in March, on the first day of the Judiciary Committee's hearings, that "there are only about 12 of us who will be willing to make a last-ditch fight."

Yesterday an opposition Democrat asserted confidently that "there are more than 30 of us who are willing to talk all summer against any addition whatsoever to the Supreme Court." The comparison between the two statements was held significant.

Meanwhile, the possibility of new strategy to outmove the President before his return here May 13 was being discussed yesterday by members of the opposition on the Judiciary Committee. Fearing the President may return from his fishing trip with a "couple of aces up his sleeve," as one Senator expressed it, the members talked over a tentative move to report the court bill unfavorably to the Senate floor before the President's return.

May 18 Set for Vote.

There are now 10 opponents and 8 proponents on the 18-man Judiciary Committee. There is a prior agreement not to vote on the bill or any amendments before May 18, and the proponents, headed by Chairman Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, will fight any action to advance this date. However, if all the opponents would agree on the speed-up, the bill could easily get to the Senate floor while the President still fished in the Gulf Stream.

The usual week-end continuation of the struggle over the air waves began last night when the National Lawyers Guild, favoring the bill, sponsored a series of dinners throughout the country addressed by members of Congress and others. A group of five speakers, headed by Senator Theodore F. Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island, spoke to them by radio from Washington.

Burke, Bailey Speak.

Opposition leaders, Senators Edward R. Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska; Josiah C. Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, and Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, fulfilled speaking dates against the bill in New England and the Midwest.

The latest poll shaped up as follows:

Republican—La Follette, 1.

Farmer-Labor—Lundeen, 1.

Against—48.

Republicans — Austin, Borah, Bridges, Capper, Davis, Frazier, Gibson, Hale, Johnson (California), Lodge, McNary, Nye, Steiwer, Townsend, Vandenberg and White; total, 16.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead, 1.

Democrats—Brown (New Hampshire), Herring, Hughes and Overton.

Wagner—total, 5.

Democrats—Andrews, Bankhead, Duffy, Lewis and Murray; total, 5.

Several Hundred Visit Homes on Foxhall Road

Hostesses at One Residence Exhaust Supply of Tickets; Furnishings of Different Rooms Are Explained to Visitors.

By Dudley Harmon.

The tour of houses on Foxhall road yesterday afternoon was such a success that at one residence the hostesses ran completely out of tickets. Mrs. Higgins Chapin, chairman of arrangements, had been worried before the opening for fear no visitors might come at all, but the combination of a beautiful day and a worthy cause—proceeds will be donated to Washington hospitals—brought out several hundred.

Washington hostesses served the cause yesterday as ticket-takers, and explained the furnishings of the different rooms to visitors. Among those "on duty" were Mrs. Chapin herself, who dashed from one house to another, and whose own residence was one of the most attractive shown; Mrs. John Winant, Mrs. James Gibson, who took tickets at Uplands, the home of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman; Mrs. F. C. Bradley, wife of the Naval Attache of the British Embassy, in a navy blue suit and matching hat; Mrs. Rozier Dulany, Mrs. Robert Joyce, in a black polka dotted frock with a jacket; Mrs. Frank Lockheim, Mrs. Charles Darlington, in a canary yellow suit and hat, Mrs. Reeve Hoover and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding, who wore a spring print with a beige wool jacket. Later a group gathered at Mrs. Chapin's for a refreshing cocktail on the terrace with its lovely old wrought iron railings.

Everybody agreed that the most magnificent home shown was that of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis. The rooms are all beautifully proportioned, with high ceilings, and look out on a terrace which slopes down to the green woods beyond. The drawing room is so large that the presence of four large sofas do not make it seem the slightest bit crowded. At one end of the drawing room is a large portrait of Mrs. Davis by Lazlo, the noted British painter.

The color scheme of the dining room is yellow, carried out in the upholstery of the chairs and the looped brocaded curtains at the French windows opening onto the terrace. The breakfast room adjoining has silk curtains of a dark coral color and a delicate Aubusson rug. Collections of amber bric-a-brac, beautifully bound books and crystal vases filled with roses and lilacs added to the splendid effect of this house, which like the other residences on Foxhall road, has never been shown before. Mr. and Mrs. Davis lease the house, but the furniture is their own.

There was great interest in the home of Mrs. Harriman, our new Minister to Norway, scene of her famous Sunday evening suppers. The living room was filled yesterday with fresh flowers. At either end are fireplaces, and on a table in the center were several of the books on economic and legislative problems which Mrs. Harriman likes to read. There is also a picture of President Roosevelt, inscribed " to Daisy Harriman." A grand piano in one corner of the room is covered with a yellow brocaded piece, and on a table beside it is a big bowl filled to the brim with matches—indicative of Mrs. Harriman's thoughtfulness for her guests. The books lining the walls looked much read and the whole house gave the feeling of being "lived in."

The dining room contains a set of fine Chippendale furniture, and the color scheme is blue, with the rug as this shade, as well as the brocaded curtains at the French windows. On either side of the house is a loggia, furnished with garden chairs and tables, and offering a superb view over Washington and across the river to Virginia.

The beautiful paintings were the main attraction at the Georgian home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips, across the street from Uplands. There are some fine Ryders, Bonnats, Corots, as well as three exquisite landscapes by Mrs. Phillips, which are hung in the long drawing room. The flower arrangements there yesterday reflected the artistic taste of Mrs. Phillips, and especially attractive were tiny little jars filled with pansies.

Other places shown, all of which were in perfect taste, although on a smaller scale than those described, were those of Mr. Lawrence Baker, Mrs. Charles Eliot and Mrs. Edward J. Duffy. Through the courtesy of Mme. Perazic, of the Yugoslav Legation, the home which she rents from Alexander Kirk was also opened. On Reservoir road, it has a magnificent garden and many interesting rooms.

SOCIAL NOTES

The Minister of Latvia, Mr. Alfred Bilmanis, entertained at a men's dinner last evening at the legation on Massachusetts avenue.

Mr. H. A. Arthur Shoenfeld, recently appointed United States Minister to Finland, has arrived in Washington and has taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel during his stay. Mr. Shoenfeld arrived from Santo Domingo, where he was the United States Minister to the Dominican Republic until his new appointment.

The former president of Panama and Senora de Alfaro have taken an apartment at Wardman Park Hotel for several months.

Mrs. Blakiston Wilkins, 1701 Twenty-second street, will show her large collection of rare bindings at her home on Monday afternoon from 3 to 6, for the benefit of the Children's Hospital. Mrs. Wilkins, who is a member of the board of the hospital, has collected the rare books over a period of 35 years and has more than 300, dating from the fifteenth century to the early part of this century. They have never before been displayed.

Col. and Mrs. Joseph M. Heller, who have been spending several months in California, arrived in New York City on the S. S. Pennsylvania and are at the Park Central Hotel for a few days before returning to Washington.

Mrs. Charles Mason Remey has left town for a few days in Chicago. She will return to Washington the early part of next week.

Mrs. Martin Baum and her mother, Mrs. Helen Goldenberg, have been spending several days in Atlantic City.

Mrs. George William Harris will entertain at a garden tea this afternoon at her home on Woodland drive in honor of Mrs. Rice W. Means, regent, and Mrs. Henry H. Knipe, vice regent, and the members of the Dolly Madison Chapter, D. A. R., and their friends.

She will be assisted by the officers of the chapter and by her daughters, Mrs. Thomas William Phillips and Miss Aileen H. Harris, and some of their friends from their chapter, the Dorothy Hancock.

Molly Gruber To Rule Festival

Capital Girl to Receive Crown as May Queen at College Today.

Miss Molly Gruber, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Edmund L. Gruber, of Washington, today will be crowned May Queen and will preside over the annual Elizabethan Festival at Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va. Last night she led the court figure at the May Day dance, with her father, assisted by Miss Elinor Ward, with Mr. John McChesney Morgan, of Wilmington, Del.

The college gymnasium was transformed into an Elizabethan banquet hall for the occasion.

Only members of the queen's court participated, with their escorts, in the court figure. Miss Gruber wore a cream silk net frock with beaded neck and collar and full-flaired skirt. Her three honor attendants, Miss Ward, of Cleveland; Miss Marjorie Silvester, of New York, and Miss Anne Lauman, of Portsmouth, N. H., formerly of Washington, wore coral pink marquisette dresses. Half of the ladies of the court were in turquoise blue marquisette frocks and the other half wore chartreuse yellow. The court dresses were all made with full-flaired skirts and short bolero jackets.

Miss Peggy Cruikshank, of Cranford, N. J., chairman of the dance, led the senior figure. She wore a dress of delphinium blue chiffon and carried a bouquet of spring flowers. Her escort was Willis Jones, of the University of Virginia. Miss Jaquelin Cochran, of Alexandria, Va., assisted Miss Cruikshank in the figure with Mr. William McGowan, also of Alexandria. Miss Cochran wore a pink net frock and also carried spring flowers.

Grosvenors Plan Flight to Orient

Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor leave today for San Francisco to fly from there aboard the China Clipper May 5 for the Orient. They will leave San Francisco at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and arrive in Honolulu between 7 and 8 o'clock the next morning. There they will say farewell to the National Geographic-United States Navy eclipse expedition under Capt. Hellweg, of the United States Naval Observatory, which leaves there May 6. On May 7 they will take the clipper again, arriving in Manila May 11 and in Hongkong May 12.

They will do all their flying in the daytime. From Hongkong they expect to take a steamer to Shanghai, where their daughter, Mrs. Cabot Coville, will meet them and accompany them to Pekin, Nanking and on to Tokyo by way of Korea. They will visit in Tokyo with her and their son-in-law, who is second secretary of the United States Embassy there.

They plan to sail from Yokohoma July 3 on their return either to San Francisco or Seattle and will go from there to their summer home in Nova Scotia before coming back to Washington.

Their debutante daughter, Miss Gloria Grosvenor, is remaining here for the present, attending George Washington University. Later she may go to the West Coast for the summer.

June Wedding to Take Place at Parents' Home

Underwood & Underwood.

whose parents, Capt. and Mrs. David F. Ducey, announce her engagement to Ensign John Stuart Fletcher, U. S. N., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Fletcher, of San Francisco. The wedding will take place June 8 at 8 p. m. in the home of her parents at the Navy Yard. A large reception will follow. After the wedding Ensign Fletcher and his bride will go to the West Coast, where he will be stationed in Coronado.

Mrs. Taft, of Cincinnati, Will Be Toastmaster At League of Women Voters Dinner Tuesday

Mrs. Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati, as chairman of the council program of the National League of Women Voters, will be the toastmaster at the dinner to be given Tuesday night at Hotel Washington in connection with the meeting of the general council of the National League of Women Voters, which will convene at the Washington Hotel Monday for three days.

Other speakers at the dinner will be Mr. Henry M. Hart, jr., assistant professor of legal history at Harvard Law School, and Mr. E. E. Schattschneider, associate professor of governmenat at Wesleyan University. A special honor guest will be Mrs. Corbett Ashby, of London, president of the International Alliance of Women for Suffrage and Equal Citizenship. Mrs. George Gellhorn, of St. Louis, chairman of the patronage system in public appointments, will outline plans for the next campaign.

The Eckington W. T. C. U. met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. James Matthews. The vice president, Mrs. Warren B. Hadley, presided. Mrs. Floy Rechling had charge of the devotional service.

The union will visit the Washington Flour Mill May 13. Fifty dollars was collected for the educational fund. This entitles Eckington Union to two life memberships. Those selected for this honor were Mrs. Warren B. Hadley and Mrs. Edith Carlson. A white elephant party followed the meeting.

A swing dance will be held by the members of the Delta Epsilon Chapter of the Alpha Sigma Theta Sorority, at the Indian Spring Country Club. Miss Alma Closkey, secretary of Alpha Sigma Theta; Miss Josephine Carbine, president, and Miss Myrtle Eaton, custodian, are in charge of arrangements.

Mr. J. F. Laise, of Dickinson College, is in charge of arrangements for a dinner to be held May 7 in the Palm Room of 2400 Sixteenth street for the college alumni in Washington. Dinner is to be served at 7 p. m. and will be followed by bridge in the Red Room for those who care to remain later in the evening.

The Lookout Sunday School Class of the Sherwood Presbyterian Church entertained at its annual banquet Friday night in the Garden House of the Dodge Hotel. Miss Grace L. Putman presided.

Mrs. Ruth Walker, missionary from Ethiopia, was the guest of honor. She made a short talk and showed motion pictures of her work.

The officers of the class are Miss Putman, president; Mrs. Eilleen Montgomery, vice president; Mrs. Vida Brunner, recording secretary; Mrs. Jewel Aiken, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Hazel Greene, treasurer. Mrs. Jesse Cowles and Miss Helen Jamison are teachers.

Many Parties Planned For Guests of Envoys

Sister of Italian Ambassador Among Visitors; Sir Ronald and Lady Lindsay to Entertain Miss Ruth Draper.

Several members of the diplomatic corps have guests, and a series of parties is certain at embassies and legations.

Signorina Giunia de Suvich, sister of the Italian Ambassador, already has come to pay an extensive visit at the Embassy. Yesterday, her first day here, she was plunged immediately into the Washington whirl, as the Ambassador and Signora de Suvich entertained at a luncheon in honor of Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State. They will give a dinner on Tuesday, another smaller and less formal one on Wednesday and, on Saturday, May 15, comes the large dance for which they will issue invitations shortly.

This is Signorina de Suvich's first visit to this country. She speaks perfect English and her favorite sport is skiing. As her home is in Trieste, in northern Italy, she is near enough the mountains to take frequent week-end trips for winter sports.

A prospective visitor is Mr. Guido Aranha, brother of the Brazilian Ambassador, Mr. Oswaldo Aranha, who will arrive in New York next week aboard the Southern Cross. This will be his first trip to this country too. He is a bachelor and a business man in Rio de Janeiro. The Ambassador expects to go to New York to meet him.

Other visitors to the Capital, although they come from much nearer home, are Mr. and Mrs. Emil Stehli, of New York, who are spending the week-end with the Swiss Minister and Mme. Peter. The latter will entertain at a luncheon in their honor tomorrow at the Legation on Kalorama road.

The British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay expect to have Miss Ruth Draper as their guest next week. The famous monologuist, a close friend of Lady Lindsay, will arrive in Washington tomorrow or Monday.

Coming down from New York the middle of next week is Mr. Harry W. Taft, president of the Japan Society of New York, an organization to promote interest in that country and friendly relations between it and the United States. The Ambassador and Mme. Saito will entertain at a dinner in his honor Thursday evening.

The Japanese Envoy and Mme. Saito were guests of honor at a dinner given last evening by the Minister of Siam and Mme. Rajamaitri. Other guests were Mr. Francis Sayre, Assistant Secretary of State; Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Hamilton, Dr. and Mrs. Camp Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos del Mar, and Mr. Luang Bhakdi, Third Secretary of the Legation.

Son Born to Yaters.

Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Yater announce the birth of a son, April 24, at the Georgetown University Hospital. Dr. Yater is professor of medicine and chairman of the department of medicine at Georgetown University and is physician in chief at this hospital and also at Gallinger.

Gov. Arthur J. Weaver of Nebraska and Mrs. Weaver, and the former Governor of Nebraska, John H. Moorehead, and Mrs. Moorehead are in Washington for a few days at the Hotel Raleigh.

Associates Hosts To Mr. Cummings

Tender Surprise Luncheon on His Birthday.

The Attorney General, Mr. Homer S. Cummings, who celebrated his sixty-seventh birthday yesterday, was honored at a surprise luncheon at the Raleigh Hotel given by members of the Department of Justice.

The guests were Mr. Stanley Reed, the Solicitor General; Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; Mr. Robert Jackson, Mr. James W. Morris, Mr. Sam E. Whitaker, Mr. Carl McFarland, Mr. Brien McMahon, Mr. Golden W. Bell, Mr. Ugo Carusi, Mr. Gordon Dean, Mr. Clyde Tolson, Mr. Julius Martin, Mr. Robert M. Gates, Mr. William T. Hammack, Mr. Linton M. Collins, Mr. Nat M. Townsend, Mr. Salvator A. Andretta, Mr. Daniel Dyons, Mr. Joseph Lawrence and Mr. Paris Houston.

Mrs. Herbert Sparrow, sr., who has been spending the winter in Aldie, Va., has gone to Stockbridge, Mass., to remain until fall.

Large Throng Attends Stuyvesant Schools' Annual Horse Show Which Opened Gold Cup Race Week-End in Warrenton Setting

Mrs. Robert C. Winmill Appears in Cart Drawn by Four Shetland Ponies; Luncheon Given by the Kings Is Highlight.

By Lynda Reeve.

Stuyvesant School, at Warrenton, yesterday opened the Virginia Gold Cup week-end with its annual show. The show ring is located a few miles out from Warrenton in a setting of green pastures marked off by white fences.

Early in the morning the vans bringing prize-winning mounts began to arrive, followed shortly by spectators, many of whom had come to Warrenton for the Gold Cup Race this afternoon. It was an impressive sight—thoroughbreds tethered in the sunshine, their manes braided with vivid worsteds, and grooms rubbing them down; eager young riders comparing notes with one another while proud parents looked on.

Just before recess for luncheon Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, famous for her collection of mounts, which range from a team of zebras to four shetland ponies, arrived driving the ponies to her "brake." On the back seat of the red-wheeled cart sat the groom, blowing his long shining trumpet as the four animals pranced and tossed their heads.

Day for Dogs Also.

It was a day for dogs, too, "Irish," the Edwin Kings' genial terrier, wandered about, making friends and keeping an eye open for any tidbits. "Mimi," wire-haired that belongs to Mr. and Mrs. John L. R. Gaines, was more interested in the spectators than in the performing horses. Then there was "Dusty," a little Cairn, that came from Philadelphia to see her show his owner, Mrs. Harrison Colket, who is spending the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. King. Mrs. Colket wore a costume of gray shot with red and black with a cape and small, matching Scotch cap.

The show ring was deserted about the middle of the day as the crowd adjourned to Stuyvesant, where the Kings were holding open house for luncheon. Small tables and chairs were arranged beneath the shade trees on the lawn and two large tables were laden with salads, cold meats and relishes, while white-coated servants passed hot biscuits, vegetables and coffee. The hostess was costumed in oxford gray. Her husband, in English tweeds, was busily taking moving pictures of the guests. Miss Emily North King, another daughter, assisted her mother in serving, and had changed from the smart dark blue side-saddle riding habit, in which we had seen her earlier, to tan coat and breeches.

Jerry Webb Present.

Among those in the luncheon crowd were Mr. Jerry Webb, whose name has been added to the list of those to be tried for the part of Rhett Butler in the film version of "Gone With the Wind;" Mrs. Paige Biddle, who recently has leased Glen Burnie, and who yesterday was wearing a becoming coral and white blocked crepe ensemble; Mrs. Daniel C. Sands, with Mrs. Ray Belmont; Mr. and Mrs. John Buchanan, the latter in a tan tailleur; Mr. and Mrs. Gould Shaw, accompanied by their small daughter, Yolande; Mr. Robert Winmill, and Miss Viola Winmill, who was a consistent winner at the show; Mr. and Mrs. Murray Black, Mrs. A. M. Keith, wearing a chartreuse tweed topcoat over her riding habit, accompanied by her two children, Jim and Ella Wood; Mrs. Phillip Lee in a cool-looking blue and white printed frock, with which she wore a large hat with a white brim and dark blue crown; the Misses Thelma and Mary Grace Black, wearing identical suits of cherry tweed; Mr. Richard MacSherry, Miss Wilhelmina Kirby, in navy blue with white piping down the front; Mr. William Brainard, and Mr. Richard Wallach.

Others included Mr. Oscar T. Crosby and his daughter, Mrs. Celeste Crosby Miller, smartly attired in black, her breton sailor of shiny straw fashioned with a wide band across the back; Mrs. Catherine Bowman, in gray checks with a soft grayish-green felt hat; Mrs. Melvin Bearns, Miss Mary Tyler McCormack in cocoa brown, Miss Louise Chase Myers and Lieut. John Pugh, Mr. Reed Thomas, Miss Christine Ekengren, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sturges, she wearing a checked coat of soft tones with a bright kerchief knotted about her throat and a dark blue felt hat; Mr. Basil Hall, Miss Mildred Gaines, Mrs. Cook Crawley, in dark gray with black accessories; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pool, she in navy blue with white banding her hat; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McGrath, the latter wearing a plaid suit of tan with a touch of red, green and black, and brown accessories; Mrs. Adeline Seere, Mrs. Francis Greene, in beige with a green coat; Mr. David Bachelder, Miss Jane Wilbur, Mrs. George Sloane, wearing a plaid skirt of soft shades of blue and gray, gray coat and dark blue hat; Miss Mary Elizabeth Damon, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Phipps, the latter costumed in blue; Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton, she in tan, and Dr. and Mrs. James Sinclair, she wearing a jacket of pale pink tweed with skirt and hat of orchid wool.

Mrs. Emory Sands will leave tomorrow for a stay of a week or ten days in New York. She is Washington representative of the New York World's Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sard entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon. Others entertaining at cocktail parties were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey and Sir Willmott and Lady Lewis.

Mrs. James Roosevelt, daughter-in-law of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins entertained at a luncheon yesterday.

Among the guests at the luncheon which Mr. and Mrs. Edwin King gave yesterday during the horse show at Warrenton were Miss Anne Kenyon and her escort, Mr. North Fletcher, both popular members of the younger Virginia set.

Little Miss Elliewood Keith and her young brother, Master James Keith, took time out between classes at the Horse Show at Stuyvesant School, Warrenton, yesterday to see that their horse, Lady Bird, was properly saddled. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Keith.

The MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

Whirlographs on the Stuyvesant Horse Show at Warrenton yesterday:

Mrs. John Buchanan entering into the spirit of the occassion, even to the selection of her jewelry—bracelets of golden links, horse heads and wee foxes "under glass"—a tiny, gold wire-haired terrier on one lapel.

Mr. Murray Black walking past us, accompanied by his young stepson, astride a cute fat pony. The young lad, not looking a minute over 9 years, suddenly stopped his chatter about the show to inquire like a grown-up, "Incidentally, what is the hour?"

Three youngsters deserting their horses long enough to beg some used bulbs from our hard-working photographer, and we wondering what, just what, they intended to do with them (you know the noise they make).

Araminta Veeder, thoughtful as well as attractive person, rescuing the silver dishes of chocolate mints from the tables in the sun and taking them off to the cool shade to await the arrival of the luncheon guests at the King's party.

Bob Davis wandering about at Stuyvesant, with a fond glint in his eye—he used to go to school there some years back.

Johnny Pugh striving to fix a ladder of sharpshooter's medals, first trying to pinch the hooks together with a couple of pennies and finally resorting to pliers from his car.

And the topic of conversation that ranked third to the show and today's race—the threatened rain—which did not appear.

To be stationed far from water certainly would be strict punishment for Horace Smith. In spite of being in the Army he follows the sea. When, a year or so ago, he was the proud possessor of The Lucy and was ordered away he sold his little craft. Now, back again, he has had a watchful eye on shipbuilders in the vicinity, with the result that he is now owner of The Hobby. Appropriate name, too.

Miss Lamphier Married.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Ruth Lamphier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Elmer Lamphier, of Mount Rainier, Md., to Mr. Russell W. Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Carr, took place in the Riverside Methodist Church, Miami, Fla., April 19 with the Rev. Rufus Wickers officiating.

Miss Louise Morse To Wed on June 26

The engagement of Miss Louise Morse, instructor in physical education for women at American University, and Dr. J. Albert Wood, jr., instructor in electrical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been announced. Miss Morse has resigned her post at American University and will leave in June for her home in Cleveland, Ohio, where the wedding will take place June 26.

One of the attendants will be her sister, Miss Mary Elizabeth Morse, now a sophomore at American University. Graduating from Oberlin College in 1930, the bride-to-be was an instructor at the University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y., before coming to American University about three years ago.

Capt. Hsaio Host At Chinese Dinner

Capt. Pu Hsaio, of the office of the Chinese Embassy Military Attache, and Mrs. Hsaio, gave a Chinese dinner at the Chinese Republic Restaurant last evening in honor of Col. and Mrs. John Breitling Coulter and Col. and Mrs. H. W. Huntley, of the U. S. Army.

The guests were Dr. Yung Kwai, an official adviser to the Chinese Embassy, and Mrs. Kwai; Mr. Z. T. Eng, Councilor of Chinese Embassy, and Mrs. Eng; Mr. P. Y. Ho, First Secretary of Chinese Embassy, and Mrs. Ho; Mr. J. T. Sheih, Attache of Chinese Embassy, and Mrs. Sheih; Dr. Arthur W. Hummel, director of the Oriental Division of the Library of Congress and Mrs. Hummel; Maj. and Mrs. Robert A. McClure.

Miss Jones Wed To Mr. Adams

Ceremony Is Performed at All Souls' Episcopal Church Here.

Miss Irene Marion Jones, daughter of Mrs. Harry Humphrey Jones and the late Mr. Jones, of Chisholm, Minn., yesterday became the bride of Mr. William Muirhead Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lesson H. Adams, of Bradley Hills Grove, Md. The ceremony was performed at noon at All Souls' Episcopal Church, with Dr. H. H. D. Sterrett officiating.

The bride was attended by Miss Madeline Adams, sister of the bridegroom, and Mr. Adams had as his best man Mr. Kinsey Jones, who, although his name is the same, is not a relative of the bride.

She wore a tan cape suit with luggage brown accessories, a broad-brimmed hat of the same shade and a corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Miss Adams wore a coat suit of banana yellow with a small hat and a corsage of talisman roses.

Plan Tea Tomorrow.

The Democratic Women's National Council will entertain informally at tea on Sunday from 4 to 6 o'clock at its club headquarters, 1325 New Hampshire avenue northwest. Mrs. S. Jennings Asbury, chairman of the council's absentee voting unit, will act as hostess. The next tea will be on Sunday, June 6.

Elizabeth S. Gill Is Engaged to Wed Lt. F. P. Norman

An engagement of interest here is that of Miss Elizabeth Suzanne Gill, daughter of Lieut. Col. William H. Gill, U. S. A., and Mrs. Gill, to Lieut. Frank P. Norman, jr., U. S. A. The engagement was announced by the parents of the bride-to-be at their home in Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, where Lieut. Col. Gill was recently transferred after serving in Washington on the War Department general staff.

Miss Gill, a granddaughter of the late Senator John C. Grady, of Philadelphia, and Mr. John L. Gill, of Leesburg, Va.

Lieut. Norman, who is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank P. Norman, of Columbus, Ga., is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, class of 1936. The wedding will take place in June at Schofield Barracks.

Will Entertain Today.

Mrs. Harllee Branch is entertaining today in the Colonial room of the Wardman Park Hotel for Frau Stressman and Mrs. Frank Mason, of New York, who are in Washington for the week end. She will have 14 guests.

Luncheon Honor Guest.

Mrs. Charles M. Lea entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of her guest, Mrs. Grainger Kennedy, of Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Mrs. Stokes To Entertain Choral Group

Luncheon Set Wednesday for Cathedral Women's Committee.

Session Will Draw Many to District From Other States.

Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes will entertain at luncheon Wednesday of next week at her home on Massachusetts avenue for state chairmen and special representatives of women's committees for Washington Cathedral who will be here during the week. More than 50 will come to Washington for the annual sessions to be held in connection with the annual meeting of the National Cathedral Association, of which they are a part.

Wednesday afternoon, following the luncheon, the Cathedral committees will visit the gardens of Dumbarton Oaks, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, and later will be entertained at tea, with members of the Cathedral chapter and council and their wives, by Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton, wife of the former Ambassador to the Court of St. James'.

The sessions will open Tuesday evening when eight members of the central committee will gather at the Shoreham for their initial conference, under the leadership of Mrs. William Adams Brown, of New York, national advisory chairman. Among them will be Mrs. Ernest R. Adee, vice chairman for New York; Mrs. Irene du Pont, chairman for Delaware; Mrs. William Schofield, Newhampshire chairman; Mrs. Charles Warren, of Washington, who represents the District of Columbia and environs; Mrs. George Wharton Pepper, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Arthur McGraw, Michigan; Mrs. Harper Sibley, of Washington and Rochester, N. Y., and Mrs. Stokes.

Thursday the women's committees will participate in the business session of the National Cathedral Association at Whitby Hall at 11 o'clock, when several of the chairmen will assist Mrs. Brown in presenting a report of committee activities for Washington Cathedral in various parts of the country. Mrs. Frederic W. Rhinelander, chairman for New York, also will present the annual report for the New York committee.

All of the visiting chairmen and the State representatives will attend the luncheon to be held on the Cathedral Close prior to the installation of the dean-elect, the Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, D. D., which occurs at 4 p. m. in the great choir and sanctuary of Washington Cathedral.

Peruvian Envoy Host.

The Peruvian Ambassador to Chile, Dr. Carlos Concha, was host at a luncheon at the Shoreham yesterday. The Ambassador is in Washington on a special mission and expects to leave the latter part of next week by airplane for Lima, where he will stop before proceeding to Chile.

Moves to Wardman Park.

Representative Franck R. Havenner, of California, has taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel, where he will make his home during the coming months.

Join Father Here.

Senator Ernest W. Gibson, of Vermont, who makes his home at the Wardman Park Hotel, has been joined in his apartment by his sons, Mr. Ernest W. Gibson, jr., and Mr. Preston F. Gibson, of Brattleboro, Vt.

Food Choice Essential in Child Health

Natural Sugar Supplies Extra Energy for Youngster.

By Rebekah Blake.

CHILD HEALTH DAY has its ninth celebration today. The slogan chosen for this is "Health protection for every child."

Without adequate food the child will not grow and develop properly. Food is responsible for a child's straight, well-formed body, his good teeth and his resistance to infection. The essentials of diet are: Plenty of safe milk, cheese or fish, breads and vegetables, some of them raw; eggs, meat, cheese or fish, breads, cereals, butter and other fats and some sweets. Vitamin D is necessary for a complete diet. Besides in summer sun, this may be found in cod liver oil and Vitamin D milk.

May Day is not the only day when mothers notice their childrens' food. They feed their youngsters wholesome and healthful food every day through the year, of course. The difficult problem is—to know new foods that are appetizing and appealing to children as well as healthful.

Natural Sugar Best.

The more active your child, the greater his energy needs, and this extra energy, in addition to the basic diet is best found in the form of natural sugar. This is probably the most quickly assimilated form of carbohydrate. It may be obtained in honey, syrup and some fruits and other foods. Extra and concentrated amounts may be added to the child's diet in his glass of milk, his puddings and desserts and even on his fruit or breakfast cereal.

Mothers ask, "when should I begin giving my child meat?" According to most authorities, a child should have servings of tender meat as soon as he is able to chew. Even earlier, crisp bacon and scraped beef may be given. Meat deserves a prominent place in the child's diet. It is one of the best sources of protein, the body building material, and it furnishes minerals which children must have if their bodies are to grow strong.

Meats for children should be prepared simply. Broiled steaks and chops and roasts are well suited to the child's meals. Stews also are good, their combination of vegetables being more appetizing because of the meat flavor. Liver is important because it is an exceptionally rich source of iron and copper, two minerals frequently lacking in the child's diet.

For school children an adequate lunch is essential. For many children, the school lunch bridges the gap between under nutrition and good nutrition. The best method of assuring good nutrition is to provide at school a meal built around the needs of the child. In certain communities, relief agencies are seeing that such lunches are provided for undernourished children.

Combat undernutrition by seeing that the children get plenty of milk. If they can take extra milk, so much the better. So, in addition to the full cup or half-cup of milk at each meal, use milk in the preparation of some of the main dishes suggested for these special school lunches. Even canned, evaporated or powdered dried milk are helpful for this purpose.

Children who live in localities where it is difficult to obtain frequent deliveries of fresh foods are fortunate in that their families are able to store canned foods which are safe for them and available at all times and in all climates. These foods give variety to the diet, and when it comes to baby food, every mother is assured that the very finest products that can be obtained are used in preparing them. Prepared baby foods come in the form of cereals, fruits, vegetables and soups. By having a variety, it is possible for each mother to find just the kinds that suit her child. Babies are no more alike in tastes than grown-up people and each one must be studied if it is to be fed correctly and to the best advantage.

In-between Snack.

What child doesn't come in from school or play and say, "Gee, mother, I'm starved; can I have something good to eat?" It isn't wise to feed a child "just anything" as a "between-meal snack." Keep in your refrigerator jars of sandwich fillings that you have prepared and know to be healthful. Make this array of spreads run from sweet to sour and every mood and appetite may be satisfied. Here are some suggestions for zestful sandwich spreads: Peanut butter and crushed pineapple, cream cheese, mayonnaise and nuts, dates chopped and moistened with orange juice, and ground cooked ham, hard-cooked eggs, pickles and mayonnaise. Serve these spreads on bread or crackers with a glass of fruit juice or milk.

Homemakers have discovered that youngsters are sensitive to textures, flavors and appearance of their food—and what is good for them may still be served so they will "eat it and like it." A famous doctor once said that the things you like best—providing they are healthful to start with—are the things which do you the most good. Simple but attractive-looking dishes are the popular and good for them kind—and the recipes given below are both simple to make, healthful for youngsters and festive enough for that all-important eye-appeal.

Banana Muffins.

1 cup sifted flour
½ teasp. salt
¼ teasp. soda
1 teasp. baking powder
2 tbsps. sugar
1 egg, well beaten
2 tbsps. melted shortening or oil
3 tbsps. sour milk or buttermilk
1 cup thinly sliced banana (2 bananas).

Sift together the flour, salt, soda, baking powder and sugar. Combine the egg, shortening, milk and sliced banana. Stir until banana is broken into small pieces. Combine liquid and dry ingredients, stirring only enough to dampen all the flour. Bake in well-greased muffin pans in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) 30 to 35 minutes. Makes 4 large or 8 small muffins.

Baked Pears.

White karo Cornflakes

Roll pears in cornflakes and place in buttered baking dish. Pour in a little karo and bake in moderate oven until fruit is tender and delicately brown. Serve hot with a sauce made from the pear juice, slightly thickened and flavored as desired. These are properly a luncheon dessert, but are sometimes served, in the adult menu, as a meat accompaniment with spices added.

Chocolate Mountains.

1 cup milk 1½ tablespoon cocoa
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons dark karo
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Scald syrup with ¾ cup milk. Mix cornstarch, cocoa and cold milk to smooth paste; add slowly to hot milk, stirring constantly until mixture is thick and smooth. Cover and cook 20 minutes over hot water. Pour into cups and chill. Serve with plain cream or soft custard.

Snowy Fruit Mounds.

Allow two slices plain or sponge cake, or two flat cookies for each serving. Put slices together, covering tops with sweetened crushed berries or pineapple, sliced apricots, peaches or bananas, or sections of oranges, free from membrane. Pour fruit juice over fruit as needed. Sprinkle generously moist sweetened coconut over each layer. Garnish with whipped cream around base, if desired.

Cure Child's Hunger With Health Foods

It is a difficult job for mothers to plan foods that are appealing to eye and palate as well as healthful for children. When youngsters come in from play or school, hungry, don't give them just anything but plan interesting sandwich spreads that are rich in vitamins. Serve fruit punch or milk with these sandwiches.

Cretonne on Cardboard Makes Sewing Card

How to make a sewing card: Cover a large piece of cardboard with cretonne. Sew a large cretonne pocket near the bottom for darning cotton, etc.; a pin cushion in the center above the pocket; a piece of elastic caught down at 2-inch intervals across the top to hold scissors, etc. Along each side of the card punch pairs of holes, put string through the spools, then through holes in card and tie at back (you can thus pull off thread as you need it—and the spool remains on the card). Hang on wall above sewing machine.—Earl Dean, Woodstock, N. Y.

Cherry Pie Hints.

To prevent juice from running out of cherry pies fit bottom crust into pan, flute edge, add cherry mixture, sugar, etc. Take a lid which just fits over the top of the fruit and using it as a pattern, cut the top crust. Prick the circle of dough and lay loosely on fruit. Then when pie expands, the top crust rises making it possible for juice to run out.—Mrs. Voyle Teets, Peck, Mich.

Actress Gives Tips on Adding To Life of Hose

WITH GIRLS who complain of their stocking bills, Anne Shirley, movie actress, has no patience. Miss Shirley, who prides herself on her stocking wardrobe, believes that most girls do not know how to take care of silk hose. She gives the following advice:

First of all, buy hose that are long enough in the foot. If the foot-size is too small, your toes will go through them in no time. Then again, short stockings are very uncomfortable and, as any shoe clerk will tell you, are as bad as short shoes.

Don't look for bargains in stockings. Buy known brands, as they are the only reliable kind. And don't expect sheer evening chiffons to wear as well as the more sturdy kind.

When the salesgirl tries to sell you several pairs of the same shade, she's really doing you a favor, because if you get a run in one stocking you can save the other one until one of the second pair is ruined. You therefore get three times as much wear from two pairs of hose.

Putting stockings on the right way will save you lots of heartaches. Don't hold a stocking on the top and then thrust their foot into it. This is the best way to snag a pair of hose, because you're sure to push your toe right through the delicate threads. Instead, roll the stocking to the ankle and then put it on.

Rinse your hose after every wear, but don't use soap more than twice a week. When you do, use soap flakes and be certain to rinse it out thoroughly. This will prevent the color from fading and taking on a peculiar lavender cast.

Finally—keep the seams of your hose straight. Even the most beautiful legs look ugly in stockings with crooked seams.

If you want to flavor soups with onion without directly adding the onion to the soup, buy an aluminum teaball at any dime store and drop the tea-ball, full of chopped onion, into the soup while in the making.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Solution to Older Folks' Problems.

In her book called "Guiding Your Life," Dr. Josephine Jackson considers some of the problems which confront older people.

Being Out of Sorts: In middle age, when many of the responsibilities of life have been taken away, people are sometimes inclined to become discontented. They are "out of sorts" all day long. One woman said, "I am not like myself any more." She felt sick all over. Every time she would complain she would be advised to go to a doctor. In the course of time she had X-rays of every part of her body, reports on examination of her blood and of her other excretions, tracings of her heart and respiration and blood pressure.

With all of them there was just a little something wrong because she was a middle-aged woman, but that wasn't what was the matter with her. Like Othello, her occupation was gone. Her children had grown up. Some changes had occurred in the glands all over her body; the sap wasn't flowing quite as rapidly.

For women of this kind, Dr. Jackson has three words of advice: One is a balanced diet with a predominance of fruits and vegetables as time goes on. Second, don't let any nervous habit grow on you, such as "feeling your feelings" or noticing any little nervous sensations; they will soon be forgotten if you ignore them. Third, go on with the job of setting your children an example of an unselfish woman who is willing to meet life unafraid. In thinking of your families you will save yourselves.

Another type of experience, which is fundamentally the same thing, is a woman who writes as follows:

"I wonder if you could offer any advice to a woman of 48, mother of five grown children and grandmother of two babies?

"I am so lazy! I keep writing schedules for my work and plans for my garden, but I peter out before I do more than get my men folk off to work in the morning. I do my washing and ironing all through the week and accomplish little, just rousing to clear up and get dinner for their home-coming at night."

Women like this are apt to get the idea that there is something physically the matter with them. Of course, it is well enough to have an examination to prove whether there is or not, but fundamentally the trouble is psychological. She should humor herself a little. It is perfectly natural, after a useful, busy life, that she should feel let down. Give in to it. Take some rest. A man of this type needs a hobby and so does a woman. In the course of time, the tides of life will flow back and a feeling of health will be restored.

Recipes Wanted Using Chocolate; Prizes Offered

CHOCOLATE holds its place as one of the most popular flavors and versatile foods of this country.

The Post recipe contest this week is for recipes containing chocolate. The awards for this contest are $3 for first prize, $2 for second prize, and $1 for each of the three remaining prizes.

Any chocolate recipe is acceptable. You may have an idea for chocolate cake, pie, pudding or candy. And there are many varieties of each of these. Chocolate cookies, eclairs, frosting, mousse, ice cream and chocolate milk shakes and chocolate bread and waffles are only a few of the many ideas that may be followed when using chocolate.

Write your recipe neatly, and send it to Rebekah Blake, The Post Food Editor, so she will receive it not later than Saturday noon. Be sure to write your name and address clearly on your recipe.

Only one recipe will be accepted from each contestant.

Light Fruit Dessert Can Be Made Unusual

The perfect finish to a substantial dinner or supper is a light fruit dessert. But, for all its simplicity, it need not lack a touch of luxury if you choose your fruit desserts from among the many which include coconut.

FRENCH OMELET WITH ASPARAGUS.

Beat 4 eggs slightly with 4 tablespoons milk; add ½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper, and mix thoroughly. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in the omelet pan and when hot add eggs. As they cook lift up with spatula, letting uncooked portion run underneath. Cook until creamy, increase heat to brown quickly, fold and turn out. Put creamed asparagus between and around the omelet.

When darning the heel or any part of a stocking, do not darn on the straight of the material, for then when you draw the stocking on your foot, it will pull out again. Darn on the bias and it will give with every pull.

When washing windows, use a 10 cent plate scraper, with the sides cut so they are straight. You will find the straight edges of the scraper a tremendous help in getting dust and dirt out of window corners.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Girl Who's Been Here Three Years Makes Friends but Can't Hold Them; She Seeks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have read your column often during the three years I have been in Washington, always in the hope of finding a solution to my problem. In the years I have lived in this city I have not been able to keep friends. Oh, I make them readily enough and am considered a good sport, but they just don't stick. Here today and gone tomorrow is the type I seem to meet.

* * * *

I am considered attractive, not pretty, but even with that asset my chances for friends are slim. In the town where I used to live I had many friends, both male and female. What I am trying to say is: if I was once able to make friends and keep them, why is it impossible to do so now? Please advise me as soon as possible.

PERPLEXED.

* * * *

DEAR PERPLEXED: Has it ever occurred to you to analyze what you had in the town where you used to live that you don't have here in Washington? Wasn't it family background of sorts, a more or less comfortable home which effectively framed your attractive personality, and the means of dispensing the hospitality of food, drink and congenial companionship to friends?

* * * *

A girl coming to a strange city to live, who hopes to make and hold friends, should immediately set about creating a home setting and an aura of assured social stability about herself. She can't prowl the social avenues lone-wolf fashion, saying goodbye or goodnight on the doorstep to chance-met friends and expect to find herself eventually the center of an intimate little group.

* * * *

As I see it, your first move is to find some girl who will share a small apartment or light housekeeping rooms with you. This holds expenses down while providing each with a social chaperone of sorts, and doubles the social contacts of both. For each is bound to meet the other's friends. Furnish the place at least partially with your own things (old or new), so that your temporary home tells its own story of your taste, background and personality. Stock food and drink, if only fancy cheeses and crackers, and light wines, fruit juices or ale—something, in other words, that will keep indefinitely and not necessarily on ice. If you can afford quarters with a stove and an ice box, go as far as you like in the way of such fixings—tea or cocoa with sandwiches; coffee with scrambled eggs and toast; or even a four-course meal.

* * * *

Give the place a "lived-in" look. Have a small radio, books, magazines, a few fresh flowers stuck in a vase, and then when you meet persons you like, ask them to come and see you at home. If they come, make them comfortable in a casual way. And try to see that pleasant introductions are effected under your roof. Build a modest reputation for knowing likable people.

* * * *

A girl who makes a habit of asking persons to her home is never in the position of seeming to pursue any given man or girl. Her invitations are issued in a casual, matter-of-course manner to persons who happen to strike her fancy. If they come, well and good. If they don't, no harm was done in asking. And persons who call to find her cozily situated in her own little place, with another girl for "family," will ever receive the dismal impression that she's a lonely social misfit.

* * * *

Your whole trouble, as I see it, is that you have continued for three years to present yourself in the guise of a hanger-on on the fringe of other people's lives, rather than as a person with an established place of her own in the social scheme of things. Incidentally, the quantity and kind of social contacts you make depends very largely on the interests you have. If you have no definite interests, you are not likely to make many really congenial friends. Are you interested in writing, painting, music, sports, literature? There are writers' clubs, painting classes, music study groups, sports centers, etc., in goodly number here in Washington, open to persons whose only credentials need be a sincere interest in or talent for the subject itself.

M. H.

* * * *

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Daily I watch letters written you and I feel none of them are so vital as my problem. So I am hoping you will see it and help me. I am living with my parents on a very small place in the country. They are sending two younger brothers to high school and there is really not enough money to keep things going. They put me through high school and eight months at business college.

* * * *

I am a good typist, can cook, keep house, wave hair; in fact, my hands can do almost anything. But I have not had anyone to help me; any influence whatsoever. I am anxious to get a place in someone's home as companion secretary, so I can at least support myself.

* * * *

Will you publish this for me and help me, for it is more vital than any love affair.

F. L.

* * * *

DEAR F. L.: I agree with you that no problem, from the jobless person's point of view, seems so important as that of how to make a living. But as I have stated here time and again, this department was not instituted to serve as a job-finding agency. The reason is obvious—a great many agencies and mediums already exist for bringing together the job and the person to fill it. There are commercial employment agencies, Federal employment agencies, personnel directors and advertising columns whose whole aim and purpose is to serve in this capacity.

* * * *

However, I am willing to make, in your case, one more exception to the general ruling adopted by this department in this regard. If your letter should bring any inquiries, they will be promptly forwarded to you.

M. H.

Earn a Trip By Budgeting

HAPPY KEN and Lois! Off for their first vacation in five years—because this year they budgeted. Free from care for two whole weeks! No worries over money! They'll gather energy, meet stimulating new people, come home refreshed, thankful that their budget made this grand trip possible.

Ken is mighty proud of the way Lois pulled them out of their financial muddle. They used to live a sort of day-by-day existence hoping things would come out even, afraid the wouldn't. And sure enough, the first of the month bills crowded them farther and farther into debt.

Lois found out how a budget helps them get more for their money than they used to. With planned spending they can take advantage of sales they had to pass up before. Their budget is a yardstick to measure the importance of things they'd like to buy. Expensive, out of season peaches or local strawberries in season? The dress with the large, faddy print or the simple navy crepe which will be just as smart next spring?

Following the tips of our 40-page booklet, How To Budget Your Income, they divided Ken's salary to cover rent, clothings, savings, food, amusements, and so on. They started with the percentages that thousands of budgeteers in their income group have found most workable, made alterations here and there to suit their special needs. You, too, can work out a dollar stretching budget plan with the help of this booklet.

This Dress Can Go Anywhere All Summer

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, April 30.

THIS BEING MAY DAY, which the doggerel says marks the end of the showers and the start of the flowers, it is also parade day, when up from the lower East Side come the proletariat to march through the business district shouting for some ephemeral something a bit better than what they have. They are always very much interested in the freeing of old Tom Mooney, and they are violently opposed to fascism.

ALICE HUGHES.

The procession, which goes on for hours, usually passes my house and then turns down Park avenue past the dear old Union League Club. I don't think the marchers know what that millionaires' building is, for they never seem to turn on any extra hate when they pass it, let alone shying a dornick or two at the moribund old bank presidents who sit for years in the big windows.

As many women march as men—perhaps more. I have stood in the Red Square in Moscow for hours on May Day and watched that demonstration, but it is far more upsetting to see them on the march in your own town, with bands playing the "Internationale" in streets used to such tunes as "East Side, West Side and the "Miserers" from "Trovatore."

Of course, May Day is a little confusing here, because the Socialist Party parades only a block away from the Communists, and they seem to want something a little different. Occasionally they meet, and then there is a jolly public street-fight, until hundreds of gendarmes arrive and start thumping every head in sight. Rather an exciting day, this. It's the one on which the men and women come above Fourteenth street to show the workday town some class-consciousness.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Prunella Wood and I are slowly recovering from the big fashion show we gave in honor of the wives of visiting editors and publishers from all over the country, here for their annual convention. If I do say it as shouldn't, it was a pretty hot one, with gorgeous mannequins wearing magnificent furs, jewels, frocks and fetching negligees. Our only trouble was that the editors themselves fought their way in, leaving precious little room for their ladies. But as many as got in seemed to have a good time.

* * * *

Speaking of fancy raiment, did you know that many "society" women here have what they call their "Colony Restaurant clothes?" Yes, indeed. You can't just snatch one of these hoity matrons off the street and lug her to the Colony for lunch. She dresses and primps with as much care as though she were headed for a Buckingham Palace garden party. That's because she will have to submit to the vulgar stares of the rest of the well-dressed sisterhood, also the society and fashion reporters who lurk there every day at 1. "Names" make the column—women like Beth Leary, Dream Girl Eleanor Young, Mrs. Dodge Sloane, Jessie Donahue, Mrs. Henry Luce and dozens more. And you'd better look your smartest, girls. And, mind, never wear the same hat twice!

* * * *

"Snooks" is back in town, she being the 20-month old leopard lady that Lint Wells and his wife, Flier Fay Gillis, brought back from Ethiopia. Snooks is still very playful, batting a rubber ball around, and the Wellses refuse to turn the gal over to a handy zoo. I insist that a big forest cat is always just that, and that some day dear Snooksie will bat someone down and perhaps gnaw off an arm. I'm no sissy. Heaven knows, but Baby Snooks is definitely not on by calling list.

Bags That Match Hats Newest Fad

Ann Sheridan Among Film Stars in New Style.

Hollywood.—An interesting trend in bags is that girls are now getting them to match their hats instead of their shoes. Ann Sheridan, movie actress, wears a black Milan straw hat and carries an envelope bag of the same weave. The cartwheel hat has a little clump of violets posed against the crown and the bag has the same detail stitched to one corner.

Peggy Shannon has a similar twist to her spring accessories. Her tiny hat is made of navy blue belting ribbon with white forget-me-nots for detail. The bag she carries with it is as round as the hat and has a tiny bouquet of the same white flowers fastened to the center of the circle.

Since hat materials in this day and age are chosen for their suppleness and comfort, there isn't a single medium that can't be converted into a bag as well.

Painted Nails Not Advised for Stenographers

Survey Declares That Short Sleeves Also Distract Attention.

IT IS ALL RIGHT for typists to paint their finger nails deep red, and wear sleeves less than 4 inches long. But it is not good form for stenographers to do so.

This is one of the conclusions reached in the new personality and ability chart for women office workers which will be issued this spring by the Transcription Supervisors Association of New York.

The chart, intended to settle disputed points of manners, dress and ability for typists and stenographers, has been taking form as a result of conference held through the winter by teachers and employers of office workers. Both groups exchanged opinions and experiences freely in the hope of drawing up a code for young women seeking jobs and of bringing standards of business schools in line with the requirements of office executives.

At the conferences it was decided that typists should be allowed more latitude in dress and nail polish than stenographers because red nails and exposed arms distract the attention of employers dictating letters. Awkward posture, dressy clothes and too much lipstick generally were disapproved.

The chart will show that employers prefer the following personal attributes in women office workers: Good enunciation and pronunciation, sportsmanship, controlled emotions and an outwardly cheerful appearance at all times. They also prefer a girl who carries herself well, has a clear complexion, vigorous health and even disposition, makes clear and concise statements and knows how to express herself.

From the teachers, the employer group learned that they must not expect the average beginner in shorthand to take down more than 80 words a minute, which is the maximum required in many schools, although 120 words is considered the average speed at which dictation is given. Graduates of the city high schools after two years of stenographic study, plus one year of secretarial training, are capable of taking dictation at 90 words a minute, it was agreed.

Although a preference is given in some offices to college-trained girls, Miss Gertrude Scanlan, office manager and member of the association, expressed the opinion that girls who have been trained at women's colleges make very poor stenographers, although they are successful in other branches of office work.

Multi-Coloring Is Fad in Gloves

Ornate Trimmings of Embroidery Included.

Paris, (U.P.).—The multi-colored glove is in with a bang—not only two-colored effects but ornate colored embroidery trimming as well. The Beauvais floral patterns are used frequently on the backs as well as the gauntlets of dressy gloves, while crowns, rampant lions, unicorns, stars and other emblems of the coronation are embroidered on gloves for afternoon wear.

Shiny patent leather gloves are a new fantasy for street wear and are shown in all the bright colors combined with the same shade of suede. The patent leather is used only on the back of the hand as it would crease and crack if used for the palm.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

ONE WOMAN we know has done a lot of brightening in her living room lately by getting the best of a color combination she was tired of—green and rust. At first it seemed a fairly hopeless task unless she was willing to just scrap everything and start over (and who wants to do just that even if the budget would allow). Her stumbling block, do what she would, was her rug—a handsome Oriental of noble proportions which had green and rust predominating. This seemed hopeless until she suddenly discovered quite a liberal amount of deep fine blue here and there in the rug.

That was her cue and she made the best of it. A lot of blue instead of green elsewhere would bring out that blue in the rug. She decided that if she eliminated all the green that she could in the room, substituting blues and beige, she might have something. And, quite definitely she has. First, beige for the walls. The green toile draperies were discarded (faded and droopy anyway) and new blue glazed chintz substituted—straight-hanging pull draperies, generously box-pleated, with beige ball fringe for decoration around the edges. New occasional tables to replace a bedraggled assortment were in blone-wood finish. The two large easy chairs that flanked the fireplace were fitted with absolutely wrinkleless slip-covers of linen—deep-blue background with lovely beige scrolls and whorls for a pattern. The sofa was left in its warm rust color. Green lamp shades (that were about ready to go anyway) were discarded ruthlessly and beige ones substituted—beige with dark-blue ball fringe on one to complement the draperies, beige with rust on another.

As much green as possible was banished in accessories, too—green bowls and knick-knacks that weren't particularly fine in the first place. The room is new and smart without being the least bit self-conscious. It's a good idea, if you want to change your outlook, to give the things you must keep a chance; with new auxiliary colors they often step right out of their lethargy and look as up to date as your new chromium-trimmed streamlined car.

It's nice to have the big city papers for you, but when I want some real criticism and want'ta git the lowdown on my work, I go for the country newspapers.

I'll never forget the time a big New York show played in Van Buren in a tent. Next mornin' a big piece came out in the Van Buren Press-Argus just rakin' the show over the coals. The manager of the show came down and he cornered the writer in the newspaper office and he says, "What does a country hick like you know about a New York show? You never wrote a play in your life!"

The Argus reporter says, "No, I never laid an egg, either, but I know more about an omelet than any hen!"

Retirements.

As the month ended retirements were again in order.

A real veteran worker left the Government service yesterday when Hugh A. Morrison, senior custodian of the Representatives' reading room of the Library of Congress, returned to private life. He was the longest in continuous service among the nearly 800 employes of the library.

He held office under three librarians of Congress, Ainsworth R. Spofford, John Russell Young and Herbert Putnam, and his tenure after he had reached the retirement age was twice extended by Executive order. As senior custodian of the Representatives' reading room, he was held in high esteem by the numerous members frequenting that room, or calling him by telephone, for assistance in identifying subject material in the collections.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Morrison started his life among books as page in the Peabody Library in that city. In a short time he was made chief assistant in its reading room and later a cataloguer. Then Dr. Spofford heard of him and summoned him to a post in the Library of Congress, at that time housed in the Capitol. This was in 1890, and for seven years Mr. Morrison was an assistant in what is now commonly called "the old Library." In 1897 he assisted in planning and effecting the removal of the books to the "new Library," the building which was completed in that year.

Two Morrisons.

For the 23 years following, Mr. Morrison was one of the two Morrisons, Hugh A. and John G., each a chief assistant to the superintendent of the reading room. Although unrelated, they were often thought of by the readers as the "Morrison brothers," molded, as they seemed, to inner resemblances by their earlier experiences in the "old Library" of Capitol days.

In 1920 the death occurred of the assistant then in charge of the Representatives' reading room, Lawrence Washington, a man of striking individuality, whose birthplace and background were Mount Vernon, and who was said to have looked like his collateral ancestor, the first President. John G. Morrison, the elder of the two "brothers," was then in failing health; the younger, the former page in the Baltimore library, was appointed to succeed Mr. Washington and held his new position until his retirement, a period of 17 years.

In 1898 the Southern History Association printed Mr. Morrison's revision of Dr. J. M. Toner's "Index to Names of Persons and Churches in Bishop Meade's 'Old Churches, Ministers and Families of Virginia.'" In 1900 his 173-page bibliography of interoceanic canal and railway routes was published as a Senate document. In 1907 the Library of Congress published his "Preliminary Check List of American Almanacs, 1639-1900."

High Tribute Paid Marvin At Mayflower

Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo Chief Speaker; Fleming Is Toastmaster.

Paying tribute to the ten-year service of Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, 1,000 persons attended a testimonial dinner to him last night in the Mayflower Hotel.

Included in the list of notables who joined in congratulating Dr. Marvin were Justice Alfred A. Wheat, Dr. Gilbert Grovernor, Justice James M. Proctor, Charles Moore, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Surgeon General of the Army C. R. Reynolds, Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew, Justice Joseph W. Cox and Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois.

Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, formerly minister at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, and a close friend of the university and its head, was the principal speaker, talking on "The University Unashamed and Unafraid." "The university, unashamed and unafraid," he said, "must never compromise with truth, good will and character."

In further describing his conception of his ideal university, he called attention to the failure of European institutions, that had been too weak to resist the pressure of dictatorship. "Democracy," he asserted, "is safe only when each man is free to do his thinking for himself."

Truth Makes Nation Free.

"Often today," the speaker continued, "we have a strange disdain for learning . . . It is always truth pursued for its own sake that makes a nation free. Too many people today are guessing. Ignorance and misinformation are always the twin companions of dictatorships. The first duty of a university unashamed and unafraid is to teach truth, nothing but the truth, and the whole truth." He then called attention to Einstein's disappointment with European colleges, pointing out the German scientist had taken spiritual refuge in religion, education having failed.

Dr. Sizoo expressed the need for education and spiritual integrity complementing each other, stating his hope that George Washington will some day have a school of religion included in its graduate colleges. "Culture is complete," he said, "only when mental acumen is harnessed with spiritual discernment."

Speaking at the end of the official addresses, Dr. Marvin pledged his renewed faith in George Washington, and promised his renewed devotion to the university. He thanked the alumni, undergraduates, trustees and friends of the college who had paid him high tributes during the evening.

Fleming Is Toastmaster.

Charles S. Baker acted as chairman of the banquet, with Robert V. Fleming as toastmaster. Other speakers were Henry Grattan Doyle, dean of Columbian College; Ross Pope, president of the student council; May Paul Bradshaw, Charles Carroll Glover, jr., Dr. Charles R. Mann, Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr. and Dr. Harry C. Davis.

In addition to the compliments of the thousand guests, President Marvin was also presented with a "citation for meritorious service," drawn up and signed by faculty members and a gift from the trustees. He also was made an honorary member of the university's combined glee clubs, which gave a brief program during the evening.

Carrol Collins Wins Bible Story Contest

Carrol Collins, of the Columbia Heights Christian Church, last night won first prize for girls in the Bible story telling contest, held at the Y. M. C. A. Second place in her division went to Doris Miller, of the Washington City Church of the Brethren.

First prize among the boys went to Robert Patch, of the Chevy Chase Baptist Church; second place, to Harry Power, of the Metropolitan Baptist.

Parent-Teacher Group Urges End of Ban on Clerical Work

That teachers be allowed to perform clerical work was urged by the Washington Parent-Teachers Congress in a petition to the Senate Appropriation Committee. The petition asks that the rider to the District appropriation bill forbidding any clerical work except that incidental to classroom teaching be stricken from the legislation. It was adopted at the twenty-fourth annual convention in the departmental auditorium.

Other resolutions adopted request the Senate to expunge the Red Rider, to restore the garden item, and to vote down the race track bill. These were three of about 30 items discussed by the group.

The Parent-Teachers went on record as favoring passage of the pending juvenile court bill, opposing daylight-saving time, and opposing sale of warlike toys in local stores. They also registered a demand for enforcement of the ordinance banning sale of liquor within 400 feet of a school or a church.

Officers elected include Mrs. Walter B. Fry, re-elected president; Mrs. H. N. Stull, vice president; Mrs. C. D. Lowe, third vice president; Mrs. P. C. Ellett, fifth vice president, and Miss Myrtle Moore, seventh vice president.

"Elementary schools make a mistake in teaching a child a lot of 'what' when he wants to know 'why,'" Dr. Eduard Lindeman, professor of social philosophy at the New York School for Social Work, told the gathering.

"But the high schools," he continued, "do much more damage by teaching youth to start thinking about jobs rather than to start thinking about life, giving them a completely selfish interpretation of life. Secondary education is the weak link in the chain, and we will have to revamp our entire system of high school education if we are to improve."

Dr. Lindeman castigated education from the ground up, stating that it gets progressively worse as it reaches higher planes. In college, he said, many professors are much more interested in their laboratory research and philosophical studies than they are in their students.

A panel discussion of the "Community Contribution to Child Development" drew a general approval of more co-operation between home and school. Leader of the panel was Mrs. F. M. Hosmer, representing the National Congress of Parent-Teachers. Other speakers were Dr. D. L. Seckinger, Dr. Paul Everhardt, Robert L. Haycock, Miss Louise McGuire, Miss Catherine Watkins, Dr. L. L. Jarvis, and Mrs. A. C. Watkins.

Music was contributed at both the morning and afternoon sessions by the Mothersingers Chorus.

Capital Transit Reroutes Buses In Takoma Area

Four important changes in its service, all affecting the Takoma Park area and taking effect at midnight tonight, were announced yesterday by the Capital Transit Co. The changes were ordered some time ago by the Public Utilities Commission.

The four changes are:

First, the street car tracks from Fourteenth and Kennedy streets to Takoma will be abandoned and the company will begin a shuttle bus service between the two points. Tokens will be sold for use on this line.

Second, the Takoma express bus service will be continued with slight changes in route and operation. The fare will be 10 cents cash or the weekly pass. The new route will be southbound in the morning rush hour, from the terminal on Fifth street, south on Dahlia, south on Fifth, west on Madison, south on Thirteenth, east on Pennsylvania, south on Seventh, west on Constitution and north on Ninth to the terminal between Constitution and Pennsylvania avenues; northbound, in the evening rush hour, north from the Ninth street terminal, west on Pennsylvania, north on Thirteenth, east on Madison, north on Fifth, west on Cedar, north on Sixth and Piney Branch road, east on Dahlia to Fifth, south to the terminal.

Third, a new bus line will be run, operating from Third street, in Takoma, and through Ninth street, in downtown Washington. The fare will be 10 cents cash or the weekly pass. The route will be southbound, in the morning rush hour, from a terminal at the District line, south on Laurel, west on Aspen, south on Third, Kansas, Illinois, New Hampshire, Sherman and Florida avenues and Ninth street, east on Pennsylvania, south on Seventh, west on Constitution and north on Ninth to terminal.

Fourth, the Chillum line will be extended as far north as Madison and North Capitol streets.

200 Boys Club Members Get Athletic Prizes

Ben Chapman Addresses Group; Two Leaders Receive Keys.

The Boys Club of Washington, founded by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, last night bestowed more than 200 prizes on its members.

The group, which successfully has combatted much of Washington's juvenile delinquency, was addressed, before the award ceremonies, by Ben Chapman, centerfielder of the Nationals. He outlined steps which brought him to the major leagues and urged the boys to "live clean."

The ceremonies, held in the clubhouse, 230 C street northwest, also were attended by Frank R. Jelleff, president of the Boys Club board of directors; A. Earle Weeks, president of the District of Columbia Amateur Athletic Union; Arthur Bergman, of Catholic University; Gus Welch, of American University; Elmer Hardwell, of Anacostia High School; Jack Faber, of Maryland University; Edward La Fond, of Catholic University; Jack Hagerty, and Fred Mesmer, of Georgetown University, and Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, U. S. N., retired.

John Dolph, board member, and Ralph Ford, club printing instructor, were awarded gold keys for "long, unselfish and distinguished contributions, material and otherwise, to the members of our organization."

Prizes were awarded for exceptional merit in indoor baseball, touch football, outdoor baseball, boxing, tumbling, wrestling, paddle tennis, badminton, basketball, track, art, woodwork, printing, public speaking, checkers, billiards, ping pong and pool.

Swindlers Get $219.

Working the "old envelope" trick, two colored persons robbed Lola M. DeNeal, also colored, of the 900 block of Twenty-sixth street, of $219, she told police yesterday.

More Than 200 Pets Entered In Friends School Annual Show

More than 200 pets, ranging from quacking ducks to squealing pigs, turned the Friends School grounds at 3901 Wisconsin avenue northwest into an animal show yesterday.

Pupils put books aside to entertain a record crowd of parents, while judges and Albert E. Rogers, the headmaster, spent a busy afternoon deciding on the best entries.

Mary (Davidson) had a little lamb—and it brought her first prize in the most useful animal contest. An exhibit of chickens won second place in this event for Billie Cafritz.

Cracker, the cocker spaniel owned by Amy Weston, took first place ribbon for the best named pet. Nuisance, a Scottie belonging to Michael Miller, won second prize.

A tiny alligator, entered by Gaylord Warnar, was judged the "most unusual animal in the show, while Michael Heller's pink pigs ran a close second.

Barbara West's white mice were declared the "smallest" animals entered, although a bowl of guppie fish, exhibited by Dorothy Reynolds were impressively minute, and took second.

German police dogs belonging to Gloria Gudger and Ross Compton received ribbons for the largest pet division. Francis Davidson's cat and kittens formed the "best family" shown, and Dorothy Goodman's trio of ducks finished second.

C. U. Debate Team Honored at Banquet

The Shahan Debating Society of Catholic University held its first annual banquet last night. Keys were presented to two senior members, Joseph Spitzig, of Cleveland, and Joseph Gartland, of New Haven, Conn., sole members of the senior team for two years.

President William Murphy, '38, addressing the members, reported on the debates and declared the season "most effective."

Brown Orders Twelve Police Changes Made

Twelve changes, including two promotions and ten transfers, will be made in the police force today, following a special order issued yesterday by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent.

Clarence H. Lutz, an acting lieutenant, will receive a permanent commission and remain at the Second Precinct. Acting Sergt. Charles J. Sullivan will be promoted to sergeant and remain at the Eighth Precinct.

In other precinct changes, Lieut. John R. Jefferies will be transferred from the Ninth to the Twelfth Precinct; Lieut. John W. McGinness, from the Twelfth to the Ninth; Private Charles A. Parker, from the First to the Harbor Precinct, and Precinct Detective Bernard F. Day, from the Second to the Fourth.

Five changes involving members of the administrative headquarters were announced. The changes are:

Lieut. Lawrence R. Beall will be transferred from headquarters to the Ninth Precinct; Sergt. John J. Agnew, from Traffic Division to headquarters; Private Thomas C. Kelleher, from headquarters to the Eighth Precinct; Private William G. Shipman, from headquarters to the Traffic Division, and Private Richard A. Burton, from headquarters to the Fourth Precinct.

Walsh Urges Council for Vital Issues

Illustrates Need for Great Economic Group at Lecture.

A great national economic council, a sort of "supreme court of public opinion," which would pass on vital problems of the day, was proposed last night by the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University and regent of its School of Foreign Service.

He made the suggestion at his weekly lecture in Memorial Continental Hall, and gave his large audience a practical illustration by assembling on the stage 15 of his students, each representing a specific group in American life.

Charles J. Cole, of Montclair, N. J., appearing as the representative of labor, suggested to the make-believe economic council that it approve the issuance of labor shares—certificates giving workers a share in the profits of an industry.

Wages Paramount Issue.

"The present condition, involving an increasing number of strikes with the danger of violence they entail," Cole said, "has made the question of wages a paramount issue. In order to increase buying power to laborers, who are the purchasers of industry's output, we propose the issuance of labor shares."

Richard J. Forhan, of New York City, who represented the Chamber of Commerce with appropriate dignity, interposed:

"What do you mean by labor shares? Does not labor already share through wages?"

Labor Spokesman Cole explained there was a great difference. Those who put up the capital, he said, collect in the way of dividends. But labor, he went on, also has contributed to the joint enterprise—not money, for he has none, but his physical energy, without which the invested capital would remain sterile and unproductive.

In summing up the plan, Dr. Walsh said:

"Has not the hour arrived for just such a true economic council, not handpicked by capital, not controlled by labor, not appointed by government, but composed of representatives freely chosen from all the major occupations, sitting permanently in Washington, in the form of an unofficial, but still recognized instrumentality designed to regulate economic activities for the good of all the people, not for any section or for any specific industry? It would be self-regulation in place of the compulsory legislation hitherto imposed. If men shirk the clear social responsibilities attaching to property, one of two things will happen. Either government will seek new ways and means to conscript their wealth by the power to tax which is the power to destroy, or by new social legislation. Or mobs will rudely confiscate it. Both have happened elsewhere, and we have no guarantee of immunity."

MAY DAY
CHILD HEALTH DAY

HEALTHY children are happy children. With children, as with grown-ups, health is the foundation of happiness. And, with both children and adults, MILK is the foundation of health. It contains 34 of the 36 elements vital to the growth and well-being of the human body!

Give Your Child Every Health Advantage

Approximately one-fifth of all pre-school and school children in the United States are suffering from malnutrition. To meet this tragic situation, Secretary of Labor Perkins called a national conference here in Washington. Even before the depression, millions of children lacked energy, zest and the joy of life that are the natural right of children—because they were FILLED but NOT FED. Milk is not only the most nutritious and most economical of foods, it is absolutely INDISPENSABLE to proper growth and development.

The mother of children can be sure she is doing the right thing by them if she provides a quart of Embassy's Milk daily for each of her childen.

Harlow-Taylor Team Is Top at Loew's Capitol

'Personal Property' Not Greatest of Films, but Art Shaw Helps.

"PERSONAL PROPERTY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a play by H. M. Harwood, adapted to the screen by Hugh Mills and Ernst Vajda, costarring Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor, with Reginald Owen, Una O'Connor, Henrietta Crosman, E. E. Clive, Cora Witherspoon, Maria Shelton, Forrester Harvey and Lionel Braham. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Mary Harris.

With the screen's No. 1 glamour girl and glamour boy glamouring all over the place, plus huge quantities of the more simplified brand of comedy, it looks as though "Personal Property" will be "big box-office" and then absolutely mop up in the outlying movie districts.

Hardly rating enthusiasm on the score of cleverness or fine acting, "Personal Property" is still packed full of the old zazzeroo and vitality. As a vehicle for Robert Taylor and Jean Harlow, it is a carnival car.

Monsieur Taylor, though hardly a great actor as yet, is stepping along smartly in the technic of make-believe. One of his pleasantest traits is that he never overacts and thus gets smoother and smoother. The lifted Taylor eyebrow, the quirkish smile are just the proper caper for light comedy.

Harlow Also Registers.

As for the one and only Jean Harlow, your view of her work all depends on where you sit. If you are a dyed-in-the-wool Harlow admirer, everything that she does is topsy. But if you, like this critic, opine that Harlow was the best in the business when she was a naughty-naughty of the "Red-Headed Woman" type and are faintly pained when she goes nicey-nicey—well, that's something else again.

But Harlow is not too sweet in "Personal Property." She's an Iowa girl, marooned in London and "on the make." To recoup her finances, the only way out seems to lie in marrying a noisome churl (Reginald Owen) who happens to be Robert Taylor's brother. For reasons not made clear in the picture, Robert is just out of jail and cordially disliked by every member of his family but his mother (Henrietta Crosman). By a miraculous coincidence, Robert becomes Jean's butler, not knowing that she is brother's intended.

Romping Force.

The situations thus piled up lead to the rompingest of comedy, including a formal dinner, where Robert serves his too embarrassed family and contrives to put pepper in brother's cocktail, steal his plate before he has tasted his dinner and finally spill mayonnaise all over his relative. Before this, too, there is considerable fun when Robert installs himself in Jean's home as a bailiff, preliminary to becoming her butler, and has to wear a pair of pajamas belonging to her former husband and big enough for the Cardiff Giant.

Reginald Owen, usually so excellent, overplays the role of the fortune-hunter brother to the point where he is a terrific pain in the neck. But perhaps that's the way it was meant to be. Una O'Connor, as a lady's maid, plays marvelously. You won't believe it, but the unpretty and skinny little O'Connor steals scenes from Harlow, the super-beauteous.

On the Stage.

Art Shaw and his orchestra present a brand of swing that, in many ways, is the most meritorious and striking since Paul Whiteman delighted the town. The magic Shaw clarinet is responsible for much of this master-syncopation and the orchestra is not far behind. Chief feature of the program is a weird and throbbing number entitled, as we understood it, "Ubangi." The question is whether a movie theater audience is quite up to "Ubangi," but the number is gorgeous, nevertheless. Dorothy Howe sings takingly. Fine and striking as is the work of this orchestra, we would say the act needs a slight repatterning for audience appeal.

A. Robins, the clown of "Jumbo," is about the most surprising clown you'll ever see. His stunt is original and develops astoundingly as it goes along.

Demure and pretty Helen Charleston, formerly of Earl Carroll's "Vanities," does "take-offs" of amateur performers, winding up with a snippy suzi-que. The Neiss Troup of tumblers are fine and finished performers.

Metropolitan

"THUNDER IN THE CITY." Columbia release of Atlantic Films picturization of a story by Robert Sherwood and Aben Kandel, adapted to the screen by the authors and Akos Tolnay, starring Edward G. Robinson, with Luli Deste, Nigel Bruce, Constance Collier, Ralph Richardson, Arthur Wontner, Annis Esmond, Elizabeth Inglis, Nancy Burne and Billy Bray. Directed by Marion Gering. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Sally Stroud.

Little Caesar fans will not be disappointed in Edward G. Robinson's current offering, for it is entertaining and fairly novel. Something about how an American salesman, told to go to England and learn how to put dignity in advertising, succeeds in standin' that sedate country on its collective ear.

Proving his contention that salesmanship is the most important function of mankind, the attractively ugly little man puts over a campaign to sell stock in a South African mine, makes friends with a duke, takes him for a ride on a reeling merry-go-round, and wins his daughter from a snobby British financier.

The dialogue is remarkably good, Robinson consistently natural and likable, and Constance Collier and Nigel Bruce as Duchess and Duke of something-or-the-other, make the cheeriest pair of royalty viewed recently.

Luli Deste, new foreign import, has no more charm or ability than numberless native actresses, but she is nice to look upon.

Recommended for the entire family; never dull; not a must-see, but in truth, a picture you will enjoy.

An unusually good assortment of short subjects make it doubly attractive. Besides the newsreel, you may see Babe Ruth in a snappy brevity called "Home Run of the Keys" and get an eyeful of Ina Ray Hutton's version of the Susie-Q.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

A Grim Tragedy of the Mountains Scores at Earle; Lively, Star-Studded Musical Does Same at Palace

"MOUNTAIN JUSTICE." Warner Brothers picturization of a story by Norman Reilly Raine and Luci Ward, costarring Josephine Hutchinson and George Brent, with Robert Barratt, Guy Kibbee, Elisabeth Risdon, Robert McWade, Mona Barrie, Edward Pawley, Margaret Hamilton, Marcia Mae Jones, Russell Simpson, Fuzzy Knight, Granville Bates and Sibyl Harris. Directed by Michael Curtis. Previewed Wednesday, April 28.

Initiating its action with the tranquil pursuits of a remote mountain countryside, where a young nurse and an elderly "family doctor" dream dreams of establishing a mountain clinic for the benefit of their neighbors, this turgid melodrama, in course of time, becomes an engrossing but vicious human document, expository of the bigotry of certain types of backwoods citizenship.

BELL.

Despite all protestations to the contrary, there is a close analogy between the developments in "Mountain Justice" and the case of the girl who killed her father with the heel of her slipper and has been in the toils of the law ever since. The motivation is not the same. There are extenuating circumstances in the fictional story on the screen that may or may not have existed in the actual case that was so long on the front pages of the press. However that may be, it makes for exciting, romantic and frequently brutal entertainment—if it ever is possible for parental brutality to be entertaining.

Ruth Harkins is a sensitive young woman who has been "outside" the mountains long enough to study something of the science of nursing. Her strongest urge is to save her fellow mountaineers from the high fatality imposed by a primitive and wholly inadequate provision for the caring of the ailing and crippled. Her father is a son of the country who professes a profound religious belief in the portions of Holy Writ that say "honor thy father and thy mother." It would be difficult to understand how anyone could have honored Jeff Harkins as he seemed to think he deserved.

In the end, to save her own life, Ruth kills her father with the butt of the blacksnake whip with which he is attempting to lash her into insensibility as an evidence of his parental dignity and affection.

Jeff already has been up for murder and convicted by an "imported" attorney from New York. That smitten young man returns to the mountain village when he learns of the plight in which the girl he loves finds herself. There is the genesis—one might say the alpha and omega—of the romantic interest of the tale. It is embellished with many effective bits of characterization, by-play, and, at times, by a superb quality of photography.

Josephine Hutchinson at Best.

In the role of Ruth Harkins, Josephine Hutchinson has one of the most fruitful opportunities that has been accorded her before the cameras. She plays understandingly, sympathetically, wistfully and well. In the opposite role of the handsome young barrister, who finally extricates her from her difficulties by a clever ruse, George Brent is an upstanding but not especially distinguished hero. Robert Barratt, as the intolerant father, does a particularly fine piece of work, making the role as completely distasteful as it was intended to be, thus mitigating to some extent the sinister aspects of his daughter's militant attack.

In the lesser roles, Elisabeth Risdon, admirable actress; Mona Barrie, one of the screen's beauties; Guy Kibbee, as the village doctor, and Edward Pawley, as a roughneck of the hill country, contribute notably to the atmospheric authenticity of a picture that sticks pretty close to its knitting in the matter of preserving a sustained and convincing tone and tempo. The comedy is intrusted wisely to the deft hands of Margaret Hamilton and Fuzzy Knight. Little Marcia Mae Jones again proves herself one of the most heart-wringing of the juvenile actresses. There are many more in the cast who do their share in preserving the integrity of the play, among them Russell Simpson and Robert McWade, two of the theater's stalwart and able veterans.

Roger Pryor Clicks.

On the stage at the Earle this week the entertainment is presented by Roger Pryor, former stage and screen actor, and His Orchestra. This Pryor band is something that is not to be passed off too lightly. It plays with spirit, fine musicianship and not too much blare, although once or twice the Pryor penchant for brass band effects gets the upper hand. Their program is diversified and melodious and presented with a precision and speed that are agreeable.

Foremost among the specialists are Ames and Arno, a mixed duo of knock-about comics who are sure-fire; Edna Sedgewick, dancer, who does an amazingly intricate tap-dance to the strains of the "Bolero;" "Red" Hodgeson, singing trumpeter, and Howard Nichols, "ace of the hoops." The piece de resistance of the act, however—always barring the splendid work of terday by the California Varsity the orchestra—was furnished yes-Eight, a double male quartet, in which every voice is one of solo caliber and training. You could listen to them all night. Roger Pryor's tromboning isn't so hard to take, either, as far as that is concerned.

Columbia

"CHARLIE CHAN AT THE OLYMPICS." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of an original story by Paul Burger, suggested by the characters created by Earl Derr Biggers and adapted to the screen by Robert Ellis and Helen Logan, starring Warner Oland, with Katherine De Mille, Keye Luke, C. Henry Gordon, Pauline Moore, Allan Lane, John Eldredge, Jonathan Hale, Morgan Wallace, Frederick Vogeding, Andrew Tombes and Howard Hickman. Directed by H. Bruce Humberstone. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

In this fifteenth of the screen plays based on the analytical sleuthing of that amazing deductionist, Charlie Chan, first conceived in the fertile, fictional brain of that merry author, Earl Derr Biggers, and played for the most part by Warner Oland, the Scandinavian who looks like an Oriental, ol' Massa Chan goes romping all over the map.

Those who attend the latest revelation of his extraordinary talents as a detective at Loew's Columbia this week, will see him in Hawaii, aboard a Pan-American clipper ship, in San Francisco, as a passenger on the dirigible Hindenburg and in the stadium where the last Olympiad was held in Berlin.

Radio Is a Help.

His chore, this time, is to run down a gang of crooks who have stolen an airplane robot controlling device. To do this, he trails them to their lair—to coin a phrase—and with the aid of a directional radio manages to keep the Berlin police minutely informed of his progress and his exact whereabouts. This is the sort of thing on which audiences thrive.

In this subject, the star is supported by a cast of the first rank, headed by Katherine De Mille, last seen with Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea in "Banjo on My Knee;" C. Henry Gordon, one of the mainstays of "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and scores more of the most exciting of the cinema's productions; Pauline Moore, who made her debut in "Love Is News," and a large number of others whose names will be found in the small-type paragraph preceding these remarks.

The bill is completed by a new release of the "News of the Day" and short-reel subjects of judicious selection.

Victims of the Back-Country Law

This terrorized mother and bewildered daughter represent two of the pivotal characters in "Mountain Justice," the impressive drama now being shown on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. They are impersonated, respectively, by Elisabeth Risdon and Josephine Hutchinson. George Brent plays the male lead.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, April 30.—A fellow gets a funny feeling when he meets Shirley Temple. I have known her since she was a tot of 2, yet each time we meet and I shake her hand, I make dainty as possible, lest I hurt her. In my mind, she is like Dresden, yet actually she is a husky youngster.

JACK OAKIE.

I lunched with Shirley yesterday, and from her mother I learned the child's new ambition. She wants to operate a pie factory. Just as some kids want to be engineers and others hanker to be firemen and some to be actresses, Shirley is of a mind to manufacture pies. There is an amusing little story in connection with this thought:

Not long ago, the Temples started building a new home. It was the family custom to go out every day or so and look things over. Shirley would have great fun playing in the sand pile, while the family wandered through the framework getting ideas. One day while Mrs. Temple was inside, she heard a childish voice crying: "Pies! Pies! Buy my pies!" She peered through an unfinished window and was horrified to see Shirley with an improvised table on which were a dozen or more mud pies. More important, there were customers; Shirley sold 27 cents' worth of her wares to passers-by, who would have paid ten times her price had she asked it.

Speaking of Shirley, I have often wondered just how directors win her confidence. Obviously, for a megaphonist to attempt to direct Shirley without her friendship would be tragic, for what child can give her best to a grown-up she dislikes or distrusts? At any rate, John Ford was at the helm of her newest picture, and Shirley was visiting the studio wardrobe the day they met. Ford walked up to her, solemnly bowed, and said, "How do you do, Miss Temple. I'm the man you're going to direct in your next picture." Shirley stared at him in amazement for an instant, then burst into laughter. Presto! They were friends. As easy as all that.

Jack Oakie's mother frequently visits him on sets. A charming, jolly soul, she is welcomed by all, a great favorite of Jack's co-workers. Yet, despite her long and close acquaintance with the business, the studio jargon eludes her. She calls rehearsing "practicing," and every actor, even the veriest bit player, is "a star." One of her most amusing remarks was when she introduced a party of friends to Oakie's stand-in.

"This gentleman," she said, "is Cracker Henderson, my son's step-in."

Freddie Bartholomew, returning to his studio schoolroom after a week in bed with a severe cold, astounded his school teacher by turning in a week's carefully penned homework. Inasmuch as Freddie is no great shakes at getting his problems done even when he is well, his tutor was utterly flabbergasted. So the youngster explained: "I figured I had to kill time in bed somehow, and I thought I might as well get these lessons off my chest, along with the cold."

Breezy Yarn of the Radio and Night Clubs Has 'What It Takes.'

"WAKE UP AND LIVE." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of Dorothea Brande's book, adapted to the screen by Harry Tugend and Jack Yellen from the adapted story by Curtis Kenyon, with music and lyrics by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, featuring Ben Bernie and His Orchestra, Walter Winchell, Jack Haley, Patsy Kelly, Alice Faye, Ned Sparks, Grace Bradley, Walter Catlett, Leah Raye and Joan Davis, the Condos Brothers, George Givot, Paul Hurst, Warren Hymer, Si Jenks, William Demarest, John Sheehan, Rosemary Glosz and Andre Beranger. Directed by Sidney Lanfield. Previewed Tuesday, April 27.

There is a new twist to the radio station type of screen fable to be found here. "Microphone fright"—something this department never has been able to understand, probably because where there is no sense there is no feeling—is made the basis of the plot.

Half of a vaudeville team that was successful out on the small time cracks up the moment he comes in sight of a "mike" and so explodes every audition the partnership undertakes. Panic seizes him at every suggestion that a live mike might be in front of him. But over a "dead mike," that is something entirely else again! So he is coached by a station program star over a "dead mike" and all the time is going on the air and achieving a tremendous reputation as the "phantom tenor," or something of the sort. He does not know he is the phantom and is as eager as anyone else to discover him when a high reward is offered for his definite identification.

Everyone Gets Chance.

This all works out very nicely as the basis of a great deal of broadcasting, some splendid orchestral music by Ben Bernie and "all the lads;" songs by Alice Faye, some elegant singing by Jack Haley, who ought to be pretty well up in the high brackets after his work in this one; clowning by Patsy Kelly, sourpuss wisecracking by the acidulous Ned Sparks, some clever bits by John Sheehan and William Demarest, considerable visual adornment by Grace Bradley, some remarkable sitting-down dancing by the Condos Brothers and a long list of other ingredients that have to be seen to be appreciated.

The story, for once, possesses coherency and a fair degree of plausibility and is interpreted by a cast of principals who never make a mistake. The Walter Winchell-Ben Bernie "feud," of course, is carried throughout the length of the musical. It is amusing and exceedingly well done by them both. There is nothing about "Wake Up and Live," as a matter of fact, that is not well done.

Many of the studio and night club settings are the last word in opulence and the photography throughout is clear and eye-filling. The sound recording is excellent. All of the voices—Alice Faye's, Patsy Kelly's, Jack Haley's, Rosemary Glosz'—come over clear as a crystal, thanks to the new equipment at the Palace that made "Maytime" such an auricular delight.

Clever Specialties.

Leah Raye and Joan Davis stage a specialty in one of the night club scenes that is a comedy gem. The Bernie band contributes in large measure to the success of this frivolous interval of slapstick hilarity.

To summarize the whole merry business, "Wake Up and Live" is a fast-moving, clever and tuneful potpourri of such a variety of entertaining components that it stands almost in a class by itself among the lighter of the musical screen productions. There is not much that one can discover to carp at, unless he is in quest of something of a serious nature in the theater. If he is, the Palace is no place for him this week.

The supplementary features of the bill include one of the more facile of the FitzPatrick travetalks, "India on Parade;" a Mickey Mouse cartoon comedy in natural color, "The Worm Turns;" "News of the Day," and the N. V. A. reel that all of the Washington theaters are running this week in that organization's annual drive for sustaining funds.

If it is fun you are looking for, here it is.

RKO-Keith's

"THE WOMAN I LOVE." RKO-Radio picturization of the play "Equipage," adapted to the screen by Anthony Veiller, starring Paul Muni and Miriam Hopkins, supported by Louis Hayward, Colin Clive, Minor Watson, Owen Davis, Jr., Elisabeth Risdon and Sterling Holloway. Directed by Anatole Litvak. Reviewed second week by Dorothea Lewis.

Into an extra half week goes "The Woman I Love," which would be just another war picture except for the gratefully received and excellent performances of Paul Muni and Louis Hayward.

The plot is that new little item—the eternal triangle—one woman, two men, plus the nerve strain of war.

Miriam Hopkins, surprisingly enough, is completely uninteresting and unexciting as the woman. But in spite of this lapse on the part of La Hopkins, the plot, and the rather rover-boy atmosphere of the aviation headquarters, Muni and Hayward give the picture considerable life and reality. They are aided in the latter quality by the ending, which is moving and different. Both men work at their roles as though they mean them, understand them and like them, Muni playing with great gentleness and dignity, Hayward with enthusiasm and sincerity.

Colin Clive is excellent in his pleasant grim way, and other helpful members of the cast are Elisabeth Risdon, Sterling Holloway, Minor Watson and Paul Guilfoyle.

The usual subsidiaries complete a bill which seems to be marking time until the Astaire and Rogers combine arrives Tuesday in their latest exhibition of flying through the air with the greatest of ease.

Wander Birds to Meet.

The Wander Birds Hiking Club has two sports events scheduled for the week-end. They will meet at 2 p. m. today at Twenty-second and Virginia avenue northwest and bicycle along the river. Tomorrow a hike on the Massanutten Mountain is scheduled. The members will meet at 1416 F strett at 8 a. m. Miss Sarah Bache will be in charge.

Boy Killed, Mother Hurt in Shell Explosion

Trenton, N. J., April 30 (AP).—One boy was killed and another wounded by the explosion of a one-pound shell in a school today. Edward Rybicki, 15, ran from the building on the schoolyard, where he fell dead. Raymond Wendezycki, 15, was cut on the face by flying fragments.

Raymond told police he and Edward, both in the ninth grade at St. Hedwig's School, had been detailed to get a typewriter. When they reached the basement, Edward exhibited a supposedly empty shell he had found and tapped it against a door post. The explosion followed.

This Morning

WITH SHIRLEY POVICH

It was this department's great good luck to be sitting beside Walter Johnson the other evening when Umpire George Moriarty unreeled the American League's official motion pictures at the Father and Son banquet of the Washington Hebrew Congregation Brotherhood.

POVICH.

The ruddy-faced Johnson, who had been watching big leaguers exhibit the correct technique of sliding into a base, tagging the base runner, pivoting on double plays and illustrating the other rudiments of the game, was mildly bored by it all.

There was no doubt of that. There apparently wasn't much kick in it all for a fellow who had been out there on the firing line seeing the same things done in real life when the chips were down. Walter Johnson actually turned his head away from the screen and toyed with the silverware on the table.

And then, the narrator's voice announced that presently the pitching delivery of young Bob Feller would be portrayed, in slow motion. Walter Johnson, uttering a slight gasp, perked up. He would want to see this.

He'd want to see it because, well, because this young Bob Feller was the lad they were hailing as a second Walter Johnson, perhaps even superior to Walter Johnson. He had never seen Feller in the flesh. His country place up in Germantown, Md., didn't permit him much time to get down to the ball games at Griffith Stadium.

And there surely must be something to this young Feller. Already, in his first season in the major leagues, he had struck out more batters in a single game than Johnson had ever been able to fan in 21 years in the American League. His fast ball had enemy hitters shying away from the plate or swinging in sheer self-defense. Walter Johnson would want to see him, all right, this lad who was supposed to be another Johnson.

And so thus it was that Walter Johnson was actually staring at the proceedings on the screen as the strong-armed, big-lipped Feller strode to the mound, went into his wind-up and let loose with his fast ball into the mitt of Catcher Frankie Pytlak.

Johnson stared again and again as Feller let fly. With his mind's eye he was doubtless comparing the lad's speed with that of his own salad days when the Walter Johnson fast ball was the scourge of the American League and hitters were glad to get away from the plate.

"Hmm-mm-mm," he hummed, and you wondered what was his reaction. But he was still intent on the screening and saying nothing, so you asked him for his thoughts.

"Pretty fast, pretty fast," said Walter Johnson. "That boy's got something there all right. I don't see how he does it, though."

"Does what?"

"How he gets all that speed with that hitch in his throw. There's nothing smooth in it tat I can see. Doesn't even straighten his arm out when he lets it go. A lot of power there, though."

It looked to this department as if Feller simply threw the ball by the hitter with that awful speed of his, and Johnson agreed.

But I'm wondering. Notice the way he gets that ball off and then takes that step to the right. My Gawd, he's got an awful edge on the hitter."

How did he mean that?

"Didn't you notice he lets the ball go from in close. He's right behind it after he lets it go. That ball comes up to the plate against the background of Feller's white shirt. The darn thing is on top of the hitter before he can see it, looks like to me. I wouldn't be surprised if they couldn't locate the ball before it's too late to take a decent cut at it. That's a big edge for that kid."

His own pitching motion, Johnson explained, was strikingly in contrast. "I let the ball go from out here," he said, and he stretched his arm to full length, parallel with his hip. "Mine was a kind of side-arm motion and this kid is almost overhand. That's why he's always in back of the ball when the hitter's trying to locate it. It's tough on the hitter, but it's pretty nice for that boy."

In Short—

Johnson thinks Feller's delivery is best comparable to that of Ernie Shore, the old Red Sox ace . . . Shore also was an overhand fastballer . . . he wouldn't be surprised if Feller's motion was conducive to sore arms . . . the soreness that has Feller currently on the shelf for two weeks is not an encouraging sign, according to Johnson . . . who didn't come up with his first sore arm until 1920, 14 years after he made his debut in the big leagues . . . Johnson got his speed from his rhythmic pitching motion into which he got the full power of his 200 pounds, but Feller is relying chiefly on the brawn in his right arm . . . Johnson blasted the theory that every fast-ball pitcher has a hop on his fast one . . . his own fast ball didn't hop more than an inch or two at best, he declared . . . and the fast balls of Grover Alexander and Joe Wood actually dipped away from the hitter, according to Johnson . . . Johnson's best pitch, he says, was his high, hard one . . . and he'd feed that even to high, fast-ball hitters . . . because if the Johnson fast ball was really fast on a particular day, he wasn't afraid of any one being able to connect with it . . . really, he wasn't.

Grant Surprised By Gilbert Hall

Hot Springs, Va., April 30.—J. Gilbert Hall, North and South tennis champion, turned back Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, jr., the Atlanta "Giant-Killer," 7—5, 5—7, 6—3, in a startling upset today in the annual Hot Springs tournament.

Little less surprising was the 6—3, 6—2 triumph of Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., over Wayne Sabin, of Hollywood, Calif.

Budge, Parker Beat Japanese Net Stars

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, April 30.—Red-headed Don Budge, America's first-ranking tennis star, and poker-faced Frankie Parker blasted Japan's Davis Cup hopes today by scoring singles victories to give the United States a 2-to-0 lead in zone eliminations of the international competition.

Budge, not up to his brilliant 1936 form, but decidedly too strong for his rival, defeated Fumiteru Nakano, fifth ranking Japanese, in the opening encounter, 6—1, 6—1, 6—0.

Parker, second ranking player in the United States, then completely upset predictions to win from Japan's champion and team captain, Jiro Yamagishi, 6—3, 2—6, 8—6, 6—1.

The double win put the Americans in a favorable position to clean up the play tomorrow in the team matches. Budge and Gene Mako, national doubles champions; meet Yamagishi and Nakano. Hideo Nishimura, third man of the squad, will sit on the sidelines, due to a sore right arm.

U. S. Favored in Doubles.

The American team will take the courts tomorrow strongly favored to decide the competition in the doubles.

Budge, a tournament veteran, entered the opening match obviously off form, but needed little except dynamite smashes to ace his opponent at times, meanwhile adding other necessary points with sizzling placements.

Nakano was nervous, had no range and continually hit the ball out of the court or into the nets. He virtually presented the victory to Budge through many faults and errors. On the occasions Budge decided to bear down, he completely outclassed his wiry little rival.

The Japanese won the third game of the opening set when Budge hit three out after Nakano scored one placement. In the second set, the Japanese University student took the fourth game after bringing it to deuce, then coupling a placement with Budge's out.

The lanky American opened up the last set to easily break through Nakano's service three times, while Nakano hurried it by faulting repeatedly.

Cronin Hero, Red Sox Win

Manger Makes 5 Hits as Macks Bow, 15-5.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, April 30.—With Manager Joe Cronin setting the pace, the Red Sox battered four Athletic pitchers for a total of 19 hits today while piling up a 15-5 victory for Right-Hander Wes Farrell.

Cronin led the attack with a double and four singles and Jimmy Foxx, making his 1937 start, belted out a homer with two on base in the fifth inning.

Wes Ferrell also poled out a circuit drive with one on in the fourth, but the most spectacular four-bagger was supplied by Clarence ("Ace") Parker, pinch-hitting for Nelson, and scored Bill Cissell ahead of him by driving over the left-field wall.

Braddock Replies To Garden Charge

Newark, N. J., April 30 (AP).—Counsel for James J. Braddock, world heavyweight champion, filed a brief in Federal court today contending Madison Square Garden Corporation had no legal contract to prevent the Braddock-Joe Louis fight scheduled for June 22 in Chicago.

The brief said the only contract in effect between Braddock and the Garden was the one of December 12, 1936, in which Braddock agreed not to meet Louis until after June 3, 1937, which had been set as the date of a Braddock-Max Schmeling fight at Madison Square Garden Bowl, New York.

Get 2 Doubles, Single Off Brown to Win; Losers Ragged in Field.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, April 30.—Detroit's Tigers, showing a dislike for extra-inning games, touched Lloyd Brown for two doubles and a single in the tenth here today to defeat Cleveland, 4 to 2.

The doubles were provided by Bill Rogell and Gerald Walker, the single by Hank Greenberg. Brown had been going along smoothly until the tenth, despite support in the field that was not what it might have been.

In the fourth inning, Catcher Frankie Pytlak threw into center field in trying to pick Gehringer off second and Gehringer went to third. A moment later Lyn Lary picked up a roller from Walker's bat and chose to chase Greenberg back to second, Gehringer scoring. Walker scored on a single by Fox when Averill delayed his throw to the infield.

Hubbell Wins 18th as Giants Score, 11 to 2

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 30.—The Giants' revamped line-up gave Lefty Carl Hubbell more runs than they've given him in years today and clubbed the Brooklyn Dodgers, 11 to 2, for "King Carl's" second straight victory of the season and eighteenth straight in league competition.

Gus Mancuso, Mel Ott, Jim Ripple and Jojo Moore all walloped homers in a more surprising slugging attack than the National League champions have shown in a long time, to back up Hubbell's seven-hit nine-strikeout pitching.

After Heinie Manush's homer with a mate on base had sent the Dodgers off to a 2-to-0 lead in the first inning, the Giants took over and put the game on ice with four-run attacks in both the third and fourth.

Ripple was sent in as a pinch hitter for Kiddo Davis with the bases loaded in the fourth and parked one of Max Butcher's slants into the stands. He promptly replaced Davis in center field.

400 School Trackmen Vie at Maryland Today

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Washington's biggest and most colorful outdoor spring sports carnival is scheduled this afternoon at College Park, where the University of Maryland's twentieth annual interscholastic track and field meet will be presented along with a supporting card that would make Barnum's shows seem like a jerkwater side-show by comparison.

The full card, embracing everything but tiddley-winks, includes a tennis match with Catholic University; baseball game with Georgetown; track meet with William and Mary, and lacrosse duel with Syracuse. Maryland varsity teams, of course, will supply the opposition.

An attraction in himself is Ted Merideth, jr., son of one of America's most glamorous track heroes, who will compete under Mercersburg Academy's banner. The boy, like his illustrious dad, is a quarter-miler and a natural distance runner, but whether he measures up to his father's ability remains to be seen. He is prepping for Penn, which he hopes to enter this coming September.

Mercersburg Is Titlist.

Mercersburg is defending the open championship it won last year, but is without the services of a single point-winner of that team. In similar straits is Bel Air High School, county champion, which sent three members of its title-winning squad to Maryland this year. The trio, Jack Archer, Roland Hulshart and Jim Kehoe, scored 21 of the team's 32 points.

Both schools have their work cut out for them if they hope to retain their crowns, for more than 400 athletes, representing 48 schools, are entered and all seem to think they have a chance of winning.

The list includes four Washington high schools, Roosevelt, Eastern, Tech and Central, all of which are entering full squads. Roosevelt, on a basis of recent performances, seems to be the best and is a heavy favorite to finish up with the leaders. The Rough Riders recently defeated Forest Park, of Baltimore, 80-36. Ollie Atkinson, Truman Lancaster and Joe Napoli are its outstanding performers.

Mounts Are Strong.

Baltimore City College, Gilman, mount St. Joseph's, McDonogh and Baltimore Poly are other strong contenders in the open class. Of the county schools Mount Rainier is conceded a good chance of carrying off the lion's share of honors, but must beat off the challenges of Hagerstown, Alleghany, Hyattsville and Bethesda-Chevy Chase.

Twenty-two events comprise the card, 13 of which are open to all contestants. The only records still standing over a span of 20 years are "Untz" Brewer's century and 220-yard dash times of 9.8 seconds and 22.4 seconds, respectively; and Larry Sullivan's broad jump of 23 feet. Brewer competed for St. Alban's, while Sullivan hailed from Baltimore Poly.

Maryland is favored in tennis and lacrosse; figures to have an even chance with William and Mary in track; but will be the underdog in baseball. Georgetown's potent "little murderers' row" appears to have too much dynamite for the Terps. Dale Patterson, a husky speed-ball artist from Indian Head, has been assigned the task of halting the Hoyas. He probably will be opposed by Hank Bertrand or Nick Petrosky.

Reds Bow, 7-1, To Cardinals

Dizzy Dean Allows First Run of '37 Season.

St. Louis, April 30.—Dizzy Dean ran his string of victories for the season to three and his strikeouts to 24, but the colorful pitcher failed today to keep the Cincinnati Reds from scoring a lone run that broke his shutout streak at 20 innings.

Giving Dizzy fine support, the St. Louis Cardinals punched Gene Schott and Don Brennan for 10 hits to win, 7 to 1, and strengthen their position at the head of the National League. The Cards' hits included a home run and five doubles.

The "Roughhouse Reds" tallied in the second inning, when Ernie Lombardi singled and Alex Kampouris tripled. Dean permitted only three other hits. He hung up eight strikeouts.

Singles by Johnny Mize, Leo Durocher and Terry Moore and a double by Brusie Ogrodowski produced three tallies in the Cardinals' half of the second inning. Mize smashed a home run, with Frenchy Bordagaray on base, for two more runs in the seventh. Two walks and Bordagaray's double completed the scoring in the eighth.

Mrs. J. H. Bullock drew first prize yesterday at Indian Spring in the blind bogey tournament, feature of the season's initial ladies' day program, after turning in a net card of 87. Her gross score was 107 and her handicap, 20.

Mrs. K. S. Giles, with 94-10—84, won second prize, and Mrs. K. S. Wright, with 120-30—90, drew the third award. Mrs. Gale Pugh, of Manor, won the guest prize with 107-18—89.

The program was directed by Mrs. Alma Von Steiner and was completed by a luncheon and round of bridge.

Pirates Lose To Cubs, 7-2

Parmalee Scatters Hits in Jubilee Contest.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, April 30.—The Pirates went down to defeat before the Chicago Cubs, 7-2, today in the fiftieth anniversary of Pittsburgh's entry into the National League.

The Pirates had runners stranded on the bases in every inning, but the Cubs hit safely in each.

Paul Waner drove out a triple in the eighth to give him the record of 165 three-base hits, surpassing the mark held by Pie Traynor among present-day players in the league.

The Cubs' seventh ended as Joe Marty hit into a triple play in which the entire Pirate infield participated.

Russ Bauers, who started for the Pirates, lasted six innings and Cy Blanton and Jim Tobin finished the game. The defeat was the Pirates' first at Forbes Field this season.

Bees' Rookie Defeats Phils

Turner Hurls Boston to 10-2 Triumph.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, April 30.—Boston had its batting eyes open today and behind the six-hit pitching of Jim Turner, rookie hurler from Indianapolis, clubbed Jorgens, Mulcahy and Sivess for 14 hits and a 10-to-2 victory over the Phillies.

Vince DiMaggio, of the Bees, hit a home run in the seventh with one on base and Norris hit one for the Phils in the ninth with the bases empty.

After three scoreless innings the Bees took the lead with three runs off Jorgens in the fourth and then drove him from the mound in the fifth. Garms led the Boston attack with three safeties, while Cuccinello, DiMaggio, Fletcher and Lopez had two each.

10,000 See Carnarvon Overcome Poor Luck to Take Pimlico Feature

Victor Pays $13 Mutuel With Sprint

Briar Plume Takes Her Racing Debut in 1st; Little Marty Wins.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, April 30.—Carnarvon, running in the interests of George A. Garrett, overcame poor racing luck to win the Pikesville Purse, featured event of today's Maryland Jockey Club program. The son of Prince of Wales finished on the outside of the track, but he also finished a good half-length in front of Prairie Dog, Denemark Stable hope, which, in turn, had a neck the better of A. G. Vanderbile's Grand Play.

Carnarvon, one that works out here with the prominent Aneroid, showed the way to a field that included four 3-year-olds eligible for either the Derby or the Preakness and brought his backers a $13.40 mutuel. Time of 1:13 4-5 for the six furlongs was nothing to rave about, however.

A crowd of 10,000 witnessed the program conducted under clear skies and over a fast track.

Carnarvon was not prominent at the start, being squeezed back as Moon Harvest, Grand Play and Lady Maryland battled for the lead. Swinging for the stretch, Carnarvon moved around on the outside to become a threat. As the leaders turned into the stretch, the colt went wide. However, Jockey Charlie Rosengarten soon had him on a straight course and he drove along to be going away at the end.

The judges called on the camera, although there were decisive margins between the horses.

Briar Plume, a hot paddock tip, made good in the first race of her career by winning the opening event. The daughter of Sun Briar was heavily backed and paid a $7.20 mutuel after leading Skipped to the wire by three parts of a length. Micro was third in the field of eight 2-year-olds contesting at four furlongs. Time for the race was :48.

A dozen timbertoppers marched postward in the day's steeplechase event and nine finished the course, with Gary Black's Little Marty far out in front. The aged gelding, trained by J. P. Jones and capably ridden by his son, Willie Jones, was 12 lengths ahead of M. H. Bearns, jr.'s Syriac at the end of the 2-mile test over 13 fences. Mrs. James Park's Promoter took third money another eight lengths away from the leader.

J. S. Archer's Titian Kiddie led from start to finish in the third race, a six-furlong sprint which drew a capacity field of 12 platers. With Charlie Kurtsinger in the saddle, the veteran mare made no mistakes, saving ground throughout while always holding her opposition safe. Cancel finished second. Third money went to Pineapple.

A. G. Vanderbilt's colors earned a place in the winner's circle for the second time since the Maryland season opened when Droop, a daughter of Balko, won the day's second juvenile dash of 4 furlongs at $9.70 mutuel, Droop downed Happy Vote by a length and a half. Heraldic, one that had poor racing luck, was third in the group of eight. Droop, a big juvenile, ran greenly but displayed excellent speed when straightened in the stretch. Time of 48 3-5 was displayed.

Bestest, a Boot to Boot—Best by Test filly, scored a front-running victory in the fifth race, fashioned for juveniles at four and a half furlongs. She scampered to the finish line three parts of a length ahead of Suntime. Actress took third money. Bestest was piloted by Moose Peters and paid a $7.60 mutuel while stepping the route in 55 3-5. The winner is the property of J. F. Flanagan.

Happy Road, owned by Mrs. G. H. Pearce and trained by her husband, won by a half length in the seventh race, a cheap test of a mile and 70 yards for 3-year-olds. Eleanor C. was second and Yard Stick third. The winner ran Alahad into defeat and then staved off the closing rush of Eleanor C. to pay a $14.80 mutuel and record the time of 1:46 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIAR PLUME, $7.20, $3.60, $4.80; SKIPPED, $18.60 $8.10; MICRO, $6.40.

BRIAR PLUME, away in a tangle, found racing room along the rail while having speed to go to the leaders, rallied to take command and was drawing clear of SKIPPED at the end. The latter was rushed to the front at once, opened a good lead, but some ground entering the stretch and was tiring at the finish. MICRO was hard ridden throughout. MOBCAP was in tight quarters turning for home. WAY OUT had no excuses. FAIR COMPANY dwelt at the start.

SECOND RACE—Two miles; steeplechase (13 jumps). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place same. Went to post at 2:48. Off at 2:50. Winner, Gary Black's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE MARTY $24.70, $11.00, $8.20; SYRIAC, $18.70, $14.20; PROMOTER, $15.40.

LITTLE MARTY, reserved for a turn of the field, was sent to the leaders with a sharp move, fenced well throughout and was eased up at the end. SYRIAC worked his way to the leaders gradually, was well handled and closed gamely, but no match for the winner. PROMOTER was a keen factor after the first mile, but was tiring at the end. AXACAN showed a good effort. SPINACH was forwardly placed for a mile and tired badly. KEPI could not keep up after showing early speed. PRATTLER was poorly handled while setting the pace, was bothered by loose horse and lost rider at thirteenth fence. FLYING FEATHERS lost rider while prominent at the tenth fence. LORD JOHNSON lost rider at first fence.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:23. Off at 3:24½. Winner, J. S. Archer's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TITIAN KIDDIE, $8.80, $4.80, $4.70; CANCEL, $6.10, $6.50; PINEAPPLE, $14.50.

TITIAN KIDDIE, quickest to begin, was steadied along while setting the pace and saving ground, staved off challenge of CANCEL to win smartly. CANCEL went to the leader with good speed approaching the stretch and finished willingly under stout handling. PINEAPPLE was forwardly placed throughout. BALOONY tired gradually after showing good speed. TROSTAR could not keep up. CORA KAY closed gamely from a slow beginning. The others showed nothing.

DAILY DOUBLE, BRIAR PLUME AND TITIAN KIDDIE, PAID $45.30.

FOURTH RACE—Four furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-old maidens. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:54. Off at 3:58. Winner, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DROOP, $9.70, $5.00, $3.30; HAPPY VOTE, $3.40, $3.20; HERALDIC, $2.40.

DROOP, racing greenly, was sent to the leaders at once, went wide into the turn and wore down HAPPY VOTE to win going away. HAPPY VOTE was quick to find stride, opened a good lead and continued willingly, but could not resist the winner. HERALDIC was taken in hand when in close quarters directly after break and closed with good energy. TRAVELO dropped back gradually. The others were outrun.

FIFTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:24. Off at 4:27. Winner, J. F. Flanagan's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BESTEST, $7.60, $3.90, $2.80; SUNTIME, $4.10, $3.40; ACTRESS, $3.00.

BESTEST, off alertly, was hard ridden throughout after opening a lead, but was faltering in the closing stages. SUNTIME, forced to be pulled up shortly after the break, came with good speed while racing greenly through the stretch and was a factor at the end. ACTRESS, away slowly, raced wide throughout. LOCAL BOY could oint better position. MADAME WALTER tired gradually.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:57½. Winner, George A. Garrett's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CARNARVON, $13.40, $8.00, $4.40; PRAIRIE DOG, $6.30, $3.70; GRAND PLAY, $2.80.

CARNARVON, steadied along while within striking distance of the pace, came wide into the stretch, rallied when placed to drive and closed gamely on the outside of track. PRAIRIE DOG saved ground and closed willingly under punishment. GRAND PLAY shook off LADY MARYLAND while setting the pace, but tired in the final sixteenth. TRIPLE ACTION slow to get in motion, came with a rush in the closing eighth. LADY MARYLAND and MOON HARVEST stopped after being prominent.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post ta 5:25. Off at 5:28. Winner, Mrs. G. H. Pearce's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY ROAD, $14.80, $6.50, $4.50; ELEANOR C., $4.60, $3.40; YARDSTICK, $5.90.

HAPPY ROAD, nicely handled and going in best form, moved up on the pace of ALAHAD easily, was rated along until challenged by ELEANOR C. midway of the stretch and hung on willingly under drive. ELEANOR C., sluggish for a half, saved ground while gaining sharply approaching the stretch, fought it out with good courage. YARDSTICK, taken up sharply when in tight quarters leaving the gate, gained steadily thereafter. SIR ISAAC tired after being forwardly placed. ALAHAD began to falter after a half. BRIEF was through early.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:52. Off at 5:54. Winner, Mrs. J. V. Stewart's ch. f. (4), by The Porter—On Guard. Trained by J. V. Stewart. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:15 2-5, 1:43 2-5, 1:57.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SALLANDRY, $20.90, $9.30, $6.40; HAPPY EASTER, $18.20, $8.50; METTLE, $6.80.

SALLANDRY, forwardly placed from the start after being struck by METTLE going to the first turn, came with good speed in the stretch. HAPPY EASTER gained slowly in the final drive. METTLE was reserved off the pace of LADY CARROT, took command leaving the stretch, but tired suddenly approaching the finish. POST BRIGADE closed gamely from a slow beginning. LADY CARROT stopped.

Eastern Defeats Central, 9 to 6, in Series

Lincoln Park Team Aided By 11 Walks

Bortz Pitches Wilson's Club to 7-2 Victory Over Roosevelt.

By John R. Vosburgh

Eastern High literally walked into a tie for first place with Western in the interhigh baseball series yesterday when 11 bases on balls donated by three Central pitchers, paved the way for a 9-6 victory before some 1,500 students at Eastern Field.

At the same time at Roosevelt Stadium, Kilmer Bortz, Wilson High's stike-out specialist was fanning 13 Roosevelt batters and pitching the Chevy Chasers to a 7-2 conquest of the Rough Riders and into third place in the series.

Eastern's second interhigh victory in two starts came with the help of four hits, three of them by Chet Tawney, lanky left fielder. Seven passes by Bill Noonan, starting Central pitcher; two more by Diz Rozelle, who walked the only two men to face him, and one more by George (Lefty) Rowles gave the Lincoln Parkers the help they weren't getting with their bats.

Central, on the other hand, was collecting nine hits off Lefty Walter Stockwell and Richard (Rip) Carver, the former retiring from the mound in the sixth inning after walking eight men and allowing four hits.

To add to the confusion, a red-headed boy in the stands was ejected from the park by Assistant Principal Holmes for shining his girl friend's vanity mirror in the eyes of Eastern's pitcher. The offender, an Eastern student, was spotted by Stockwell and quickly trotted out of the vicinity.

Eastern lost the services of its regular catcher, Wes Taylor, in the second inning when he broke a knuckle on his throwing hand on a foul tip from a Central bat.

In one inning of this weird spectacle, Stockwell walked the first three men and then fanned the next three. The southpaw and his successor, Carver, fanned 17 Central batters, including Bernie Askin, five times and Joe Feuz, thrice.

Central overcame a 3-2 lead in the sixth when Stockwell yielded a single, a walk and hit the next man before giving way to Carver, who started off with a base on balls.

Three straight walks by Noonan and two straight by his successor, Rozelle, helped Eastern overcome the lead in the same inning with a four-r "rally." Rowles took over the relief duty after it was too late.

Catawaba Netmen Lose To Eagles, Colonials

Catawba's touring tennis squad lost a double-header to local teams yesterday, dropping a 6-to-3 decision to George Washington in the morning, and bowing, 6 to 4, to American University in the afternoon.

Surine (G. W.) defeated Lessins, 5—7, 6—3, 6—0; Stolar (G. W.) defeated Goodman, 6—4, 7—5; Butterworth (G. W.) defeated Wallace, 6—1, 6—2; Zammiello (Catawba) defeated Faris, 6—3, 1—6, 6—4; Robins (G. W.) defeated Surratt, 6—1, 6—3; Brasted (G. W.) defeated Haig, 6—3, 7—5.

Haig and Surratt (Catawba) defeated Mintz and Ceppos, 6—4, 6—1; Brasted and Mammuw (G. W.) defeated Lessins and Wallace, 4—1. (Catawba defaulted.)

Towson (Catawba) defeated Lee, 7—5, 6—4, Harris (American) defeated Goodman, 6—3, 6—2; May (American) defeated Wallace, 7—5, 6—3; Zammiello (Catawba) defeated Hudson, 6—2, 7—5; Winter (American) defeated Haig, 6—3, 7—5; Surratt (Catawba) defeated Sarles, 6—3, 4—6, 6—2.

Lee and Harris (American) defeated Towson and Wallace, 6—3, 6—4; May and Hudson (American) defeated Goodman and Zammiello, 6—3, 6—4. (American defaulted final match.)

St. John's Golfers Win.

St. John's Prep golf team routed Landon Prep, 5 to 1, at Woodmont Country Club. Vic Meyer, of St. John's, shot a 79, record score of the day, to defeat Elwood Berkeley in the No. 1 match.

C. U. to Honor Stars At Banquet Tonight

Catholic University's athletes will put aside their implements of collegiate warfare tonight long enough to dine and receive formal tribute from old grads, young undergraduates and friends at the annual Cardinal banquet. Annually one of the city's outstanding events, the affair will get under way promptly at 7:30 o'clock in the school dining hall.

Guests of honor will be Jock Sutherland, famed University of Pittsburgh coach, and Representative William J. Connery, of Massachusetts. Mgr. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of the university, also will address the gathering. Judge Edward Curran, an alumnus of the school, will act as toastmaster.

Sutherland is scheduled to arrive here late this afternoon via airplane after concluding spring practice at Pittsburgh. He not only will talk, but is to exhibit movies of his team's Rose Bowl victory over Washington, and scenes shot in five other important games. His running account of the games should be interesting, as Sutherland is noted for his descriptive power as well as wit.

Connery is one of the most gifted orators on the "hill," and an ardent sports fan. A veteran of the World War and of innumerable Congressional "battles," he is well known throughout the city and extremely popular.

With only 100 tickets left a 100 per cent attendance is expected for the banquet. One of the features will be the awarding of insignias to "old-timers," men who bore the Cardinal and Black through many grueling and thrilling sports contests in bygone years.

Still another feature will be the award of the Harris Cup, presented annually to the student qualifying as the outstanding scholar-athlete in school. It always is awarded to a senior, and Hermie Schmarr, a three-letter man and student leader, is expected to be the recipient.

Some time during the progress of the banquet returning members of the football squad will retire and elect a captain for the 1937 campaign. The choice for this honor seems to lie between "Irish" Carroll, halfback, and Vic Sochon, a guard.

A varied program of entertainment has been arranged for the guests, featuring the Catholic University Band and Glee Club.

20,000 Fans Expected for Gold Cup Race

Warrenton, Va., April 30.—With fair weather, a record crowd is expected tomorrow at the Broadview Estate of Alexander B. Hagner, scene of the 1937 Virginia Gold Cup races.

A new road leading to the scene of the annual blue-ribbon hunt meet of the Old Dominion will facilitate handling of the stream of traffic.

Six races are scheduled. Post time for the first race has been set at 2:30 p. m. As in the past, some of the races will be run over brush and others over timber. For the first time a hurdle course will be put into service for the Warrenton Hunt Cup and the Fauquier Plate.

The spotlight, of course, will be focused on the Virginia Gold Cup Race, a 4-mile run over the stiffest of timber obstacles. A field of six has been entered, among which are some of the best timber toppers of 1936 and the current season.

Favorite in the Gold Cup is Paul Mellon's Welbourne Jake, which captured the Deep Run, Middleburg and Maryland Hunt Cups within a month. A victory for the Mellon entry tomorrow would mean four important races captured within five months.

Mrs. George Bostwick will be represented by Fugitive which took the Carolina Cup at Camden and another timber race at Middleburg. Gerard Smith's Sun Faun, which won the Meadowbrook Hunt point to point in 1936, and Mrs. Frank M. Gould's Ostend, winner of the New Jersey Cup last fall and recently third in the Maryland Hunt Cup race, also are among the entries.

The field for the Gold Cup does not far outshine the fields nominated for the Virginia National, 3 miles over brush, and the Broadview, 2½ miles over the same huge brush fences.

Gonzaga Golfers Beat Devitt Prep, 4 and 2

Gonzaga's golf team defeated the Devitt Prep School, 4 and 2, at Beaver Dam Country Club yesterday.

Sharkey, of Gonzaga, took the first match from Devitt's Guttentlan, 2 and 1. Fitzgerald followed with a 7 and 6 victory over Mostow, and Gonzaga won the entire first half by taking the best ball, 2 and 1.

Goldie Ahearn Is Absolved By Ring Heads

By Bill McCormick.

The District Boxing Commission disposed once and for all of charges of irregularities on the part of Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn in a spirited special meeting which last night concluded a sweeping investigation of the sport.

Witnesses who had been reported to have given "cut backs" to Ahearn one by one were called before the commission and, with one exception, denied having given the matchmaker money for booking certain fighters.

The one who persisted that he had given Ahearn "cut back" money, also alleged he had been assaulted by the matchmaker for throwing in a towel in a fight at Griffith Stadium last summer. Benny Keller, a licensed second, who made the only charges, failed to produce witnesses to the effect that he had on three different occasions paid Ahearn $5 for booking his fighters."

Buster Wages, a preliminary boy who had been reported as saying he had given "cut back" money to Ahearn, appeared before the commission to deny that he had ever given Ahearn any money and to give it as his opinion that Ahearn had always conducted business on a high level. Upon leaving the commission meeting, Wages gave Keller a verbal lashing for having told the commission that he had cut back to Ahearn through Keller.

As a result of the investigation, which was aimed at all phases of the local sport, the commission will recommend numerous changes in rules to the District Commissioners.

The changes provide for a $25 forfeit for any main event fighter not reporting at least 24 hours before a bout; specify that matchmakers, whose residence had not in the past been considered, be residents of the District for at least one year and eliminated the rule that not more than 50 per cent may be paid for a main event.

Other provisos to be recommended to the District Commissioners provide that no fighter shall pay more than 33 1-3 of his purses to a manager and that such fighter shall not cut back to any other manager, second, promoter, matchmaker or official. Matchmakers were officially added to the list of those who are not allowed to be mixed up in the management of fighters.

If the District heads approve, the ten point system of scoring will be adopted, two points will be deducted for each foul and champions coming in over weight will lose their titles, although challengers will not fall heir to them simply by making weight.

Industrial League In Opener Today

One of Washington's foremost sandlot circuits, the Industrial League, begins its tenth season today on the East Ellipse. The O'Donnell Sea Food Club, which won the title last year under the name of Miller Furniture, meets Heurich's Brewers in the opener at 3 p. m.

Archie Scrivener, veteran southpaw, or Walter James will do the pitching for the Beermen, with Lefty Stevens hurling for O'Donnell's. The Elks' Boys Band will furnish music and Representative Ray Collins, chairman of the District

Loyola's Nine Winner Over Catholic, 9-7

Cardinals Outhit Foes by 13-12; Zeke Brown's 4 Hits Are Best.

Baltimore, Md., April 30.—Loyola College won a free-scoring ball game from Catholic University today, 9 to 7. The Greyhounds outlasted the Cardinals through the pitching efforts of Lou Drane, a 120-pounder who fanned nine of the opposition, and some snappy work afield. Catholic made more hits, 13 to 12, and had all three extra-base blows to its credit, but only once was able to get into the lead.

Zeke Brown, Cardinal catcher, made four hits in five trips. One was a wallop almost to the gymnasium in left field, which a fast relay held to a triple.

Newsom Gives 5 Hits as Nats Beat Yanks, 4-1

zeri a merry race between second and third. Finally when it appeared that Chapman would regain second safely, the Yanks turned their attention to Hogan who was proceeding cautiously toward home. Crosetti gave chase and then decided a throw home would be the better strategy.

But he reckoned without Hogan's great bulk. Crosetti's throw struck Hogan's ample shoulder 10 feet from the plate, the ball caromed toward the Washington dugout and both Hogan and Chapman scored. Lewis reached third on the play, such as it was.

Newsom made those four runs stand up nicely. He extricated himself from a threatening spot in the fourth when Gehrig's double and a walk to Selkirk put the first two Yankees on base, and in the eighth, when Gehrig singled, not another Yankee hit was forthcoming. With two out in the ninth, he walked Crosetti and Chapman dropped Rolfe's fly, but he got rid of Johnson on a foul to Buddy Lewis.

He was pretty good.

Nats to Open Today In Philadelphia

Jubilant because of Buck Newsom's victory over the Yankees yesterday, which ended the Nats' five-game losing streak, Manager Bucky Harris announced that Pete Appleton would pitch against the A's tomorrow, probably against Almon Wililams.

On With the Newsom.

Western Tennis Team Downs Episcopal, 5 to 4

Alexandria, April 30.—A close victory in the concluding doubles match gave Western High's tennis team a 5-4 victory over Episcopal here today. Watts and Bonham defeated Lee and Rhett, 7-5, 6-4, to give the Washington school its first win over Episcopal in nearly a decade.

St. Alban's Nine Drubs Friends in 28-11 Rout

St. Alban's School swamped Friends School, 28 to 11, yesterday, at St. Albans in their annual baseball game. Nineteen bases on balls by Pitcher Chamberlain, of Friends, aided the St. Alban's cause.

Central Netmen Win.

Central High's tennis team took the measure of St. Alban's yesterday, 6 to 3, on the St. Alban's courts. Four of the Central victories came in the singles matches.

834 Dogs Seek Laurels Here In Show Today

60 Champs From All Over Country to Compete at Meadowbrook.

The first bark of the northern circuit dog shows strikes the spring air at the fashionable Meadowbrook Saddle Club this morning, as 834 dogs enter the show rings in the eighth annual canine competition sponsored by the National Capital Kennel Club.

With over 60 champions, and entries from as far afield as Seattle, Wash., and Ontario, Can., it is the largest fido feature fidos ever held in the capital.

Of local pride is Champion Jill of Garastanna, the remarkable shepherd entered by Dr. William R. Compton, of Clarendon, Va. Jill's accomplishments in the show ring, where she placed second best in a field of 600 last spring, and won over the best of Danes, St. Bernards and other working dogs in a field of 250, was further enhanced this spring with an attempt by Lee Duncan, Hollywood owner of the late Rin-Tin-Tin, to purchase her. Dr. Compton refused the offer.

The show also brings a national favorite of exhibition followers, Champion Farland Thundergust, the little black chow-chow entered by Mrs. Farland, of Camden, N. J. Champion Thundergust has been defeated but once in the past five years.

Heading the "names" who have entered breeds is Jimmy Walker, former mayor of New York City, with his Irish Terrier, Merry Maureen. The du Ponts' Foxcatcher Kennels will be represented by two beagles, and Mrs. Florence B. Ilch, of Redbank, N. J., with five collies, including two champions.

Mrs. Hartley Dodge, who sponsors the largest dog carnival in the country at Madison, N. J., will enter a contingent that includes a champion bloodhound.

As a special feature of the program, the Elie Sheetz Trophy, awarded annually to the person voted the greatest contributor to the advancement of dogdom, will be presented to Capt. Will Judy, editor of "Dog World," and a foremost authority on canine culture.

Buggs Brigadier, that marching, saluting and generally entertaining and enjoyable little wire-haired terrier owned by Ed Williams, of 224 Eighth street southwest, will cavort.

Buggs is famous in the dog world for his coyboy get-up. The little fellow goes after a hamburger by "pointing" first, and walks about waving a gun in one paw. Playing dead and saluting with one paw cocked over an eye are in the itinerary of the pooch who has entertained as far south as Texas. And he could probably show Bobby Jones a new twist in holding a golf stick.

The show will be open from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m., and judging will commence at 10 a. m.

A prominent list of judges will preside, including Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, of N. Y.

The show committee, headed by Mr. Frank Downing, include Dr. Charles Beisel, Mrs. L. A. Cornet, Mrs. F. Downing, Mr. James Frew, Mrs. J. A. Honsick, Mrs. J. B. Mackle, Mrs. J. C. O'Hare, Dr. M N. Pope, Mr. R. A. Scaggs, Mrs. R. M. Terhune and Mr. S. A. Woolner.

Gallaudet Is Host To Jackets Today

A new quarter-mile field record is expected this afternoon at Kendall Green when Gallaudet toes the mark with Randolph-Macon's legmen at 2 p. m. The new record is expected when Frank Davis, Coach Ted Hughes' sensational freshman, starts around the oval. The present mark is 0:52.4, made in 1931, and Davis was well under 50 seconds at the Penn Relays in the mile relay.

Gallaudet has another outstanding performer in "Legs" Phillips, a freshman, who is successfully filling the shoes of Leicht, last season's stellar performer. If Babb comes through in the field events, as he did against Catholic U. and American U. two weeks ago, the Blues should win without trouble.

Western Bows, 5 to 1, To Washington-Lee

Scoring all its runs in the sixth inning, when Lefty Bill Bright weakened and allowed four of his six hits, Washington-Lee High, of Ballston, defeated Western's interhigh champions yesterday at Western, 5 to 1.

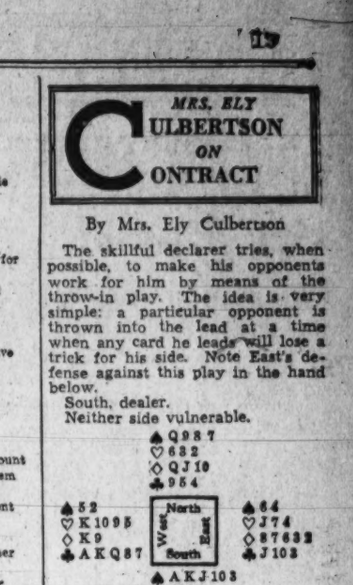
MRS. ELY CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

The skillful declarer tries, when possible, to make his opponents work for him by means of the throw-in play. The idea is very simple: a particular opponent is thrown into the lead at a time when any card he leads will lose a trick for his side. Note East's defense against this play in the hand below.

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Dbl.	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the King of clubs and continued with the suit, South ruffing the third round. Declarer took the Ace and the Queen of spades and then let the Queen of diamonds ride to West's King. West exited with a diamond, and South took the Ace and Queen. At this point he led a low heart from dummy.

East realized that unless his partner could win two heart tricks the contract could not be defeated. If his partner's hearts were solid, no play by East could affect the result; but if West lacked the Queen of hearts a thoughtless play by East would be fatal. If East played a low heart South would duck and West would be thrown into the lead. Any lead that West would then make would lose a trick for his side. But by putting up the Jack of hearts East saved the day for the defense. If permitted to hold the lead East could lead another heart; and if South won with the Ace or played the Queen, West was bound to get two heart tricks.

On the Air Today

Did you ever hear a song named "My Word?" Or do you recall songs titled "Let's Dance," "Let's Drink" or "Paree?"

The chances are you never did. But have you heard "Boo Hoo?" Yes, to the extent you're undoubtedly tired of it already. It's been first in popularity ranking for four or five weeks.

Yet, if you recognize the first few bars of "Boo Hoo" you also know those other tunes just as well. Because they are all one and the same tune, the composition of Carmen Lombardo.

"Boo Hoo" is exactly four years old. Between dance sessions that long ago, at the Roosevelt Grill, Carmen composed the music. The original lyrics were "My Word." Then, feeling a bit dissatisfied, he decided to give it a foreign twist, with a few compahs, a la "Valencia."

Before the change was completed repeal came along. Lombardo got the idea of making it topical—a sort of national drinking song, and he titled it "Let's Drink." But this also failed to materialize and at two later stages the song was done over to the titles and lyrics of "Let's Dance" and "Paree," the latter another determination to give it a Continental flavor.

It was last Christmas that Carmen and Johnny Loeb were working on a tune with Eddie Heyman as lyricist. They struck a snag and for diversion Carmen recalled the tune that already had had four or five lyrics and titles. Heyman stopped Carmen after a few bars and said: "That's it—you've got it, Boo, hoo, you've got me cryin' for you. Am I right—for a title?"

This time the tune was completed and published.

Dust Storms Jump Wheat 3½c a Bushel

Static Electricity Follows ing Storms Held Cause of Damage.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 30.—Startling reports of severe crop damage in Kansas, largely ascribed to static electricity from dust storms, did much to run wheat up 3½ cents today. Advices received here from authoritative Kansas milling sources said Kansas wheat crop prospects have been diminishing rapidly, and that unless relieved by rain in the next two weeks serious further losses are threatened. Static electricity generated by dust storms, the reports said, turns wheat brown three or four days after a storm. Oklahoma, as well as Kansas, sent word of wheat crop deterioration.

At the close, wheat futures in Chicago were 3 to 3½ cents above yesterday's finish; May, 1.31⅝-1.31¾; July, 1.19⅜-1.19½; September, 1.17½-1.17⅝; corn, ½-2 up; May, 1.32¼-1.32½; July, 1.19-1.19⅛; September, 1.09¾-1.09⅞; oats showing ¼-1¼ gain; May, 50¼-50¾, and rye at 3-3¼ bulged; May, 1.14⅝. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 10 cents setback to 12 cents advance.

Wash. Gas Net $139,042 in March

The monthly report of the Washington Gas Light Co., filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission, shows operating revenues for March of $768,268, compared with $694,055 for the same month last year, an increase of $74,213. Operating expenses also increased from $487,769 in March last year to $569,857 in March this year, due to the larger volume of gas produced and the greater number of customers served.

The net result of the month's operation after all deductions was a net income of $139,042, a decrease of $5,152 from March of last year, despite increased taxes and increased charges for the retirement of property. The March earnings bring the net income for the first quarter of the current year up to $403,991.

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended April 24 as approximately 6,500,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week: 1936, 7,132,000 tons; 1935, 4,909,000 tons.

$1.391 Billion New Securities In 1st Quarter

Recent Financing Shows Trend to Issues of Common Stocks.

During the first quarter of 1937 registration statements for securities with estimated gross proceeds of $1,391,297,000 became fully effective under the securities act of 1933, marking the seventh successive quarter that registrations have been close to, or above, the billion-dollar figure. During the first quarter of 1936 aggregate effective registrations had totaled $1,071,176,000.

Analysis of the registrations during the January-March, 1937, quarter discloses the change which has been taking place in the character of the securities proposed for flotation. From March, 1935, to the end of 1936 the larger part of the securities were bonds, notes and debentures proposed for sale at low interest rates to take advantage of existent opportunities for refunding. After the most inviting refundable situations had been cleared away, a movement for the substitution of high dividend preferred stock issues with lower rate preferred issues was started.

More recently, there have been registered large amounts of common stocks, representing, on one hand, proposed financing by the registrants themselves and, on the other, the proposed distribution, or preparation for distribution, of already outstanding equity securities by their present owners. These latter securities are classified as registered "for the account of others;" during the first three months of the current year $51,755,000 of such common stock issues were effectively registered. Corporate financing of common stock issues has been mostly for the increase of working capital, and (in the case of investment companies) for the purchase of securities for investment.

For each of the three months of the first quarter the fixed-interest bearing securities accounted for less than 50 per cent of the monthly totals; for the quarter as a whole, they represented 44.4 per cent of the total registrations against 65.8 per cent and 71.3 per cent for the years 1936 and 1935, respectively. During the first quarter of 1937 preferred stock issues amounted to 15.0 per cent of total registrations; common stock issues, 34.9 per cent, and certificates of participation, beneficial interest, etc., 5.7 per cent.

$100,000,000 Bills Offered by Treasury

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that tenders are invited for two series of Treasury bills to the aggregate amount of $100,000,000, or thereabouts. One series will be 135-day bills and the other series will be 273-day bills. Both series will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders.

Tenders will be received at the Federal Reserve banks or branches up to 2 p. m. on Monday. Tenders will not be received at the Treasury Department.

Market Advances as Steel And Rail Shares Recover

Improvement in Foreign Markets Aids the Rise; United States Government Bonds Irregular.

By Frederick Gardner.
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, April 30.—Led by steels and rails, stock market leaders today joggled into a quiet but substantial recovery. In view of the breadth of the advance, gains ranged from fractions to 26 or more points generally. Volume was unusually light. Transfers for the 5-hour proceedings totalled 1,449,700 shares, compared with 2,030,020 yesterday. At the same time the Associated Press average of 60 issues pushed up 1.6 points to 68.2. On the month the average was off 4.2 points. The April turnover was the smallest since last September.

Short covering, brokers said, accounted for the greater part of the upturn. It was inspired, apparently, by improvement in London and Paris markets; a let-down in foreign selling of American securities, reinvestment demand and a more cheerful view of business affairs.

Unusually slow dealings, except for the opening hour, were attributed largely to the fact many commission house customers were still "frozen" in because the recent slump had impaired their margin accounts. Others, it was said, remained in neutral territory because of skepticism that the trend has definitely been reversed.

While principal foreign markets sat up and took nourishment after the recent collapse, late dispatches told of another sharp break in securities on the Johannesburg market. Announcement of a large London jobbing house handling American and South American stocks and bonds had encountered financial difficulties seemingly had little effect on markets as a whole.

A helpful influence was also seen in the turn-about of commodities. Virtually all retrieved portions of the losses of the past week or so. Wheat at Chicago was up 3 to 3½ cents a bushel and corn advanced ½ to 2. Cotton improved $1.10 to $1.25 a bale.

Foreign currencies calmed down in terms of the dollar, reflecting drying up of stock selling from overseas. Carrier bonds set the pace for a rise in the loans division. United States Governments turned somewhat uneven.

Bethlehem Steel Up.

Steel stocks revived on the overnight favorable Bethlehem first quarter statement and President Grace's optimistic forecast for the industry. Bethlehem opened late with a block of 3,000 shares, up 4¾ points. It dipped later but finished with a net gain of 5 at 86¼. United States Steel ended under its best at 101¼, up 2½. National Steel was up 3¼ at 84 and Republic 2 at 38⅝.

Stimulating the rails were last week's freight loadings figures disclosing a more than seasonal increase to a high mark for the year.

Santa Fe pointed the way for the transportaion group with a leap into new high territory for 1937. It closed at 88¼, up 3¼. Others that followed included N. Y. Central at 47¾, Southern Pacific 57¼, Great Northern 52⅜, Northern Pacific 33⅝, and Union Pacific 144.

General Motors was up 2⅛, at 58¼, but Chrysler had hard going and was ahead only ⅜, at 113¼. The latter's earnings for the first three months were said to have been a bit under expectations of some analysts.

Among wide gainers were Homestake Mining at 352, up 12; J. I. Case 167½, up 7⅜; Westinghouse 140¾, up 6½; Cerro De Pasco 68, up 5; Anaconda 51⅞, up 3⅜; Kennecott 54¼, up 3¼; Sears Roebuck 88, up 2¾; Electric Power & Light 20, up 2⅛; Deere 132, up 5⅛; Douglas Aircraft 54¾, up 3⅜; Texas Corporation 61, up 2⅜; Standard Oil of N. J. 66⅛, up 1¾; Du Pont 154, up 3; General Electric 53¾, up 2; American Telephone 162½, up 2⅛, and Goodyear 41¾, up 1⅜, and Continental Oil 44½, up 1⅞.

Dealings were far from broad. Only 833 issues changed hands, against 900 Thursday. Of these, 656 advanced, 88 declined and 89 were unchanged.

That brokers are not too hopeful the public will get back into the market on a sizable scale was indicated by the transfer of a stock-exchange seat for $100,000, off $6,000 to a year's low.

A heavy concentration of buying orders, particularly for speculative corporate loans, made the bond market a fit running mate for rampant stock marts today.

Gaining speed as the session progressed, reorganization and "stock-privilege" issues sprinted into sharply higher ground, vying with utility and industrial loans all the way. Although gains outstripped by wide margins those of an average session, the volume of domestic corporate issues traded was considerably below the usual run, a circumstance traders found dicffiult to interpret.

United States Government loans fluctuated unevenly on a proportionately heavier volume of trading. Some quarters believed Federal bonds would take a more definite direction after tomorrow, when the higher reserve requirements of member banks becomes operative.

Outstanding headway was made by such rail lines as Alleghany 5s of 1949, up 3⅞ at 92⅜, Missouri Pacific 5s "F" up 2¼ at 43¼, the 5s "G" up 2⅝ at the same level, Frisco 4½s up 1⅜ at 28¾ and Northwestern 4¾ up 1 at 19½. The Associated Press average of 20 carrier loans advanced 0.9 of a point to 93.5, more than offsetting Thursday's sharp decline.

Utility and industrial bonds, although a little less spectacular, moved uniformly higher with gains fo a point or more. Remington Rand 4½s added 1¼ to 106¾, Childs Co. 5s gained 1¾ to 90, Portland General Electric 4½s rose 1¼ to 61 and International Telephone 5s lifted 1⅞ to 101.

Foreigns failed to break out of narrow trading ranges of the past week or so and finished mixed to a little higher.

U. S. Governments swung indecisively with most changes held to small fractions. Treasury 3¾s of 1956 gained 15-32 of a point for the widest move. Turnover for all bonds totaled $11,397,000, face amount, $12,893,000 Thursday.

Inflation Peril Is Seen With Federal Debt

Kinsey, New Savings Bank President, Issues Warning.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 30.—Henry R. Kinsey, elected today president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks added his voice to those who have recently warned of threats of inflation.

"We are well along the road toward abundance and the open door to saving and a balanced economic life is at hand," he told the final session of the association's annual conference. "With all of these favorable influences at work, we should not forget that it is impossible to run our Government on credit forever," he said. Stating Government debt is the greatest in history and organized minorities are urging the expenditure of immense sums, he continued:

"Ultimately the people of the United States must pay for national expenditures and we cannot shut our eyes to the truth that the growing debt and the unbalanced budget contain definite threats of inflation."

Kinsey, is president of the Williamsburgh Savings Bank, Brooklyn. He joined the bank in 1900, after four years as an engineer with the Brooklyn Edison Co. As president of the Savings Banks Association of New York from 1931 to 1935, he played an important part in framing and directing legislation strengthening the position of Mutual institutions.

A. George Gilman, chairman of the committee on mortgages; of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, said today real estate continues one of the soundest investments. "If wealth is to be preserved in the present form," he said, "it is evident that that invested in realty probably will stand up against adverse influences as well if not better than other available forms of investment.

"It is the belief of the committee that wealth is accumulating as a result of the purchase by far-sighted individuals of certain types of realty now available at what would appear to be prices below intrinsic values," he added.

Warns of Inflation.

Freight Traffic 14.3 Per Cent AboveYearAgo

Total of 761,182 Cars Is Gain of 1.3% Over Preceding Week.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended April 24 totaled 761,182 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. NED, IF YOU HAD DONE THAT ON PURPOSE, I'D HAVE PUNCHED YOUR NOSE!
I ONLY KNEW GAIL WAS BRINGING A FRIEND-AND I THINK PAT'S A MIGHTY SWELL GIRL
I SORT OF LIKE HER, AT THAT-BOY, HOW SHE PUT THE BLAST ON ME!
WHY DON'T YOU CALL HER TOMORROW AND APOLOGIZE, BUD?
CALL HER? ARE YOU CRAZY?
OKAY-IT WAS JUST A THOUGHT-BUT GAIL GAVE ME HER NUMBER-IF YOU EVER WANT IT

Apple Mary — By Martha Orr

SAY, WHAT RIGHT HAVE YOU GOT ORDERING YOUR MEN TO BOARD UP THIS FACTORY?
WHY THIS IS SIGNED BY SLIM'S WIFE!
SURE, SHE'S HANDLIN' ALL HIS AFFAIRS SINCE SHE PROVED HE WAS NUTS.
BUT I SPENT ALL MY MONEY REMODELING THIS PLACE. WHO'S GOING TO PAY ME BACK?
MEBBE SANTY CLAUS WILL IF YER REAL GOOD.
THAT'LL TEACH YOU TO MAKE FUN OF ME WHEN I'M ALL UPSET.
WHEN YER UPSET! WHY YOU —

Southerners Win Second Crater Battle

V. M. I. Cadets, Unchecked by Volley of Cheers, Whip Marines.

By Scott Hart.
A Staff Correspondent.

Petersburg, Va., April 30.—A gray host of well-fed Southern boys with good clothing on their backs and good shoes on their feet charged in cool weather today across a grassy field where their grandfathers once charged in makeshift clothes and no shoes on a bullet-hot day of July, 73 years ago.

The boys today were met by a volley of cheers from an estimated crowd of 50,000 who watched their re-enactment of the Crater battle. Like their grandfathers, they won the battle.

Charging through cheers and blank cartridges, the warriors of the South—youths of Virginia Military Institute and Virginia National Guardsmen—retook the Crater line, and the crowd was full of pride as it craned a collective neck toward the deep hole where the damyankees—a detachment of Fifth Marines—were cringing.

The sham battle was based on facts, as follows:

In June, 1864, Grant's army was investing Petersburg, a strategic city in his drive for Richmond. The butternut fighters and the blue battlers were daily exchanging a various assortment of hard metal and getting nowhere at all. Some idle moments ensued, and there were rumors that the generals behind the front were a-quaffing of brandy while the men held the lines.

In the midst of this mess, Col. Henry Pleasants, a mining engineer, had an inspiration—to dig a tunnel under the Confederate line and blow an opening gap. Finally yielding, the generals set the Forty-eighth Pennsylvania to digging, and a month or so later the earth was primed to explode. Grant prepared 40,000 men for the attack. The fuse was lighted but failed to ignite the charge, and in the hour's ensuing delay the blue men grew restless. Two nervy men, Reese and Doughty, entered the tunnel and repaired the fuse—then the blast went off.

Two hundred and seventy-eight of Elliott's South Carolina men went up in the air in a writhing mass of mangled bodies. The fighters of Burnside's Ninth Corps were so shocked by the noise of their own show that they went back on their heels in confusion. This delay helped the Confederates, and when the troops of Ledlie, Potter and the others charged, a musket-holding reception committee was waiting.

Colored Troops Repulsed.

In quick sequences, the blue fighters got beyond the Crater rim, but the fighting was stiff and many took refuge in the hole from the enfilading Confederate fire. Finally Ferrero's colored fighters charged, to be hurled backward by Gen. Mahone's brigade. By this time the Crater was teaming with Union troops, who took a lot of lead and then surrendered. The Confederates were back in their original position—the Union troops were back in their original position—the generals were counting 4,400 in casualties for the North, 1,500 for the South.

When it was all over, the spectators straggled again across the wet grass, through the second-growth pines, and many of them stopped to buy souvenirs for the children.

Zion Church Plans Special Musical Program for Week

The opening of National Music Week will be observed in John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church tomorrow morning with the Rev. Stephen Gill Spottswood, pastor, giving a sermon at 11 a. m. on "A New Song." A congregational sing and concert by the church choirs will feature the evening service.

Howard University. Mrs. Harper Sibley, religious leader of Rochester, N. Y., will be the speaker at 11 a. m. services tomorrow in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel on the campus. The university choir will sing.

Lincoln Congregational Temple. Annual youth day will be observed tomorrow. Merrell D. Booker, senior at Howard University, will speak at 11 a. m. on "Religion, A Vital Experience."

The Rev. Emerr H. Booker, Howard University graduate, will address the Men's Brotherhood at 10 a. m. on "Finding a Light Within You."

Second Baptist Church. The Rev. J. L. S. Holloman, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Christian Church; Its Scope and Power." At the evening hour the pastor will preach on "Cain and Abel, Characters in Contrast."

Catholic Guild Will Open Forum Series Tomorrow

The Washington Catholic Evidence Guild will open its fifth relations forum series at Franklin park and Judiciary square at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Throughout the summer trained Catholic laymen will appear at the Sunday afternoon meetings to discuss Catholic doctrine. Dr. John G. Bowen, of Georgetown University, will be chairman of the Franklin Park meeting tomorrow, and Dr. Charles Hart, of Catholic University, will speak. At Judiciary Square Mrs. Frank O'Hara will be chairman, and Charles Ferry and Frank Larkin will speak.

Emory Players Rehearse For Annual Spring Play

The Emory Players are now rehearsing for their annual spring play. The play now in production is "The Littlest Bridesmaid," a three-act comedy by Lida Larrimore and will be presented on May 7 and 8 at Emory M. E. Church, South, 6100 Georgia avenue northwest at 8:15 p. m.

Interior Building Mural Contest Closed

400 Designs Will Be Judged For Interior Building Mural

With more than 400 designs to choose from, an art jury will meet here Tuesday to decide on the mural which will decorate the auditorium of the new Interior Building.

Artists throughout the Nation competed for the $5,500 award, submitting designs ranging from a simple mountain landscape to a picture crowded with Indians, Boy Scouts, buffalo, the stars and stripes, Washington Monument and colored collegians wearing mortar boards.

Celebrating the conclusion of the contest, one of the largest of the 50 which have been held by the Treasury, Edward Bruce, chief of the department's art projects, was host at a luncheon at headquarters in the Federal Warehouse. Among those present were Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Ohio; Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, C. Powell Minnigerode, Herman Oliphant, Miss Adelaide de Groot and Louis A. Simon.

The only thing the entries have in common is their form. All are triptyches—that is, they have a broad center panel flanked by two narrower ones. In the completed state, the middle section will be 15 feet 4 inches wide and 11 feet 8 inches high. The two outer panels will be slightly over 4 feet wide and almost 12 feet high.

Indians and buffalo figure in a large percentage of the designs. Boulder Dam, Grand Canyon and "Old Faithful" geyser, in Yellowstone Park, also were used. Some would have no more than two or three colors, while others employ practically every shade.

The winner will be selected by members of the staff of the painting and sculpture section, aided by Waddy Wood, architect of the Interior Building; Eugene Savage, Alexander Brook and Hermon Moore, New York painters; Daniel Catton Rich, of the Chicago Institute of Art, and William Zimmerman, Interior Department.

Import of De Valera's Move Analyzed as Mostly Internal

The new constitution says that Ireland shall henceforth be known as "Eire"—not as Saorstat Eirenann, or the Irish Free State. That obviously is to leave out any implication that Ireland is not free.

But the paradox of Ireland's relationship with Great Britain apparently will remain insofar as its external affairs are concerned.

Today, for example, the Minister of the Irish Free State is a representative of the British King. He is so recognized by the United States Government.

Still "Representative."

Nothing in the new Irish constitution would change that, despite that document's flaming declaration of freedom. The point is that neither this nor any other country could recognize an Irish envoy not representative of the King without recognizing Ireland's complete freedom and without, therefore, offending the British crown.

The new Irish constitution provides for the popular election of a president. However, it significantly does not give that executive the power to negotiate treaties or to appoint envoys to foreign powers.

That, say Irish experts here, is why the new constitution is not so important in an external sense.

Really Cabinet Chief.

De Valera is not president of the Irish Free State in the sense that Roosevelt is President of the United States. Actually he is president of the executive committee of Dail Eireann, a sort of cabinet chief, or prime minister.

Whether De Valera will run for the new office of President of Eire, as set up by the new constitution, is not definitely known here. Theoretically he might not have so much power in the new role, although actually he would if his party were returned to power.

One other man has been mentioned as a possible candate, Sean T. O'Kelly, vice president of the executive committee and minister of local government and public health.

Amusing Aspect.

The last time the Dail Eireann made a change in the country's constitution was during the crisis over King Edward's abdication. As Irishmen here see it, this had some amusing aspects. The British Government asked the Free State Government to recognize Edward's abdication and the succession of his brother.

The Irish parliament did this by adding an article to the constitution, and thus removed any possible cloud over the quick change which glamorous Mrs. Simpson had precipitated. If Ireland had balked—and this still amuses Irishmen—Edward, Duke of Windsor, might still be King of Ireland, although no longer King of England, Emperor of India, etc.

Having removed that cloud over the abdication, and after emphasizing that it was purely for "external" reasons, Ireland proceeded to eliminate another of its ties with England. It abolished the office of governor-general.

This office was held by Donald Buckley, a good Irishman, but nevertheless a liason between Ireland and the crown. On December 12 last he signed a bill abolishing his own office, and the new budget carries no funds for that office.

This action attracted little attention in the hurly-burly created by King Edward's abdication and his departure for the continent, there to await his marriage with Mrs. Simpson. The English, as has been said, were grateful that Ireland didn't do something more drastic under the circumstances.

Long years of agitation for Irish freedom reached a high point in 1914, but the outbreak of the World War postponed action on home rule legislation then pending.

U. S. Expert Asks Teachers' Help in Crime Prevention

R. T. Harbo, administrative assistant of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, yesterday told penmanship teachers of the importance of document experts in analyzing crime. He spoke at the convention of the National Association of Penmanship Teachers and Supervisors here.

Television Needs New Form, Belief

Introduction of television to the public is now an artistic and economic rather than a technical problem, the American Physical Society was told last night by David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America.

"The major obstacles," he said, "are no longer in the field of research and engineering. Television now demands the creation of a new art form, allied with, yet distinctive from, the arts of the stage, of the motion picture and of sound broadcasting.

"It requires new talent, new techniques of writing, direction and studio control. It must set in motion an ascending spiral whereby good programs create a demand for receiving sets, thus creating a growing audience, which in turn will make possible better programs. Television must build networks and justify an economic base capable of supporting an expensive program service."

War Department Messenger Dies

Joseph S. Hood, colored, for 34 years messenger in the War Department, died Thursday night. Widely known in the Bureau of Insular Affairs, where he spent 30 of his 34 years service, he was stricken with a heart attack after returning from work.

Hood entered the Quartermaster's Department in September, 1903, and four years later was transfered to the Bureau of Insular Affairs. He was 66 year old, a native of Pennsylvania, and is survived by his wife, Bertha Hood, of 1616 Fifteenth street northwest, a brother, James T. Hood, and a sister, Eva Hood Watson, both of Washington.

Murphy to Discuss Strike Peace Part

Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, who has been silent about his part in bringing about a peaceful settlement of the General Motors strike, has picked the dinner of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom today at 7 p. m. at the Washington Hotel as the occasion for voicing his views on "Nonviolent Techniques in Labor Disputes."

Two other speakers have been chosen to present "The Peaceful Procedures in Labor Relations." Josephine Roche, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, made a reputation for herself in handling workers in her Colorado coal mines. A. J. Muste is labor secretary for the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

The league's interest in labor peace is fixed by the statement of principles of the United States section: "The existing economic system is shot through and through with force, injustice and actual violence. It is ours to do all in our power to prove that justice can be gained without violence."

Oil Royalties Operator Wins Trial for Fraud

N. Y. Federal Court Frees J. E. Jones, Victor Over SEC.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 30.—J. Edward Jones, oil royalties operator, was acquitted in Federal Court today of charges he used the mails for fraudulent purposes in connection with the sale of oil royalties trust certificates.

Jones, who won a Supreme Court victory over the Securities and Exchange Commission a year ago, did not call any witnesses. Conviction would have meant possible imprisonment for 50 years.

The Government's prosecutor, Leo J. Fennelly, charged Jones defrauded the investing public by making false statements in connection with the sale of oil royalties certificates and used the mails to further the alleged scheme to defraud.

Jones has been in the oil royalties business 17 years. He is a native of Kansas.

The indictment was filed April 7, 1936, the day after the Supreme Court held Jones could not be compelled to obey the regulations of the SEC, requiring the registration of oil royalties trust certificate series.

Jones opened his court fight against the Securities and Exchange Commisison in 1935, when he challenged the constitutionality of the act establishing the commission.

The year before, he had asked President Roosevelt to remove Secretary of Interior Ickes. He said he thought the petroleum code was "designed to make legal dictatorial powers of Secretary Ickes hitherto practiced stubbornly and ruthlessly but never supported by law."

The Securities and Exchange Commission's answer to Jones' petition was to petition a District of Columbia court to make Jones answer a subpena, issued in connection with their widening breach.

The commission wished to examine certain of his records, and Jones had refused. Thsi difference ultimately was placed before the United States Supreme Court, which upheld the oil royalties operator's refusal to testify before the commission. Later the same month, a Federal grand jury returned the indictment against Jones. Jones charged the action was the result of the Government's desire for revenge for his Supreme Court victory.

Rector Informs C. U. Trustees Of New Statuta

Report Upon Pontifical Constitution Given at Spring Meeting.

The report of the Right Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of Catholic University, on the Statuta, the constitution governing the university, which he brought from Rome last week, was the principal business before the board of trustees at their spring meeting yesterday.

Although this meeting usually is held the second week after Easter, it was postponed until the return of the rector, so that the Statuta as finally adopted might be presented to the trustees.

The trustees accepted the resignation of the Right Rev. David T. O'Dwyer as procurator, with expressions of appreciation for the services he has rendered. Mgr. O'Dwyer, who also is director of the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, now will devote all his time to the shrine. The Rev. Joseph N. LaRue was named active procurator.

The other members present were the Most Rev. John J. Glennon, Archbishop of St. Louis; the Most Rev. John G. Murray, Archbishop of St. Paul; the Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, Archbishop of Milwaukee; the Most Rev. Joseph F. Rummel, Archbishop of New Orleans; the Most Rev. Joseph Schembs, Bishop of Cleveland; the Most Rev. John B. Peterson, Bishop of Manchester, N. H.; the Most Rev. Edwin V. O'Hara, Bishop of Great Falls, Mont.; the Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, Bishop of Richmond; Mr. Justice Pierce Butler, of Washington; Mr. John J. Sullivan, of Philadelphia; Mr. Clarence E. Martin, of Martinsburg, W. Va.; Mr. O. H. P. Johnson, treasurer of the university, of Washington; the Right Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector, and the Right Rev. Patrick J. McCormich, vice rector of the university.

PALL MALL

THE MODERN BLEND

Since the end of the last century, the Turkish blend of Pall Mall has been famous as "A Shilling in London, A Quarter Here."

Now Pall Mall bids for the favour of the modern American smoker with The Modern Blend. At 15¢ for twenty, it follows faithfully the thorough English blending method of the Turkish Pall Mall and is the only cigarette of its type which scorns the use of artificial flavouring of any kind. The clean, pleasing taste of the new Pall Mall comes solely from carefully selected, more expensive domestic and Oriental tobaccos, blended more expertly. Its straight tobacco flavour leaves none of the after-taste of "sugar-coating."

Its special English wrapping provides a tab on the back of the packet with which to open the corner, leaving the rest of the cellulose for continued protection.
